

Mechanics. He held for many years a prominent position in the High School of Columbus, known as one of the leaders of the typical American school. He has given up the business of his life, and seems heart and soul devoted to it. Having proved this to his friends and superiors in London. Of Quaker stock, his manners are gentle, genial, and winning, and he possesses the faculty of inducing his pupils with his own example. He has been one of the first Professors appointed, he early began his important work, and has already established a physical laboratory, containing a superior set of apparatus. He has already adopted an idea which will place with his fact that is stated, that lay a foundation of practical with theoretical teaching. These latter are also encouraged to make for themselves new experiments or instruments which they may suggest or conceive. Among such college-made instruments may now be seen two excellent galvanometers to measure the force of electricity, and which would cost forty or fifty dollars at the manufacturer's. There are other articles of like kind to be seen. All that is required of the student in such cases is to pay the first cost of materials; these, in the case of the galvanometers, cost but three or four dollars. Shuffling will soon be put in one of the basement rooms, intended to run lathes, planers, and other machinery and machinery can also be prepared. I believe the last year's Cincinnati Exposition was enriched by several tools and instruments from this department of the College, as well as smooth iron surfaces, so perfectly framed as to cling together by cohesion. Many mechanical articles are produced by different manufacturers throughout the State. The Patent Office at Washington has made a donation of upward of four hundred models.

oughly posted in agriculture as a science will need to read as many books in French and German as he will in English. While this may be an overestimate, yet it is nevertheless true that a knowledge of French and German, especially of German, is of great value.

Sidney A. Norton is the Professor of Chemistry. He was, for some time, Assistant Professor of this science in Union College, New York, and in nine years in the Cleveland High School, and he held the same position in the Mount Auburn Institute, Cincinnati, and was also Professor of Chemistry in the Miami Medical College of this city. He spent some time in Europe, chiefly in Germany, and is the author of some scientific books. The working laboratory is one of the largest rooms of the College, and is fitted up with many conveniences. The chemical apparatus is intended to run three years. Thus a wide range is given to this most important department of study, and affords a better opportunity to make selection of any particular branch for his studies. Nine rooms of the College are appropriated to chemical studies; these are the laboratory, preparatory and distillation rooms, those for fuel gas, store, balances, spectroscopic and lectures.

A full stock of reagents, tubes and other essential apparatus, to which the students have access, paying only the first cost of the articles they use. The laboratories are fitted up with every convenience in the way of blow-pipes, gas stoves, jars, retorts, water-tank, air-pumps, etc., some interesting and valuable specimens from different manufacturers have been donated, showing certain fabrications in their different stages toward completion, and the College is desirous of obtaining such specimens from all our noted chemical works.

R. W. McFarland is College Professor of Mathematics and Civil Engineering. A native of Ohio and a graduate of Miami University, who also held the Professorship of Mathematics. He is a practical engineer, and has a good record as colonel of an Ohio regiment during the war, and gives attention to the military instruction during the winter terms.

Alvin H. Tuttle holds the Chair of Zoology and Comparative Anatomy. A native of Ohio, though he studied in the Pomona State Normal School. He had previously been assistant to Agassiz in the Museum of Comparative Zoology in the fall courses of the College, running three years, the studies are taken up in the following order: Human anatomy and physiology, mammals, birds and reptiles, amphibians and fishes, insects, mollusks, protozoa, and lastly, comparative physiology. His lecture-room is well supplied with skeletons of the hog, dog, horse, cow, antelope and sheep, with other domestic animals, as well as the most notable of these skeletons is that of the elephant, as also those of some tyman.

Joseph Milliken, son of Major Milliken, of Hamilton, Ohio, is Professor of the English, French and German languages. He graduated at Miami University, and for a few years was Professor of Greek in that institution. He has spent a number of years in Europe, and speaks several of the Continental languages. He is considered a ripe scholar.

John H. Williams is Professor of Greek and Latin. The son of a missionary, he was born in Perrin, living graduated at Dartmouth, he took the highest rank in his class. He is now in his 23d year.

The Board at their last meeting appointed teachers for all the branches of study in the programme except one, and that one in the present condition of the country, the instruction which it should supply is perhaps, of all the others, not the least important. The urgent and the necessity in the public mind as to the correct time of policy for the Government to people to pursue, certainly shows the want of correct knowledge of the elementary principles of political economy. The prosperity of the industry of this country must be attained in person positions, in the absence of thorough elementary instruction of the people, who in the present have to decide on the great lines of policy to be adopted by the nation. What is of more importance to the whole country, a correct knowledge of these principles, which underlie our commercial relations with other nations. The knowledge of the questions arising out of subjects of an unimportant character, and the subject of the medium of commercial exchange, and taxation on every branch of industry, of these pressing and urgent subjects of National State and local importance, and the sources of the means and methods of their liquidation, or the relations of the classes interested in the profits of industrial production and the diffusion of the knowledge which will prevent those distressing conflicts of interests so common between adjacent antagonistic parties, but injurious and fatal to really mutual interests. What is more important to the youth of the land than the knowledge of the history of our civilization, of the progress of the multiplying complexities of our social system, and of the new discoveries in sociology? The youth of the State well instructed in the principles of this science, would speedily bring to light the almost unlimited amount of political quackery so mischievous and ruinous at the present time. In connection with this branch of study the Trustees should provide for a thorough instruction of their students in the application of the methods of modern accounting in commerce to the conduct of the farm and the shop.

A complete knowledge of the scientific methods of the Italian system of book-keeping is indispensable at the present age to the successful operation of any business. It is the chart and compass of all safe and carefully conducted business operations, and instruction in it should not by any means be omitted. Want of correct accounting is one of the most extended causes of litigation and business troubles and difficulties; and while no doubt Mr. Townsend is well aware of its great value as applied to show the different values of the various articles of the farm, yet his wide and many-sided occupations will prevent him from giving time for special instruction in it.

It is much more important to the great mass of the youth of the country, a knowledge of these subjects just referred to than any smattering of even the best students get of Latin and Greek. The following point, made by Mr. Sullivan, the Secretary of the Board of Trustees, who is a gentleman of scholarship and scientific attainments, is not now so cogent as formerly. Mr. Sullivan says: "Should any student be so fortunate as to make original discoveries in science, and wish to describe them so as to be understood in all the nations in Europe, they would be compelled to employ the Latin tongue, which, although called a dead language, still more nearly supersedes a universal language than any other."

The Latin was long ago the language of the learned, who consisted of a few men scattered over the West and South of Europe, but the state of things has passed away; the numbers of people in any one of these countries now interested in learning and science, far exceed those of the whole world when Latin was the universal language of the learned. The people of all the civilized nations are rapidly becoming interested in science, so that the amount of scientific work and scientific description known to a great extent is living languages. The great masters of science, Darwin, Brewster, Huxley, Hall, Harker, Tyndall, Helmholtz, Mayer, Coppe, Marsh, Agassiz, etc., etc., as well as native languages in publishing to the learned and the world their discoveries and descriptions. It is true that some descriptions in botany, zoology and entomology are written by the discoverers in a barbarous jargon of scientific Latin, at the same time that they publish their descriptions in their native tongue, yet this practice is gradually being abandoned. The cheapening of books and of translations from many languages, and the great increase of readers and students and students, certainly tending to its entire abandonment, when the Latin will be relegated to the exclusive use of the Roman Catholic priesthood. The English language is becoming the great reservoir and storehouse into which is being poured for use and preservation the treasures of human knowledge, and justly so. It is the language of science and of the free nations; it is the language of one hundred millions of civilized men, whose political and social institutions are the happiest and most capable of progress; it is the language of the greatest commercial nations and of the great colonizing race; it is the language of the press and of the great patrons of the press, and it has a native and original literature, which forms the material for culture in abundance and excellence, surpassing that of any other language. It is true that it should receive in our higher institutions of learning a greater share of attention, as to the German and French languages, Mr. Sullivan remarks that "he who wishes to keep thor-

THE OHIO AGRICULTURAL AND MECHANICAL COLLEGE.

Under the present Board of Trustees measures have been taken which promise to place the above institution in the rank of the higher seminaries of learning of the State. The course of study at present adopted, and the instruments already appointed, indicate to some extent the purposes of the Trustees, while providing for a broad general education, to direct the force of the institution more particularly in the promotion of the study of technical branches of knowledge and to furnish the instrumentalities of a thorough practical education bearing upon the great industrial interests of the State, of agriculture, manufactures, mining and the mechanic arts. A brief synopsis of the

PROFESSORS AND THEIR QUALIFICATION.

And the subjects they are to teach, will convey more fully the plans of the institution. Edward Orton is the President of Board of Instruction and Professor of Geology. He graduated at Hamilton College in 1882, and filled the position of Professor of Natural Science in the North-western State Normal School; was Principal of Antioch College in Ohio, having been President of that institution, as well as Professor of Natural History, and this position he resigned to accept that he now holds in the Ohio Agricultural and Mechanical College. He has been engaged four years in our State's Geological Survey. Of middle age, he is represented as one of those quiet, unassuming sort of gentlemen, naturally adapted, by feeling and culture, to inspire young men with a thirst for knowledge. In him the Trustees have made a most excellent selection. Mr. Orton presides over the geological sections, the tuition in which runs through a two years' course. The first year is intended to comprise a general survey of the earth's crust, as revealed in its vegetable and mineral deposits; the second involves the practical application of fundamental principles that bears on mechanical and agricultural life, such as an acquaintance with the constituents of stone, lime, cement, all the ores, soils and coal, especially those found in our own State. The natural history of petroleum also is to be taught. Mr. Orton intends to give a special course upon microscopy and microscopy. Already the College possesses a large and most excellent geological collection, more varied, perhaps, than to be found in any other Western State. These have been collected during his four years' work on our State's survey, but purchases have also been made and gifts received, making this a most valuable department of the College. A cast of the celebrated fossil skeleton of the Megalodon, now in the British Museum, embellishes one side of the room, and naturally attracts universal admiration. Norton S. Townsend is Professor of Agriculture and Botany, and takes for the present that of Veterinary Science. He is also the General Superintendent of the Farm. From the beginning he has taken a most active part in carrying the College to its present comparative success. The son of an English farmer, he was brought at the early age of nine years to this country, where his family settled in Ohio, on the farm Mr. Townsend now owns. He is a graduate of Rutgers College, New York, and also of the Colleges of Surgeons, in London and Paris, where he studied the veterinary art. He has served a number of terms in the Legislature of Ohio, and two in Congress. Whatever he has put his hand to, he has done it with his whole might and main. He it was who aided Judge Chase, placing him for the first time in the Senate.

Mr. Townsend is an indefatigable student in agriculture and an eminently practical man going into the fields and putting his own hand to the plow and spade, or attending the animal feeding care, and yet is also a bookman, and has one of the most valuable scientific libraries in the country. He has proved himself a successful farmer, was the first to introduce into Ohio the Leicester breed of sheep, and made it a profitable enterprise. Such an institution as an Agricultural College has been the idea of his life, and he has partitioned and worked for its establishment during many years. He is now one of the leading men of the institution, and the best for his own department.

The Agricultural Course is intended to run three seasons three terms. First Term—First Term: Agriculture, its purpose, scope and history; the farm and its arrangements; soil, and their own position and adaptation. Second Term—Field crops, tillage, for feeding, position and manure. Third Term—Drainage, irrigation, roads, buildings, fences, hedges and forests. Second Year—First Term—First growing. Second Term—The dairy and its products. Third Term—Wool and sheep husbandry. Third Year—First Term—Domestic animals, their anatomy, physiology and general management. Second Term—Diseases of animals, medical and surgical treatment. Third Term—Fruit of the farm, markets and transportation and financial results of agriculture.

THE RELIGIOUS CONVENTIONS.

Last Day of the Christian Educational Convention—Resolutions Adopted.

Opening of the Episcopal Convention—Dr. Cummins' Session.

[Condensed from the Courier-Journal.]

The action taken on Wednesday by the Educational Convention of the Christian Church, in Louisville, will be of importance to a great many persons, in that by it, measures were adopted looking to a reopening of the Kentucky University war. The following is condensed from the Courier-Journal report of the proceedings.

The Convention met and opened with prayer by President Robert Graham. I. B. Grubbs read the following report of the committee:

REPORT OF BUSINESS COMMITTEE.

View-committee to whom you assigned the duty of suggesting business for the convention submit the following:

WHEREAS, Confusion and difficulties have arisen from a want of sufficient care in framing of the legal instrument for the regulation of benevolent and educational institutions belonging to the Christian Church in the State; and

WHEREAS, A persistent effort has been made to wrest from our control the most potent documentary support of the church endowed and owned by us; and

WHEREAS, It is the part of wisdom to guard for the future the rights and interests of the Christian Church with relation to such institutions; therefore,

Resolved, That the right of control which grows necessarily out of the act of creation should be exercised over all institutions by those to whom they owe their existence; and that in case a religious body creating such institutions can not without a sacrifice of religious principle, exercise this fundamental right, it should refuse altogether to originate them.

Resolved, That the colleges and all other institutions created and endowed by "the body of the Disciples of Christ" in Kentucky, or by money given to them, should have their charters so modified as to secure perpetually to the Christian body above named the control of said institutions.

Resolved, That in order to accomplish the purpose here indicated, each curator or trustee should be a member in good standing of some one Christian church in Kentucky; and in full sympathy with the Brotherhood in the State; and that the election of the first trustees should be by delegates, as provided for in the amended charter asked for last winter; and that all subsequent elections shall be held whenever either five members of the board shall order said election, or fifty churches in the State shall demand them, the boards themselves meanwhile filling the vacancies that may occur.

Resolved, That a committee of twenty brethren be selected from various parts of the State, to whom shall be assigned the duty of promoting such legal enactments as will carry out the principles herein set forth; that said committee be empowered to meet and consult from time to time on the interest connected with their work; and that the names of those who shall serve on the committee be proposed by a special committee for that purpose by the chairman of the convention.

I. B. GRUBBS, M. E. LARD, GEO. POINDEXTER, W. L. WILLIAMS, G. G. TAYLOR, Committee.

Mr. Baker moved to take up the resolutions and consider them item by item. Adopted.

The first resolution was then presented. A discussion ensued upon it, between Messrs. Lard, Grubbs, Miller and Turner, after which the resolution was adopted.

The second resolution was argued by Messrs. Lard, Ely and S. E. Jones, affirmatively. Mr. J. W. McGarvey approved the sentiments of those gentlemen, but was not prepared to approve the resolution. He thought it was too limited in its scope.

Mr. Grubbs said the resolution referred to three institutions. Mr. McGarvey thought reference was made to but one—Kentucky University.

Mr. C. T. Worthington next obtained the floor, and uttered some very plain language. His remarks were directed wholly to the University troubles, and were very bitter.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR RESOLUTION NO. 2.

At the close of Mr. Worthington's remarks, Mr. Lard submitted the following substitute for resolution No. 2, which was adopted, with but one dissenting voice:

Resolved, That the colleges and all other institutions of learning or benevolence established by the Disciples of Christ at large in Kentucky, or by those in any district of the State, or by money given to the Disciples for these purposes, should have their charters so modified as to secure perpetually the ownership and control of said institutions to the churches by whose membership or for whose benefit such institutions were established.

Resolution No. 3 was presented item by item, and discussed by Messrs. Ely, Zinn and Gano.

The first item was adopted without discussion.

Mr. McGarvey offered a substitute for the second item.

The substitute follows the words "Brotherhood in the State," and reads as follows: "And that in case of resolutions belonging to the whole brotherhood of the State whenever fifty churches shall petition the board for the election of trustees in case of institutions belonging to a portion only of said brotherhood, when one-third of the churches interested shall so petition, and in every case when one-third of the board shall so petition, an election of trustees by messengers from the churches shall be ordered by the board."

The substitute created a general and an unlimited discussion, which consumed the entire time of the afternoon session, and was continued as the order of business for the evening session.

It was argued by Mr. John Sweeney, who thought Kentucky University should be controlled by those who had contributed to it.

Mr. Grubbs and Elder Briney opposed this view, and a recess was taken until evening.

EVENING SESSION.

The convention opened with prayer by Dr. A. Adam.

THE SUBSTITUTE ADOPTED.

The secretary again read the substitute upon which the discussion of the afternoon was made, and a vote being taken, it was adopted without a dissenting voice.

The third item was then adopted, and the resolution adopted as a whole.

THE REPORT ADOPTED AS A WHOLE.

The preamble and resolutions were then presented as a whole, and adopted by a rising vote.

The committee of five then reported the following committee of twenty-one to carry out the objects of resolution No. 4.

THE COMMITTEE OF TWENTY-ONE.

George Poindexter, E. M. Day, J. H. Vivan, C. W. Cook, W. K. Agbill, I. B. Grubbs, G. G. Taylor, John T. Frazer, J. L. Neal, S. H. King, Dr. A. Adams, John Mangin, J. B. Briney, Robert Graham, John S. Shouse, Hamilton Headley, Johnson Rogers, James S. Frank, James Waiters, Judge Whitaker, Judge Hargis. On motion, Elder I. B. Grubbs was appointed chairman of the committee.

SAYRE INSTITUTE.

Twenty-third Annual Commencement.

OVERFLOWING ATTENDANCE.

A Beautiful Success.

A gratifying evidence of the prosperity and success of the institutions of learning located in our midst, was witnessed Thursday at the Sayre Institute, where was gathered to witness the closing ceremonies of the institution for the present session, as fine an audience as ever assembled in the city on any like occasion.

The exercises were commenced by prayer, after which Regent Bowman introduced Mr. H. L. Geeslin, of Decatur, Ohio, who delivered a salutatory in Latin.

Mr. D. D. Dagan, Sherman, Texas, next delivered an oration. His subject was "Egotism as a Social Force." Though he was evidently master of his subject, he lacked a little of that fire of earnestness that would prompt an audience to listen with delight to an oration far less meretricious than his own.

C. H. Stramer, of New Cumberland, Ohio, had chosen "Hidden Truths" for the subject of his oration. He spoke at considerable length, and handled his subject very well, but for the lack of earnestness of manner the force of his remarks were not so fully felt as they would otherwise have been, yet he did not fail to receive the most respectful attention of the audience.

Mr. C. P. Williamson, of Richmond, Va., delivered an oration which met with warm encomiums. Mr. Williamson, in the course of his address, urged the careful study of nature, notwithstanding the fact that many opposed this upon the grounds that it led to infidelity.

Mr. L. T. Hable, of Somerset, Ky., delivered a very interesting oration on "Our Commercial Resources." He had evidently made himself thoroughly familiar with his subject, for he handled it in a manner that could not otherwise than demand the most hearty admiration.

Mr. B. B. Scott, of Monmouth, Oregon, had for his subject "Principle or Policy, Which?" This oration was replete with the most beautiful expressions.

The Valedictory was delivered by Mr. Edgar Brown, of Mt. Airy, Md., and was as usual, regretted by all, but fraught with youthful hope in the future, upon which the young graduates entered so auspiciously.

After the presentation of the diploma, Regent Bowman addressed the audience in regard to the condition and affairs concerning the University. He said that there were three hundred and seventy-five students in attendance this session, which was a greater number than was in attendance at any other college in the entire South, except the University of Virginia.

This announcement was received by the audience with a burst of applause, after which the audience was dismissed by Elder Tyler, of Frankfort, with a brief and appropriate prayer.

According to the regulations of the institution, the second senior scholarship was awarded to Miss Nettie McElhinny, the prize of the junior Latin class to Miss Nellie Kinkadee, that of the middle Latin class to Miss Katie Shropshire, and the prizes for perfect deportment in spelling classes to Miss Mary M. Campbell and Miss Emma J. French.

A closing prayer was read by Miss Frankie Bond, of Lawrenceburg, Ky. Miss Bond entitled her remarks "Love—The Heart." The prayer was a very fine one, and so was the reading thereof.

Miss Carrie Mitchell, a fair flower from Mount Sterling, read a right earnest paper, entitled "A Mission of Love." Miss Mitchell's reading was so convincing that she won the approval of the audience, and she was well complimented by the ladies.

Miss Emily Stanger, of this city, and by the way a young lady of whose beauty and talent Lexington may well be proud—read an essay, entitled "As Children Gathered Pebbles on the Beach." Her subject was a very timely one, and she read it with a clearness and force that was very commendable.

Miss Mary Northcutt, of Cythiana, read an interesting paper, entitled "Little Things Make Up Life." Her subject was a very timely one, and she read it with a clearness and force that was very commendable.

not permit particular reference to the many evidences presented of very careful training. The following are the names of the young ladies who treated the audience to either vocal or instrumental music: Misses Taylor, Northcutt, Collier, Little, Toof, Bond, McGarvey, Little, Myers, Adams, Coleman, Cardwell, Mitchell, Handy, Kuhns, Cokeram Withers.

A better idea can be obtained from these of the mental training received by the pupils than in any other way. It is quite evident that on the whole the essays of the graduating class at Hooper College this year were of a high order, and sparkling productions as they were for their age. It must be charged, however, that this is due to a deficiency of ability on the part of the writers.

President Graham, in referring to the essays, laid special stress on the fact that no aid was rendered in their preparation. The responsibility of the student alone in the manner indicated may or may not be a proper subject for congratulation. At any rate it furnishes an explanation of the state of things referred to.

Hilbert it has been the custom at this institution to note the student late even a spirit of friendly rivalry. This has been broken through in this year, and of course some dissatisfaction resulted. Especially in the case of some of the essays, all meritorious in their way, is it a hard matter to render decisions that will be generally approved. In fact, unless the critic in such a case has a wide range of reading, it is almost impossible to find a standard by which to measure such matters, he is a little more apt to be wrong than right. But to the essays.

The first was by Miss Frankie Bond, of Lawrenceburg, Ky. Miss Bond entitled her remarks "Love—The Heart." The essay was a very fine one, and so was the reading thereof.

LEXINGTON, KENTUCKY: SUNDAY, JUNE 13, 1875.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES.

For Governor, Hon. JAS. B. MCCREARY, of Madison.

For Lieutenant-Governor, J. C. UNDERWOOD, of Warren.

For Auditor, D. HOWARD SMITH, of Owen.

For Treasurer, JAMES W. TAYLOR, of Franklin.

Superintendent Public Instruction, H. A. M. HENDERSON, of Bourbon.

For Attorney-General, THOMAS E. MOSS, of McCracken.

For Register, T. D. MARCUM, of Lawrence.

For the Legislature, RICHARD A. SPURR, of Fayette.

The citizens of Lexington ought to act promptly on the appeal of the destitute people of the mountain counties. While we talk they starve. Let those who have sought to give to the Mayor, who will doubtless act as agent for the sufferers, and let food be sent to the starving people as soon as possible. Make your contributions to-day, and hold your public meeting next week. Immediate assistance is absolutely demanded for the preservation of human life, and it ought not to be delayed.

The Ohio Republicans introduced into their compendium of Republicanism the following article of faith in regard to finance: "We are in favor of that policy of finance which, without the slightest shock to business or trade, will ultimately equalize the purchasing capacity of the coin and paper dollar." Commenting upon this, the New York Times says: "We do not see how this resolution can cost the Republican party any votes, and we do not see how it can well gain any." Nothing could better illustrate the want of positive principles for the guidance of the Republican party of Ohio. They are in a quandary as to whether they should endorse the Pendletonian greenback theory or President Grant's specie resumption foolishness; and as they cannot make a choice, either through ignorance or fear, they adopt this negative abstraction. Unless we mistake the temper of the Ohio Republicans, this temporizing shock to business and vital interest to the prosperity of the country will cost the party many votes this fall, and give the State to the Democracy by an increased majority.

The Secretary of Indian Affairs does not appear to have been successful in his palaver with the Indians of the Black Hills reservation. Since the report has gained currency that that favored region is gold producing, the adventurous spirits who are eager to make fortunes all at once, and risk their lives in the effort, want to go to the Black Hills. Up to this, the Government has done its best to keep them back and preserve the treaty with the Indians. But this cannot last very long. The whites will get into the Black Hills country in spite of fate, and if the Indians will not let them come and go in peace, there will be some old-fashioned scalp hunting once more, and an opportunity for the development of another generation of Nicks of the Woods, Backskin Joes and Buffalo Jims, and such cunning Indian hunters. The Government recognizes this as inevitable, and hence the invitation to the Indian chiefs of the Nebraska agencies to a pow-wow with the Great Father. They were offered money for the surrender of the Black Hills hunting ground, and the promise of another reservation, which offer was refused, and they have returned to their homes dissatisfied. The result will be a desultory Indian warfare or another Modoc campaign.

On Monday, Hon. Jas. B. McCrary commenced in earnest the work of the campaign in this State, making his first speech at Hartford, in Ohio county. He will do his best to roll up a big Democratic majority in August. From now until the election there are two working months, and in that time every thing should be done that Democrats can do to second Col. McCrary's efforts, and give to Republicanism in this State its quietus.

Red Cloud, one of the Indian chiefs invited to Washington, wore a faultless linen shirt, a well-fitting vest, and fashionable cut broadcloth coat. His dress betrays no further resemblance to that of a white man.

THE UNIVERSITY COMPROMISE.

The Report of the Committee. The following is the report of the committee for which Curator Sloan's resolutions were adopted as a substitute: Your committee, to whom was referred so much of the Regent's report as pertains to the endowment of the Bible College, recommend: That measures be immediately introduced and energetically prosecuted to raise $100,000 as a permanent endowment fund of the Bible College, which shall be invested and the proceeds thereof devoted to the payment of the several professors in same. That the donors to said fund shall have the right to nominate the professors who shall fill the respective chairs in said college, or may appoint the method of making such nominations as they may deem proper and right, through any other body representing the Christian Brotherhood in Kentucky, for the confirmation of the Board of Curators. That whenever $33,000 shall have been collected the board shall proceed to fill the chair of _____ when over a certain $33,000 shall have been collected they shall fill the chair of _____ and when the remaining $33,000 shall have been collected they shall fill the chair of _____. That the Bible College of Kentucky University should be placed upon a firm foundation, and be sustained under any circumstances that may arise. In this view we recommend that the vacancy caused by the election of Robert Graham, and the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Professor Everest be filled by John W. McGarvey, and that measures be immediately inaugurated and energetically prosecuted to raise $100,000 as permanent endowment fund for the Bible College. It is further recommended that when any vacancy occurs in any chair in the Bible College from death, resignation or otherwise, or any new chair therein to be filled, that the Board of Trustees of the Kentucky Christian Educational Society shall nominate for the vacancy or new chair to be filled, and that the Board of Curators shall, by resolution, spread upon its records and pledge itself to elect to the vacancy or to the new chair to be filled the person or persons so nominated.

Consumptives, Take Notice. Every moment of delay makes your cure more hopeless, and much depends on the judicious choice of a remedy. The amount of testimony in favor of Dr. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup as a cure for consumption far exceeds all that can be brought to support the pretensions of any other medicine. Dr. Schenck's Almond, containing the certificates of many persons of the highest respectability, who have been restored to health, after being pronounced incurable by physicians of acknowledged ability. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup alone has cured many, as these evidences will show, but the cure is often protracted by the employment of two other remedies which Dr. Schenck provides for the purpose. These additional remedies are Schenck's Sea-Weed Tonic and Mandrake Pills. By the timely use of these medicines, according to directions, Dr. Schenck certifies that most any case of Consumption may be cured. Dr. Schenck is professionally at all principal offices, corner Sixth and Arch sts., Philadelphia, every Monday, where all letters for advice must be addressed.

A Milwaukee boy has swallowed half a dozen steel buttons, and his mother doesn't know how to search for him when he is out on the street playing with those Clackerson boys. She just brings a message to the doctor and he flies to it like a needle to the pole. A Milwaukee girl, aged twelve, asked a lad of 15 to elope with her, because she had read in a newspaper that in Ireland girls were married at 11.

GLEN FLORA.

The following testimonial, signed by so many of the prominent citizens of Waukegan, Ill., shows clearly the regard in which Glen Flora Mineral Water is held by those who know where they speak:

Waukegan, Ill., Feb. 1, 1875. We, the undersigned, citizens of Waukegan, Illinois, having been close observers of the effects of the GLEN FLORA MINERAL WATER on ourselves and others, take great pleasure in recommending its use to the public. We believe the discovery of this spring to be among the greatest blessings of the age. In all the health-restoring qualities we regard them the equal of any Mineral Springs in the world. We are personally acquainted with a large number of the persons whose certificates and testimonials are presented, and can say they are entitled to the greatest credit and respect. Many of the cures performed are within our personal knowledge. John L. Turner, County Judge. W. H. Ellis, County Clerk. W. J. Lucas, Clerk Circuit Court. G. O. Buell, Sheriff Lake County. W. H. Wenden, Mayor of Waukegan. Daniel Brewer, City Clerk. R. H. Flinn, City Treasurer. Charles F. Ward, Cashier, First National Bank, Waukegan. S. L. Bradbury, Editor Lake County Patriot. A. J. Bodeget, Agent C. & N. W. R. R. C. A. Partridge, Editor Waukegan Gazette.

If you are an invalid, from any cause, write to C. G. & R. H. Park, Waukegan, Ill., and obtain a circular, free, giving all the facts about these wonderful Springs. Messrs. Bodeget & Wood, Lexington, General Wholesale Agents, call and get a circular, and learn all about it.

AMENDMENT FIRST. Strike out all after the word "reimburse," and insert: That the Bible College of Kentucky University should be placed upon a firm foundation, and be sustained under any circumstances that may arise. In this view we recommend that the vacancy caused by the election of Robert Graham, and the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Professor Everest be filled by John W. McGarvey, and that measures be immediately inaugurated and energetically prosecuted to raise $100,000 as permanent endowment fund for the Bible College. It is further recommended that when any vacancy occurs in any chair in the Bible College from death, resignation or otherwise, or any new chair therein to be filled, that the Board of Trustees of the Kentucky Christian Educational Society shall nominate for the vacancy or new chair to be filled, and that the Board of Curators shall, by resolution, spread upon its records and pledge itself to elect to the vacancy or to the new chair to be filled the person or persons so nominated.

The Westminster Review.

The Westminster Review, for April, has been republished by The Leonard Scott Publishing Co., 41 Barclay Street, New York. We give below a sketch of the articles.

1. "Our Colonial Empire." A description of the future relations of England and her colonies. The arguments in favor of separation are contrasted with the reasons for continuing in union, and Mr. Forster's plan for a more thorough confederation with the mother country is regarded with approval.

II. "The Legal Position of Women" contrasts the position held by women in the lowest and in the highest human societies, traces the links which connect this position, and notes the relief of the one which survive in the other, showing that the legal inequalities of the sexes are not so much advantages as they are disadvantages.

III. "Scottish Universities" exhibits the present condition of these institutions, and urges the necessity of many reforms.

IV. "Ouida's Novels." Some general remarks as to what a novel is, and how it should be constructed, are followed by short accounts, illustrated by extracts, of several of Ouida's novels.

V. "Rousseau's Travels in India." A very interesting account of a visit to several native courts, which has been recently brought into prominent notice by the visit of the Prince of Wales.

VI. "Free-Will and Christianity" discusses Free-Will both under the theological and scientific point of view, and comes to the conclusion that some better basis must be found for orthodoxy.

VII. "The Civil Service." An account of the duties of subordinate public employes, with suggestions for a reorganization of the public departments.

"Contemporary Literature" follows, as full as usual of short notices of new books.

The periodicals reprinted by The Leonard Scott Publishing Co., (41 Barclay Street, N. Y.) are as follows: The London Quarterly, Edinburgh Review, and British Quarterly Review, and Blackwood's Magazine. Price, $4 a year for any one, or only $15 for all, and the postage is prepaid by the Publishers.

MR. POTS LOOKING FOR A LIGHT.

The Most Astonishing Circumstances that ever Came Under His Notice.

From the Green Mountain Freeman.

One night during the recent troubles in the Pennsylvania coal regions, Judge Potts' brother, Thomas, a Westchester, and British Quarterly Review, and Blackwood's Magazine.

That's certainly very extraordinary! Most 'astounding' circumstances ever came under my observation. Don't you 'count' for it?

It occurred to him that perhaps he might smash the lamp with an umbrella. Seizing the weapon he went up to the lamp and aimed a terrible blow at the light, he brought the umbrella down. He missed, and smashed his Sunday hat into chaos. He took his gun again, and caught the umbrella in the lamp overhead, bringing it down with a crash. Then he tried a third time, and plunged the barrel of the revolver through the mirror, smashing it to atoms.

"That's certainly very extraordinary! Most 'astounding' circumstances ever came under my observation. Don't you 'count' for it?"

Then Potts took off his hat to scratch his head, in the hope that he might scare up an idea, and the truth flashed upon him. Gazing at the lamp for a moment, until he drank in a full conception of the trouble it had caused him, he suddenly smashed it down on the floor in a rage and extinguished it after covering up the remains with grease. Then he went to bed, and in the morning Mrs. Potts informed him that one of those horrible miners had broken through the house the night before, and left a lamp with a lamp. Potts turned

Don't Like Politics. The Ashland Lodge of Good Templars in this city do not like the idea of the temperance or prohibition men putting up a candidate for the Presidency, whether it be Gen. Green Clay Smith or any other man.

The Fine Monument. Designed and executed by M. Pruden, for Urbana, Ohio, can be seen for a few days at Pruden's marble works, west Main street, near Broadway.

PERSONAL. Mr. Lewis Pigg, an old resident of Lexington, who has been absent from the city since 1851, is on a visit to relatives in this city.

The demand for copies of the Press containing the will of the late Mrs. John B. Johnson having been greater than the supply, we reproduce the document in this issue for the benefit of those who could not obtain copies yesterday.

Rev. Jas. G. Perkins, of this city will deliver a temperance lecture at Mt. Eden Church, at Spears' post office, next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The Good Templars of Lexington have been invited to attend.

At this announcement there was a prolonged whistle and murmur of surprise on the part of the spectators. With our manufacturing industries once more upon a straggling basis, we shall not have to wait long before the beneficial effect will be felt on the commercial and other interests of the State.

An Imposing Funeral. The funeral of H. A. Ridgley took place yesterday from Christ Church, Episcopal. It was very largely attended.

Very Unfortunate. The death of Mr. H. A. Ridgley has brought to light one or two facts which make his demise at this time peculiarly unfortunate for his family in a financial point of view.

A SUGGESTION. How Hard Times Can be Made Better. The recent great sale of dry goods in New York and the impetus which it seems to have given to trade, has set some of the old heads thinking, and now it seems probable that there will be more auctions of a similar character.

A writer in the Philadelphia Press thus states the case and makes a suggestion with a kernel in it: HOW TO REVIVE TRADE—A NEW THEORY.

Beyond question, the most interesting business event of the day, is the largest auction sale of cotton goods ever held in the United States, to which repeated reference has heretofore been made in the Ledger. It was by no means a New York affair, as the whole country literally took an interest in it.

What is needed on all hands, in the present condition of the country, is to reduce our production by stimulating consumption. These great auction sales to-day are a recognition of that policy by some of the New England mills, and as stated yesterday, the example promises to be contagious, for, on Thursday, the entire line of the products of the Ameskeag Manufacturing Company and of the Stark and Langdon mills are to be thrown on the market in the same way.

Now why cannot this philosophy be applied to our local merchants? In a degree it would doubtless work beneficially. It is better to sell at a reduced price while articles are saleable, than to hold on to them until they go for next to nothing.

Very Unfortunate. The death of Mr. H. A. Ridgley has brought to light one or two facts which make his demise at this time peculiarly unfortunate for his family in a financial point of view.

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT Of the Late Mrs. John B. Johnson. LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 10th, 1873. [A.] I, Elizabeth M. Johnson, think it proper and right, being in good health, that I should settle up all my business, as we know not what one day may bring before us.

I will give to my dear daughter Betty $1,000, $500 to each. I will to Mrs. Mary J. Frost $1,000. I will to Mrs. Margaret A. Hicks $1,000. I will to Mrs. George Lilly $2,000. I will to Mrs. George Lilly, Jr., $1,000. I will to Mrs. George Lilly, Jr., $1,000. I will to Mrs. George Lilly, Jr., $1,000.

My friend Major Thomas, please forgive me for troubling you so much, I have in your hands to attend to for my loved ones, my business and my health you will do right.

I hereby release my son, Robert F. Johnson, from the mortgage I hold for $8,000 against him. I give my frame house on North Broadway from the mortgage, free from the control of my husband.

The testatrix, Elizabeth M. Johnson, this day acknowledge in our presence that the first of the foregoing instruments on pages 2, 3, 4 and 5 of this will, and her seal and signature published by her as her last will and testament, and that the second on pages 2, 3, 4 and 5 of this will, and her seal and signature published by her as a codicil thereto, and that she did sign, seal and subscribe them both in her presence and at her request after the reading of four paragraphs and part of two other paragraphs and the interlineation of the words "both" and "five hundred dollars to each one" in the said will.

I give my piano to Lilly Ridgley. Elizabeth M. Johnson. Attest: B. G. THOMAS, THOMAS BRADLEY. April 15th, 1876.

I hereby make and declare this my codicil to the foregoing will. I hereby revoke so much of the foregoing will as by this house and lot on South Mulberry street is given to John F. Frost, and now give the same to Moselle Johnson, the daughter of my son, Robert F. Johnson.

I, E. M. Johnson, hereby revoke and annul so much of my will now in the hands of B. G. Thomas as gives to Margaret A. Lilly my residence on the corner of Mulberry and Fifth streets, my rockaway and horse and cows, and all my household furniture, and now hereby give all the same property, real and personal, to my son Robert F. Johnson.

[Extract from the Lexington, Kentucky, Gazette, of January 3d, 1874.]

KENTUCKY UNIVERSITY.

The Herald of yesterday produces a paragraph said to have been taken from a file of the Gazette, wherein we said, or are reported to have said, as follows:

"He (Regent Bowman) has gotten along most admirably so far without the counsel of any but his legal advisers, and we hope that he will contrive to pursue an independent course. If he ever consents to come under the exclusive patronage of any party, sect, or denomination, his school will prove a failure, and he has got sense enough to know it, and hence has avoided this error, and is making a great success of the institution."

We do not remember the article, nor is it of sufficient consequence for us to take the trouble to hunt through our files to verify the quotation or to look up the copy to see who wrote it. A great deal has appeared in the Gazette in regard to Kentucky University, the authorship of which we would not like to make known, and more than probably this paragraph was a part of one of these. The aspect of the affairs of the University was very different when that paragraph appeared from what it has been for several years. Then, if there was not an entente cordiale between the authorities of the University and the Christian denomination, there was at least no open outbreak, and to the outside world all was as serene as a May morning. Mr. Bowman had not then torn himself away from the Christian denomination, nor been expelled from the church. But ever since these things have occurred, he has been as a root out of dry ground, so far as his usefulness to the University is concerned. His present position reminds us of the vine spoken of by old Æsop, which climbed by slow and painful degrees up the trunk and branches of an oak tree, till finally it reached beyond the utmost boughs, and was so elated as to entirely lose its head, and determined to tear itself away from its supports and from the earth, from which it drew its sustenance. Such conceit and egotism can have but one result, and as his regency must perish, he endeavors to drag down the University with him in his fall. Give him the entire control of the University and any amount of endowment, and he could not run the institution for lack of students. These must come from the Christian denomination, and those people will have nothing to do with him or any institution with which he is connected. What he did for the University was done as a member of a certain church and for a certain purpose, and being no longer a member of that church, he is nothing more than a private individual, and if not an obscure one, yet with a notoriety which few men envy him. So far as his usefulness to the University is concerned, he is a dead cock in the pit. He could not now raise a dollar in Kentucky towards the endowment, and if he desires to contribute toward the education of the rising generation, as was often his boast, the best thing he can do is to go back to Mercer county, where a most cordial welcome will doubtless be extended to him for his former services to his native town and county, and where it was freely prophesied when he first came over here, that we "would be devilish glad to get rid of him before he was done with us;" and his former brethren here are in sackcloth and ashes because they did not hearken to the advice of these Mercer county prophets, who knew their man from his cradle, and far better than they did. He has made enemies of the whole Christian denomination and gained none to make up the loss; for apostacies of this kind may have flatterers but no followers. The only interest we feel in this matter is one of a public nature. We dislike to see what could become a great and useful institution, clogged and weighted down and ultimately destroyed by the baneful influence of one man. If he was out of the way, Kentucky University would become the pet institution of eighty thousand zealous religionists, who would let it lack for neither students nor endowment, but who, so long as this one obnoxious individual is connected with it, will treat it as a plague-stricken city, to be avoided as above all things abominable.
