Ira Drymon, father of Mrs. Frank G. Dickey, died of a heart attack Tuesday afternoon while playing golf at the Idle Hour Country Club in Lexington.

P.E. Requirement Out For Commerce College

The UK College of Commerce has decided to eliminate physical education as a graduation requirement.

Dr. Cecil Carpenter, dean of the College of Commerce, said Tuesday that the faculty of the college voted unanimously on the matter and submitted a recommendation to the University faculty to discontinue the requirement.

The recommendation to the faculty was submitted on May 4.

Dr. Carpenter said the faculty felt that the program was undesirable because so many of the students have had physical education courses in grammar school, high school, and the armed forces.

The UK Board of Trustees decided last semester to allow each college to decide whether or not it wanted to continue the requirement. So far the College of Commerce is the first to make the decision to eliminate the physical education program.

Up to that time all University students unless otherwise excused had to have two credits in physical education in order to graduate.

Students previously excused from the requirement included veterans who had had three or more months of military service; students who had successfully completed two semesters of physical education at another college or university; students who entered the University with a junior standing or above, or following their twenty-fifth birthday; and those students excused for medical reasons.

The college of commerce will now increase each curriculum by two credit hours. Up to two credit hours of the service courses in physical education will be permitted as electives upon the approval of the student's advisor.

Dr. Don Seaton, head of the Department of Physical Education, was out of town on a class trip and not available for comment.

Dickey Praises Land-Grant Act

"And there was light."

These words, quoted from the Bible, were used by Dr. Frank G. Dickey, president of the University, in his speech, Monday during the centennial observance of the signing of the Morrill Act.

This land-grant college act provided land and financial support for the founding of 68 colleges, including the University.

Mr. Floyd I. Fairman, a member of the Boy Scouts Regional Committee, presented the University a certificate of appreciation from the Boy Scouts of America "for the outstanding cooperation and help which the University has given the Scouting movement over the years."

Dr. Dickey pointed out that the passage of the Morrill Act was the light, or inspiration by which men were able to provide higher education to more people at a lower cost.

"Continuance of this philosophy of a low-cost education available to Americans from all walks of life depends on securing support to sustain programs established during the first 100 years of the land-grant movement," Dr. Dickey said.

The president cited the economist, John K. Galbraith, saying America has had the tendency to over-invest in things and under-invest in people.

Dr. Dickey said the 50 states have invested only one-tenth as much in their state institutions of higher learning as they have in highways.

"No responsible educational leader questions the social and economic advantages of highways," he said, "but, unfortunately, this disparity of the long prolonged under-investment in trained intelligence has led to an acute necessity for increased financial support today."

There is evidence, Dr. Dickey said, that America will rally to the needs of higher education, which will amount to a total bill of about nine billion dollars by 1970 if some six million college and university students are to be educated.

Dr. Dickey predicted that disappearance of the public apathy about higher education may be the revolution characterizing the second 100 years of the land-grant movement.

Today, these institutions en-

TRAFFIC COP GETS SHELTER

UK will have the first guard house on a Kentucky college campus within the next two or three weeks.

The skeleton looking structure which has caused so much inconvenience and traffic congestion on the corner of the Rose Street entrance to the University will be a concrete and glass shelter from which guard Clyde O. Wright will direct and check automobiles entering the campus.

The guard house is being constructed in the middle of a planned two-way approach to the campus just opposite Clifton Avenue. Lighted signal posts will be located at both ends of the guard house.

"The present inconvenience and traffic bottleneck will continue around the construction until the new street approach is completed," the construction foreman said.

This "guard house" is located on the corner of the Rose St. entrance to the University. The cement and glass structure was built for guard Clyde O. Wright, who directs and checks cars entering the campus.

Library Transfer Tedious Procedure

By Dick Wilson, Kernel Staff Writer

"This fall will be the most confused and difficult time we have ever experienced in providing library services here at UK," says Dr. Lawrence S. Thompson, director of University libraries.

Dr. Thompson's comment came in reference to the transfer of books from the Margaret I. King Library into the new $2,000,000 addition.

Since June volumes have been shifted into the new addition to allow for remodeling of the old building. This has brought about numerous complications, the greatest of which has been partial inaccessibility to research material. It was cited, however, that no part of the library has been unavailable at all times. Furthermore, students will have to wait no longer than forty-eight hours for any desired book.

Completion of the transition is set for January. At this time it is expected that UK will possess one of the six best medium sized University libraries in the nation.

The completed structure will consist of three sections. Another section will be one of original book-stacks on eight levels. The new addition will include six levels.

Three elevators, one of which will be exclusively for the public, as well as ramps and stairways, will make access to all parts of the building quite easy.

Many changes not found in the present system will be instituted. Five of the eight levels of original Eleven University of Kentucky professors have been granted leaves of absence during the summer session.

Three of the professors, Drs. Hill Shine, Ellis V. Brown, and Rhea A. Taylor, will be going abroad. Dr. Shine, professor of English, has gone to London, where he will study British literary periodicals.

Also going to England is Dr. Taylor, associate professor of history, who will attend the seventh Anglo-American Conference of Historians in London and will do research in the London libraries. Dr. Brown, professor of chemistry, will present a paper at the eighth International Cancer Congress in Moscow.

Dr. Thomas D. Clark, head of the Department of History, will be a participant in special studies conferences to be held at Duke University and West Virginia Wesleyan College.

Mr. Thomas P. Lewis, associate professor of law, will serve as visiting professor at the University of Chicago. Participating in the Advanced Reactor Kinetics Seminar at the University of Illinois will be Dr. Prasad Kadaba, professor of electrical engineering.

Visiting Indiana University will be Dr. George K. Brady, professor of English, and Dr. C. E. Snow, professor of anthropology. Dr. Brady attended the East-West Cultural Conference June 20-23. Dr. Snow will participate in a seminar in the National Science Foundation Institute in Bio-Anthropology for Teachers, being held July 23-Aug. 10.

Dr. Edward T. Browne, assistant professor of botany, will undertake four trips to the Mississippi embayment geological province of Kentucky to collect plant specimens.

Assistant Professor of chemistry, Dr. William D. Ehmann, will participate in the Gordon Research Conference, on the chemistry and physics of space, at the Tilton School, Tilton, N.H., July 1-7. Dr. W. L. Carr, professor of ancient languages, attended the 44th annual meeting of the American Classical League at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, June 21-23.

roll one out of every five college students, award 23 percent of all bachelor's degrees conferred, grant 25 percent of all master's degrees, and 38 percent of all doctoral degrees, Dr. Dickey said.

"Whether measured in student enrollment, off-campus instruction and technical assistance, or research of fundamental value to human welfare, land-grant institutions have made the most significant impact of any single educational movement in the history of the world," Dr. Dickey declared.

"The availability of low-cost higher education in the United States indeed is a measure of contemporary democracy," Dickey said. "It is a measure of political responsibility and of real common sense," he added.

At the meeting, "Textbook Selection and Curriculum Development" will be discussed by Ishmael Triplett, director of the Division of Textbooks and Instructional Materials, State Department of Education, and Dr. Leonard Meece of the UK College of Education.

The conference will cover other topics pertinent to the selection of school texts. "Criteria for Textbooks" is the subject of one discussion.

Consultants for that session will be Dr. Alfred Crabb, assistant professor of English, and Dr. Bennett Wall, associate professor of history.

Another session, "Choosing Textbooks for the Curriculum," will be discussed by four members of the Kentucky Bookmen's Club. Participating in the discussion will be Ray Binford, Versailles; Tome Edwards, Danville; Charles Greer, Murfreesboro, Tenn., and Curtis Shirley of Lexington.

CAT-a-log

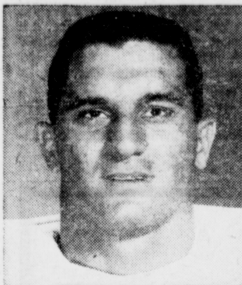

By Bill Martin

After a hard spring practice, most of Kentucky's football players are continuing to work hard this summer in order to be ready for contact work the first day of September. While most footballers are spread out across the country doing a wide variety of jobs, most of them are either doing construction work or attending summer school.

Building themselves up with construction work are Joe Blankenship, Dennis Bradford, Jim Cheatham, Howard Dunnebacke, Junior Hawthorne, Ray Heffington, Bill Jenkins, and Clarke Mayfield.

Three of the footballers are in the Army for the summer. Jerry Woolam, Gary Steward, and Vince Semary are the squad's representatives to ROTC summer camp.

RIVIERO

The rest of the team is scattered in many areas. Bob Brown and Jim Komara are working for a gas company. Clyde Richardson is working for the Lexington Water Works.

Kentucky's all-conference end, Tom Hutchinson, is at home this summer working in a tire store at New Albany, Ind. Danville's Elmer Jackson is working as a counselor at a summer recreation camp.

Clark Maples is building up his body and keeping in shape by working as a farm hand on his father's farm at Murfreesboro, Tenn. Danny Riveiro is working as a relief district circulation manager for the Miami, Fla., News.

Tommy Simpson of Lebanon is working at the Dixie Cup plant here. Jesse Grant is a laborer for Savage Lumber Company. Denny Caldwell is employed by the Louisville Sash and Door Company.

Four basketballers expected to attend the University on basketball scholarships turned in credible performances in the recent two-game Kentucky-Indiana all-star series. All-stater Larry Conley from Ashland was the most impressive of the Wildcats to be as he scored a game high 27 in the opener and came back to add 14 points in the second test.

Mickey Gibson, from Hazard, scored a total of 20 points in the two games and did a lot of rebounding for the Blue Grass team. Virgie's Tommy Castle left something to be desired in the point production department, but played a terrific second-half floor game in the first contest that almost brought the Kentuckians victory after falling far behind the Hoosiers.

Tom Kron, UK's lone acquisition from Indiana, played both games and gave an indication he will be of help to UK.

Indiana withstood a determined Kentucky rally to win the first game in Louisville, 88-82, and Kentucky came back to stage a 70-68 upset in Indianapolis.

The last three Kentucky Derbys have been won by out of state horses.

Coach L. L. Martin Awards Letters To Six UK Golfers

Six varsity team members, five freshmen and a team manager have been recommended for golf letters and numerals by Coach L. L. Martin.

The varsity lettermen include Dave Butler of Paintsville, Jack Crutcher of Louisville, Jim Gracey of Marion, Ohio, Don Heilman of Frankfort, Chuck Kirk of Maysville, and Juddy Knight of Danville. Team manager Bert Cox also was awarded a monogram.

Freshmen making the numeral list are Jim Doctor and Jim Smith of Louisville, Dickie Hite of Lexington, Harold Hoskins of Danville, and Don Rogers of Short Hills, N.J.

The Wildcat varsity golf team posted a 15-7 record this spring with Co-captains Butler and Crutcher leading the way. Butler posted a 73.3 average for the year and Crutcher a 74.8 mark.

The freshmen did not play a counting schedule but had an unofficial card.

Horse Show Opens 26th Year Sunday

The Lexington Junior League Horse Show opens a seven day meeting Sunday at the Lexington Trotting Track.

The Horse Show is entering its 26th year and is now the largest outdoor horse show in America.

There will be 40 stake events and 100 classes which will include all types of show horse entries. There will be $33,350 in prizes awarded during the show.

The matinee performances will be every day at 1 p.m. except Friday, July 13, when there will be no performance. The afternoon shows starting Sunday and running through Thursday will be for the hunter. Saturday afternoon's show will be for equitation, harness horse, and regular saddle horse classes.

The evening performances begin Monday night and run through Saturday. They start at 7:30 p.m.

General admission seats are available for all performances at $1 per person.

bookstacks along with all levels of the addition will be open stacks.

This means that all students will have access to books shelved on these levels. In the past, only graduate students and professors have been extended this privilege.

The top three levels will be reserved for rare books, manuscripts, government documents, and books in progress.

An improved lighting system will be another innovation of the completed library plant. Heating and ventilation systems will also be improved. This will include a complete air-conditioning system for the addition as well as the old building. Also present in the new addition will be a rare-book room and areas for special collections.

Perhaps of greatest interest to students is the planned revision of library operating hours. The new schedule, which will not go into effect before January, calls for the library to remain open until 12 p.m. Monday through Sunday inclusive.

The opening hour will be 8 a.m. daily with the exception of Sunday when the building will open at 2 p.m. The increased operating hours will be mainly for students conducting research.

Journalism Seminar Held In Frankfort

Dr. William M. Moore, associate professor of journalism, and Mr. Victor Portmann, assistant professor of journalism, recently attended a seminar for political and editorial writers throughout Kentucky held in the House Chamber of the Capitol in Frankfort.

The seminar pointed up the responsibility of the state's journalists to provide information which is helpful to both the state and the public.

Lt. Gov. Wilson Wyatt cited the benefits of the Spindletop Research Center and Kentucky's record of average income increase as examples of results attained by favorable information programs.

Mr. Wyatt stated the Spindletop

Research Center will produce fantastic benefits which will come after the end of the administration which was courageous enough to launch the project.

In mentioning the increase in average income, he pointed out that Kentucky ranked second only to Pennsylvania among states bordering the Ohio River in increase in average income in 1961. The national average income increase for the period was three percent while Kentucky averaged 7.9 percent.

Sharks Take Test

HONOLULU (AP)—A shipment of Hawaii's black tip and gray sharks have been sent to Australia for a taste test.

"We have our fingers crossed," said Michio Takata, head of the state Fish and Game Division. If the sharks pass their exams, Hawaii may have a new industry.

Meat of the school shark is popular in Victoria, Australia, where it is served as "white filets."

Hawaii fishermen hope to become shark meat exporters, improving the islands' lagging fishing industry and decreasing the local shark population.

Veterans and War Orphans

Those veterans and war orphans who have not signed up for the June training period please report to the veterans' office, Room 204 in the Administration Building, as soon as possible.

"Keeping Up-To-Date in Business Education" is the theme of the annual conference on Business and Economic Education to be held July 12-13 at the Student Union Building.
