SIX STAGES OF A PROJECT

Because there are so many projects underway in the Library, someone recently suggested to me that I share the six stages of a project with you. They are:

1. Elation
2. Confusion
3. Disaster
4. Search for the guilty
5. Publishment of the innocent
6. Distinction for those not involved

LEXINGTON PUBLIC LIBRARY COLLECTION

Special Collections is purchasing a collection of around 4,000 early to mid 19th century books from the Lexington Public Library. The collection is composed mostly of history and literature and, as a collection, is a good example of a typical 19th century humanities library. The collection itself will be here sometime in June and will be housed in Special Collections. A bibliographical list of the collection is available now in Special.
