Letters To The Editor

Dear Sir or Madam: Tragedy is about to strike our campus. A well-nigh unreportable calamity is about to take place, and I grieve that I must be the bearer of these ill tidings. The catastrophe of which I speak is this: namely, I am about to leave. As the semester draws to the close, I realize more clearly that my task here is in vain. You have turned a deaf ear upon me, students, and paid no heed to my message. Don't get the idea that I do not have faith that all things are possible, even your reform; it's just that I don't think for one single instant that anything could reform you. Yes, I must leave. The very thought of you oppresses me. The campus is too much with me, late and soon. I am going to become a missionary. Other savages and barbarians are calling me, yearning for my inspiration and guidance. (Even as you yourselves, students, secretly yearned, but feared to admit it to your peers.) Before leaving, I must outline a few suggestions for your improvement, to wit: 1. No woman student shall be allowed to leave the campus without a chaperone. Appearances without one in the city are unseemly and should be stopped. 2. This students are mature persons, but of low mentality, is a fact well recognized hereabouts. For this reason, the University should see that each student gets his regular eight hours sleep, by a careful check each night in all dormitories, barracks, fraternity and sorority houses, etc. Roy-checked youth can too soon vanish with dissipation! Therefore, the University should see that each student gets the proper number of calories per day to maintain robust health. 3. Condonational dating must cease instantly. It seems outrageous. Any Registration Ideas?

No sooner than UK students get back from the between semesters break, they'll be faced with that traditional horror, registration. At the time for a student to join the line-up at the armory or union, he hates to go and he hates not to go. He's torn between a dread of what's in store for him and an equally annoying worry that he may not get the classes he needs or his new schedule may twist his next few months into knots. Part of this aggravation could be cut out by a speed-up in registration. If a system could be devised to do away with most of the nuisance of filling out endless cards, things would be cleared up considerably. Perhaps a solution would be the mailing out of cards in advance, to be filled out at leisure, and then stamped when the tuition was paid, before classification. Possibly a help would be the filling out of a card which indicated only the changes in status since the original set was made out. Pre-classification is more harmful than helpful, since it just extends a two-day confusion into a confusion of a week or ten days, thereby further belaboring instructors busy grading term papers and the like. But some workable relief to the situation could be arranged, if a student group brought ideas and plans to the registrar for discussion. The logical group to organize such a program would be the Student Government Association, but it has taken no steps toward improving the registration situation. The National Student Association, to which $250 of the students' money goes each year, should be helpful in providing information on other university registration systems. SGA has not been an NSA member long enough to have received such help. The present registration system at the University is efficient and well-planned, but it's hard on the students. Perhaps in going through the old routine once more the first week in February, some ideas on the matter will occur to some students while waiting in line. If so, and if SGA gathers some plans from other schools, maybe registration would be easier for everybody in the future.

Kappa Sigma fraternity at Indiana University has a new mascot. She was ordered sight unseen by mail. The boys named her Chanel No. 5. Chanel is a so-called "de-skunked" pet skunk. She eats raw eggs, dog biscuits, and human fingers, according to the Kappa Sig's official skunk trainer. Despite the fact that Chanel is guaranteed safe, she has created several disturbances by making an unexpected appearance with her tail raised on high. If you ever get that feeling that you are dumb and will never get out of school, just remember this: Don't worry if your job is small. And your rewards are few; Remember that the mighty oak Was once a nut like you.—The Clemson Tiger, Clemson A&M. The Daily Texan office at the University of Texas was visited by a mouse individual recently who informed the staff that his pastor had preached a sermon in which he stated that there were 726 different sins. Ever since that fateful day he has been receiving phone calls from curious students who think they might be missing a few of them. A student from State College in Pennsylvania was the first hunter of the season to kill a deer. It weighed 175 pounds, too. Trouble is, he didn't get to keep the buck and it cost him $100 besides. (He ran over the poor deer, banged up his car, and then the Salvation Army walked off with the meat.) The minister called at the Jones home on Sunday afternoon, and little Willie answered the doorbell. "Pa isn't home," he announced. "He went over to the country club." New Library Hours On Trial

For the convenience of the students, the library has been staying open recently until 10:30 p.m. This was done in response to student complaints that University men and town students, who don't have to comply with dormitory hours, could use extra library time. The library is keeping statistics to see how many students actually use the allotted time, and so far not many have been taking advantage of it. If more people don't use the extra half-hour, the library will go back to its old hours when the trial period is up in February. If the students want it, now's the time to show it. If more don't show a response, the library is justified in returning to the previous schedule, and it can only be thanked for trying out the new hours.

The Spice Of Life

We have no way of knowing what our fathers of knowledge think about the situation—but our hearts have turned to love instead of learning. Oh, well, who wouldn't rather have a couple of parties into the weekend instead of cramming for exams?

Ann Kirtley would have been mighty unhappy if Bobby Hatchett hadn't asked her to see Words and Music.

Harold Hunt and Joan Daniels look happier every time we see them. Could we make a prediction? Who was the good-looking boy who was busting Mary Alice Mayer at Joyland last Saturday night?

The stagline gave Dot Wilkinson an extra big rush at the Theta cabaret party.

Bain Foster is leading a tough life. He can't choose between D. Marion Stone and Lucille Mills.

Luke and Mack were relighting old flames at the Alpha Xi open house. Guess the fact that they are both pinned to other people doesn't make any difference.

Bodding romance: Spencer McClure and Walter Underwood.

Rosemary Dummit made quite a hit on the radio program, "Brides to Be."

Furnip Fryer is trying to get the news to ask Arden Milam for a date. That's not the way we heard it!

Pezy Buckley and John Heidt are riding a bumpy roller coaster of romance. Pinned, uncrushed, dastin' hatin'.

Jim Johnston has a big crush on Betty Ann Stoll.

By the way, Betty Cowgill, how was Missy's birthday cake? Combination of the week: Mary Lou Hatfield and George Tye.

Utkins Payne broke quite a few campus hearts when he got pinned to Phyllis Kay.

Diplomacy: Ann Tracy and Mike Carmichael.

Constant lozomies: Becky Font and Matt Downer; Betty Martin and Bob McDaniel; Mary Lou Mitz and Kenneth Flowers; Evelyn Baker and Dick Crafton.

Anybody want to make some guesses on the Critchlow-Hamcock affair? We mean the outcome, of course!

Betty Thomas almost walked out on Gordon Menney at the SX Little Inn party. Where's the old charm, Gordon?

Dick Martin and Alva Terry went to Mississippi for the weekend and decided to stay a week. Must be the Southern hospitality.

What's Joan Graham going to do without "P. J." Joe Hall? He's graduating!

Another diploma hopeful, George Martin, says he is going to make the best of the few remaining happy college days.

Thanks, Joe Gannon, for your plug in "Going Places in the Bluegrass."

Rumor is that Chuck Wilk has lost his jeweled pin. Wonder if Betty Hensley found it?

The greatest interfaith function week.

6. Social organizations and their social events must go.

7. For recreation, all students should be herded into the Student Union Ballroom once a month for taffy-pulling, popcorn, and wholesome organized games. A loudspeaker shall shout every 20 seconds: "Have a good time! Have a good time! And you will have a good time, do you hear me?"

8. The impression of youthfulness on the campus is a most evil and omnipresent danger.
Only yesterday I heard a visitor say while observing some childish joyousness, "Ah, there's youth for you!"
Ah, but not for me! You know as well as I that as mature students you must do away with such as give the impression that our campus is fraught, homecombed, with insidious youth!

9. There are many more things, but I must be off.
I depart with head humbly, meekly loved, and also pity—pity for you, students, you insouciant, morose, pusillanimous drove of sheep!

Tough Little Beard Saves Cats In Close Shave At Cleveland

By Kent Hollingsworth
All-Conference All-American, All-Over-the-Court Ralph Beard led the Wildcats to a tight 63-61 victory over Bowling Green of Ohio in a game that allowed few students to study for exams last Tuesday night. The tilt was played before a record crowd of 13,133 people in Cleveland's big arena.

Beard put the Wildcats in the lead five times during the tussle; with eight minutes remaining in the game Gene Duvall, Bowling Green reserve, dumped in a two-hander and a foul to put the Chicanos in front 53-51, but Ralph Beard came back with a one-hander at the foul circle to tie it up and a moment later he gave the Cats the lead for good with another jump shot.

Sophomore Walt Hirsch, showed he could operate under pressure, dropping in timely field goals, interesting passes, and grabbing rebounds.

Captain Alex Groza playing before the home folks from nearby Martins Ferry, turned in a fine performance but he fouled out early in the second half. Kentucky wouldn't have

Felines Face Flock Of Frays In Future

By Dudley Saunders
After taking on the DePaul Blue Demons in a return engagement in Chicago next Saturday, Kentucky's busy Wildcats swing Southward for the South Benders closed last season's games before returning to Lexington February 8 for a seven-game home stand.

UK plays Notre Dame at Louisville, Vanderbilt at Nashville, Ala. at Tusculosa, Oie Miss. at Memphis, and Bradley Tech at Chicago in that order between now and the beginning of the next semester.

Tickets for the Notre Dame game go on sale Thursday, Jan. 27, at 9 a.m. in the ticket office in Alumni Gym. Three hundred extra tickets will be sold for two dollars each.

The Bradley game in Owensboro, new 7,100-seat Memorial field house is already a sellout.

DePaul Improves
Always stronger on their home in the Midwest, and it is expected court Ray Mercer's boys have shown that they are "up" for the Kentucky great deal of improvement recent-ly.

Their latest feat being a surprise. In last year's encounter, O'Shea won 29-28 victory over Notre Dame's Groza and Beard got 23 and 19, respectively.

Gordon Gillespie, Charles Allen, and Covadarras paced the three-pronged Demon attack with 11 straight SEC games January 31, public each.

Kentucky has emerged victorious game with Vanderbilt.

Notre Dame Ticket Information

Some 300 tickets for the Kentucky-Notre Dame basketball game will go on sale Thursday, Jan. 27, at the ticket window in Alumni Gym, starting at 9 a.m.

The same number of ducats will be sold in Louisville.

All of these tickets will cost $2 and are located in the end zone of the Louisville Army.

There will be a limit of two-per-person.

"The winningest team in the nation" is another title carried by Kentucky's Wildcats last year. They won 36 games, while dropping three. Their three conquerors were Notre Dame, Temple, and the Phillips Oilers.

was Kelly, second in scoring with 241 points. Marshall, their leading scorer with 220 last year, is back along with McMullen (228), Busby (117), and Reeves (81).

Bama Dare Horse Team

Alabama's Capstone quintet provides the next competition for the Cats. They have won seven out of nine starts this year and despite loss of three of last year's regulars, they have shown enough improvement to merit the dark horse rating of the loop. Last year the Red Egyptians won 15, and lost 12.

After winning five straight, they lost to Oklahoma's Angles (44-31) and Texas (60-29) before regaining full winning ways. Sharp, last year's leading scorer with 227 points, is gone, but Schaeffer and Hamner, who got 127 and 122 respectively last year, are back and doing most of the Bama scoring.

The Cats won 41-31 and 63-33 over the Tide last year, and despite Bama's tendency to stall, shouldn't have too much trouble again this year with the Tusculosa team.

Kentucky tangles with the Johnny Rebs of Ole Miss in Memphis, February 2, for the first time since the 1942 SEC tourney, when the Cats emerged victorious, 59-32.

The Rebs have won four out of five so far, losing only to Georgia, 63-54.

Only man lost from last year's quintet which won 11 and lost 12,

Ky. Wesleyan Loses Again To Wildkittens

By Tom Spillman
The University freshman team defeated Wesleyan College's frosh in the Southside Gym in Paris, a week ago Thursday, by a score of 56-32.

The next game the charges of Coach Harry Lancaster will play will be against the Campbellville, Ky. Junior College. The time of the game is set at 9:30 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 27, in Alumni Gym, with admission set at 50 cents. It will be open to the public.

This coming tilt may well prove to be a hard fought affair. Bobby Moore, former All-State performer at Frankfort High is teamed with two former Lafayette High standouts—Lew Sharp and Burnie Meyers.

600 View Game
Approximately 600 spectators were on hand for the Paris Lions Club charity game in the Paris High gymnasium last night.

Wesleyan's Frosh defeated Wesleyan's frosh for the second time this season.

Wesleyan's Blake hit one from the corner to open the fray after almost three minutes had passed by. In rapid succession, however, Len Pearson made two fielders and Dick Swan added another to run the count to 2-2 for Kentucky.

By the middle of the first quarter the Kentucky yeartlings were ahead 12-6.

In another sudden scoring spree, the Kittens ran the count to 16-6.

At the half, the score was 28-13, with the yeartlings of UK ahead.

Big Bill Spivey, Guy Strong, and Dick Swan made the totals read 34-13 in a few minutes after the second half opened.

With only 10 minutes to go, the first-year men of UK were ahead 27 points with the score 49-19.

The last of the same saw the two clubs about equal as Wesleyan scored 13 points to Kentucky's 10.

The Kentucky freshmen were definitely off their notch form after the holidays and were who playing without the aid of three men, C. M. Newton, stellar forward, had a very severe ankle twist while at home in

Kentucky Basketeers: Cliff Barker

"For-cryin'-out-loud! Shoot these balls!" muttered Clifford Barker as line of his teammates scrambled on their hands and knees for a loose ball in scrimmage one afternoon.

His wit, his coolness under pressure, and his expert ball handling, have made Granddaddy Barker a favorite with the fans, and one of the most valuable players to ever don a Wildcat uniform.

Cliff comes from Yorktown, Ind., where he played three years as a regular on the basketball team. His senior year he led the 12 high schools in his county in scoring. That same year Jack Parkinson, later to become an All-American at Kentucky, started at guard for the Yorktown Tigers.

Cliff played baseball for four years in high school, playing his first season as a short stop, and shifting to the mound his last three years.

The Cincinnati Reds thought he was a pretty fair prospect when he won the county championship with a one hitter and a no hitter in three days.

Cliff, not the kind of guy to talk your ear off, added that Barker left arm in a cast when that happened, too.

His high school coach, Ken Stierler, who knew Adolph Rupp personally, recommended both Barker and teammate Bud Robertson, to the Kentucky mentor. The following season, it was Clifford Barker from Indiana who led the Wildcat in scoring, beating out Hill Tocco, Mel Brewer, and Jim King for the honor.

Cliff married and dropped out of school the next year, entering the Army Air Corps.

As a flight engineer on a B-17 operating from England, S/Sgt. Barker, on his fifth mission, saw his plane was shot down over Munster, Germany, and was one of the few crewmen who parachuted to safety. He was quickly picked up by the Germans and marched to an Allied prison camp.

The prisoners weren't permitted to leave the camp and few recreational facilities were allowed them. However, the Red Cross did get through some volley balls.

Here Cliff, although a clever ball handler in his freshman year, really cultivated his slight of hand artistry.

"You mean you just flipped a volley ball around eight hours a day? Didn't you play cards or something?" we asked.

"With a volley ball?" asked Cliff.

"Yes," he said.

"Back to UK in 1946

The 26 year old re-entered the University in the fall of '46 and soon showed the basketball world, he could do more with a basketball than most people could do with a million dollars.

He started three games at forward that year, hit 22 percent of his shots and scored 120 points, but found a hard time breaking into a lineup of five Kentuckians, who later composed the first team of the All-SEC honor team.

Bark appeared on the basketball diamond when warm weather came, played first base, outfield, led the team in hitting and home runs, and won two games on the mound, including a three-hit shutout over Tennessee.

Last season Cliff was a regular on the basketball team and although a low scorer, kept sharp-shooting Jim Line. All-Conference Joe Holland, and All-American Jim Jordan squirming on the bench. He hit 31 percent of his shots and scored 248 points.

Against DePaul he scored 12 of Kentucky's first 13 points while the Lemons were racking up only 11.

Great Favorite

The Old Man is always a great hit with the fans. He is probably the only player in the college ranks today, who on a fast-break play, makes a dribble behind his back, gives a little skip, flip the ball up with his fingertips for a score, and still retain an air of nonchalant characteristic of a Wall Street broker, with Homberg and stick, emerging from his automobile.

His uncanny passing ability is largely due to an expressionless face, finger-tip control, and the irritating attitude of "Ho-hum, this is all so easy."

Coach Rupp moved Barker out from forward, a cemetery for many drunks the Ball Handler, to a guard position against Bowling Green and he worked with Beard out on the front line like cops in a finely maned Swiss watch.

When Barker gets a basketball in his hands, everybody gets nervous. A Tennessee player said last year, "He'll hold it at his belt, flap his elbows a couple of times, stare off into space, and zip! it's gone."

Even his teammates get a little jumpy; Kenny Hines said, "You have to watch of Bark. If you aren't careful, he'll break your wrist."

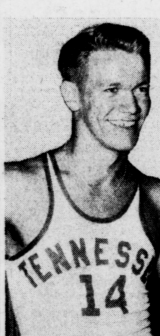

As studyard Kipling should have said:

And when the final scorer comes to write against your name, He'll write not, that you won or lost.

But what you'd do with the ball.

ARKANSAS ADDED TO CATS CARD

The Kentucky Wildcats football team will tangle with the University of Arkansas Razorbacks here at Lexington on Oct. 22, according to CAPTAIN PAUL WALTHER, Tennessee's All-American Forward, is the number one scoring threat for the Volunteers this year.

An Associated Press release from Fayetteville, Ark., last week.

The two schools have signed a two-year contract, which also calls for a game in 1950 at Fayetteville, home of the Razorbacks.

The addition of Arkansas leaves Kentucky with one more date to fill in the 1946 schedule. Rumors have it that a West Coast school will be added to the card.

Big Blue Meets Vols Next; Tech In Atlanta On Monday

The Wildcats from Kaintuck will bare their claws tomorrow night at Knoxville against their oldest South-eastern Conference foe, the Tennessee Volunteers.

In the first renewal of one of the bitterest and most historic rivalries in the South, the Cats will be looking for their 54th victory. The Vols have won 27 times.

The meeting has grown so much in popularity and importance that both teams usually regard it as the big conference game of the year.

Anything can happen in a Kentucky-Tennessee tilt, and often does. Fans are seldom surprised by an upset.

Lowery is UT Coach

Outlining the Vols for the second year is Emmett Lowery, an All-Big Ten and All-American selection at Purdue in the early 1930's, and later the Bollinger coach.

Last year Lowery took a comparatively inexperienced squad through a 25-game schedule, suffering only five defeats, three of them to Kentucky. The Vols had a 10-2 conference record during the regular schedule.

The Cats downed them twice in the regular season, 65-54 and 69-62, and in the SEC tournament, 70-47. Their other two losses were to Miami (O.) 54-51, and North Carolina, 52-43.

This year they haven't fared so well, losing three out of their first 11 starts, despite a veteran squad that includes one All-conference, All-American player.

In some games, comparative scores mean absolutely nothing. Such is the case in a Kentucky-Tennessee battle. Even when the scores were lopsided, most games have always been fast, furious, rough and memorable.

Thus far the Vols and Cats have met three common foes and in each case the outcome points definitely in Kentucky favor.

St. Johns trounced Tennessee 67-45, and the Wildcats in turn slaughtered the Brooklyns, 57-39. The Vols lost to Arkansas U. 58-55, a team the Cats clawed, 76-59. Both teams stomped Tulsa, Kentucky doing it 81-37, and the Vols, 63-38.

Vols Use Fast Break

Besides losing to St. Johns and Arkansas, the Vols also lost to St. Josephs (Philadelphia) by a 63-68 count.

Coach Lowery has been stressing more and more the importance of the fast break and once his veteran squad hits its stride it will mean trouble for everyone.

Three members of the Tennessee starting quintet are native Kentuckians. The most outstanding of these is All-American forward, Paul Walther, a 6'2" southpaw sharp-shooter from Covington. Walther was the team's leading scorer with 334 points last year and is captain this year. With three years experience at UK behind him, he is unquestionably the best best all-around man.

Hugh Jones, Wash. Wash's six-foot brother, was moved from forward to guard last year and has shown steady improvement ever since. He is fast, a ball hawk and good shot. Last year he scored 197 points. A junior, Hugh played three years of service ball before entering UT.

Playing the pivot is 5'7" Art Bur-

Generally regarded as the most improved man on the Tennessee Volunteer cage team, is HUGH JONES, the brother of Ketchuk's WAH WAH. The 6'1" junior guard has scored 132 points for an average of 12 points per game.
