NBC's Kiker questions students' new attitudes

NBC News correspondent Douglas Kiker said he is "alarmed" at the attitude of students graduating from journalism schools in the "80s.

Kiker, who works as national political correspondent for NBC's "Nightly News," said students need luck in finding jobs in television news.

"I am alarmed at what I see appears to be a growing trend among journalism students today," Kiker old about 100 journalism students and instructors yesterday at the King Alumni House.

Being a part of the Wildcat band worth all the hard work

Guest OPINION

Band members belong to this organization because the team spirit unites them together to share music and Kentucky enthusiasm with fellow Kentuckians

Perhaps the answer lies within the service of team spirit. It is the feeling that the band members experience when they join together before pregame in the Lexington Community College building to sing "My Old Kentucky Home." Maybe it's the fairs' reaction to the traditional marching "K" during the UK fight song. It could be the excitement of being able to bring the Kentucky crowd to its feet for a standing ovation, much like last year's crowd. Then again, the answer could be assimple as receiving a small compliment from an appreciative fair.

Iranian arms sale criticized

WASHINGTON — Congressional leaders yesterday brushed aside President Reagan's defense of his secret sale of arms to Iran, branding it a "mistake" that may very well have violated the law.

As two congressional committees prepared for closed-door sessions with CIA Director William Casey, Republicans and Democrats used nearly identical terms to criticize the prevident carriers.

cans and Democrats used nearly identical terms to criticize the president's actions.

Reagan met with the House Democratic and GOP leaders at the White House but had nothing further to say publicly, following a Wednesday night news conference in which he defended the sales as a "high-risk gamble" that a least gained the release of three American hostages.

Reagan's former national security adviser Robert McFarlane, who delivered a planeload of weapons to Iran, issued a statement taking responsibility for "a serious error in judgment" in not realizing that the sale would have a damaging effect on the national interest.

U.S. begins contra training

WASHINGTON — The United States, as part of its effort to get aid to the Nicaraguan guerrillas, began military training for a small group of contras at an undisclocation earlier this month, administration sources said yes-

The training got under way about two weeks ago inside the United States, following the refusal of several nations that border Nicaragua to allow training camps inside their borders, the sources said.

Senators choose new leaders

WASHINGTON — Senate Democrats, flexing their new political muscle, reinstalled Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia as majority leader yesterday and Republicans picked Bob Dole of Kansa as minority leader for the 100th Congress, which convenes Jan. 6.

That reverses the roles Byrd and Dole played in the 99th Congress and reflects the outcome of the Nov. 4 elections, which ended six years of GOP control in the Senate.

Khomeini denounces arms deal

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iran's revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini yesterday ruled out reconciliation with Washington and said any Iranian officials who seek to improve relations are "Statan-oriented."

"I never expected such things from these people," Khomeini, 86, said in a speech at his residence in north Tehran. His remarks were broadcast by Tehran radio and monitored in Nicosia.

"This is a time when they should be screaming at America. (But) they are shouting at themselves," Khomeini said in his first public comment on contacts between Washington and Tehran.

Chapman has no time to be rookie

When Rex Chapman penned his name on a UK national letter-of-in-tent, the expectations of the Wildcat faithful ran wild.

name on a UK national letter-of-intent, the expectations of the Wildcat faithful ran wild.

"Chapman could be one of the best players ever produced in the state of Kentucky," said UK coach Eddie Sutton when Chapman was signed. "In time, he could be one of the greatest players to ever play at the University of Kentucky."

But now the talk is over and it's time for the young, wide-eyed freshman to show the UK fans and coaches what he can do.

Chapman was billed by many conches as the best guard coming onto the college basketball scene last year. And because he was so highly touted after his commitment to UK, the pressure on him to succeed in his first college year will be great.

"I don't want to put any added pressure on him," Sutton said. "Everybody feels he is going to have a tremendous impact on our program, but there is a big adjustment going from high school to college ball."

Because of this adjustment to a dusketball, most freshman players are not counted on to contribute greatly to a college program right off the bat.

But with the Wildcats' situation being what it is this season, Chapman's freshman grace period may be cut a little short.

"We are all going to have to work harder every day because of the injuries to Winston (Bennett) and Cedric (Jenkins)," Chapman said.
"Derrick (Miller) and I realize that we are going to have to come in and play this year and we won't be able

No longer should the big man be a major deciding edge in a game. Where Patrick Ewing and Akeem Olajuwan once ruled the courts, the likes of Steve Alford and Kenny Smith will be just as threatening.

With the shot coming from only 19 feet, 9 inches out, it opens the lane for the little 6-foot-1 guy who has radar accuracy and can stick the "J" from 20 feet.

This new innovation should revolutionize the game, but it also leaves a hazy outlook for a dominant team.

Here at the Kentucky Kernel sports department, we decided that because only four teams will make it to the Final Four, we need only to discuss four top teams. But after further evaluation, we decided that we need a fifth team for insurance — and because five was a rounder

Lebo and Smith's backcourt wizardry could make them the best duo in the nation. Throw in freshman giant J.R. Reid, who was on everyone's No.1 high school team last year, and returning senior Joe Wolf and Smith could have the country seeing Tar Heel Blue.

Our No.3 pick, the Purdue Boilermakers, is a team that could step back into the national spolinght this season. Gene Keady returns four starters from last year's 24-8 squad, three who scored in double figures.

Junior guard Troy Lewis will be supported in the backcourt by junior Everette Stephens and freshman Troy Jones.

Even though Keady has built a front line that runs compact (6-5, 6-7, 6-9), it is a quick-paced group. Keady's team could surprise a lot of people, including Big Ten conference rival Indiana.

Centers work hard during off-season

Lock, Jenkins confident for new year

By CHRIS ALDRIDGE

Atter a much-needed year of maturity, UK centers Rob Lock and Cedric Jenkins are back.

And the two Wildcat juniors are ready to show Kentucky's opponents what a difference an off-season of hard work can make.

Jenkins, however, will have to wait awhile before he can exhibit what maturity can do for a big man.

On Nov. 3, Jenkins suffered a stress fracture of his left ankle when he came down on another player's foot during practice. He will not return to practice until December.

"Certainly, this is another setback in our preseason plans," Coach Eddie Sutton said. "We have to simply pull together and work harder."

A Dawson, Ga., native, Jenkins put in 18 points and pulled down six rebounds in UK's first intrasquad scrimmage.

Both he and Lock had mediocre rebounds in UK's first intrasquad scrimmage.

Both he and Lock had mediocre seasons last year, but a summer spent playing in Japan and a productive preseason have given the two a bright outlook for the upcoming season.

Lock, a Reedly, Calif., native, had an outstanding performance in the Wildcats' first scrimmage. The 6-10 center scored 19 points and pulled down 20 rebounds, a great imgame.

The 225-pounder worked hard during the summer to improve his strength and skills.

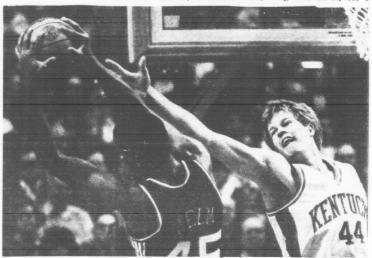

Already having the brawn, Lock set out to improve his quickness and finesse on the court. He got help from Rick Robey, the center for Kentucky's 1978 national championship squad.

from Rick Robey, the center for Kentucky's 1978 national championship squad.

"I worked with Rick for about three hours every morning." Lock said. "He taught me the things he's learned to develop at the (center) position.

"We did a lot of post work and I'm working on the things he taught me to do. Hopefully, by the time the season rolls around, I'll feel comfortable with them."

One thing Robey stressed was the importance of the hook shot and suggested that the big Californian add it to his repertoire.

And with UK's crippled front line, Lock will need to use everything he's got to help the Cats inside.

"One of my goals is to contribute to the team more than ever before," he said. "I'll have to play better than I have before and contribute daily in practice. I need to get in, battle hard and play consistent."

During UK's intrasquad scrimmages, the coaches learned that Lock had a lot to contribute to the Wildcat program.

The scrimmages, however, also uncovered Lock's Achilles' heelfouls.

In the team's first preseason scrimmage, Lock committed eight fouls. One reason for this, Sutton said, is Lock's tendency to get careless when he gets tired.

"A lot of the fouls are just careless fouls," Sutton said after the scrimmage, "But . . . he's improved immensely from last year. He's a lot better basketball player."

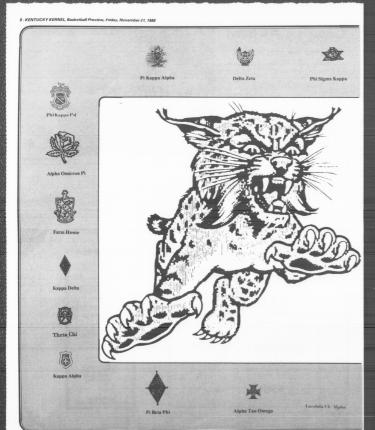

The summer jaunt to Japan gave the two centers an opportunity to improve their games.

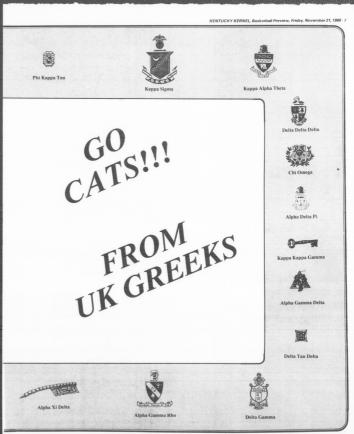

For Jenkins, the trip helped him sarpen his skills simply by giving less when he gets tired.

Junior forward Richard Madison hopes the off-season experience has prepared him to be a force for the Wildcats this season.

Time has come to shine for Wildcats' Madison

Senior Staff Writer

When Richard Madison walked on the UK campus three years ago, high praise from Wildcat fans was hot on his heels.
Everybody had something good to say. Everybody was sure he had greatness stamped all over him.
Words like "talent," "potential" and "tremendous athlete" were tossed around. Soon they became synonymous with the name Madison.
And three years later, those tags still follow him.
"He's the best athlete on the team," UK coach Eddie Sutton said."There's no doubt in my mind.
"We've got some other players who are good afthetes, but in my opinion he's the best lathete that we have."

Blackmon's best still to come

Senior guard has high expectations for Sutton system

By JIM WHITE

Eddie Sutton is playing James Blackmon's type of basketball. So the 6-foot-3 senior guard be-lieves his best season is still ahead lieves his best season is still anead of him.

Blackmon has participated in all but two games in his previous three seasons at UK. but because of the new Sutton system, he believes the Wildcats have not yet seen his best.

"In my first two years here, I didn't feel like I played up to my ability because of the system we were under," Blackmon said. "With the old system, we weren't as free to move around. You were always stationary on one side of the court and that really limited my ability."

But with Sutton, Blackmon feels right at home in the Wildcat backcourt.

"Since Coach Sutton came in, we have been playing my style of ball," he said. "We are playing a motion offense that gets everybody involved. You can do more penetrative and the said of the said."

volved. You can do more penetrat-ing and you can use your quickness to your advantage." Although the old program under Joe B. Hall wasn't exactly to Black-mon's liking, the quiet veteran still managed to roll up some impressive statistics and has contributed greatly to the Wildcat program ever since he first set foot on the UK practice

As a freshman, Blackmon played in all 34 games, starting twice, which is an impressive accomplish-ment for any first-year player, Sut-

ment for any first-year player, Sutton said.

In his next year, Blackmon participated in 29 of 31 games, starting 18 of the Wildcat outings.

Last year, in his strongest college season, Blackmon started all the games and helped anchor Sutton's three-guard attack with teammates Ed Davender and Roger Harden. He averaged 9.4 points per game and was the team's third-leading rebounder, with a 4.0 average.

The three years of experience Blackmon has under his belt also the strong process of the strong players.

Andrews contributes to Cats in ways statistics don't show

By TODD JONES

It sure is easy to tell who played well in a basketball game.
All you have to do is thumb through the sports page, find the box score and see how many points a guy scored. Easy.
But for some players, the sox scores just don't do justice.
"Most people look at what you do by how much you score and that's not the case," said UK senior Paul Andrews. "You can do other things in a game, such as defense and passing, and still have a great game.

passing, and still nave a possing game.

"But I guess it's just human nature to go to the box score and look to see how many points a player scored to determine whether he played well or not."

If that's the case, most fans probably are quick to judge Andrews.

The statistics show that the 6-foot-3 guard has not scored many points in his first three years at UK. Last season, he averaged only 1.7 a game.

season. he averaged only 1.7 a game.

But Coach Eddie Sutton said if fans are looking for points, they're missing the point.

"He may be the most solid player we have on the basketball team." Sutton said. "Fundamentally, he's as sound as anyone we have, at both ends of the court."

Now in his final year as a Wildcat, Andrews should finally get the chance to use those fundamentals on the court instead of the bench.

With the club wracked with injuries, he's expecting to see more playing time. And the time may be spent near the basket as well as out on the perimeter.

Right now, Sutton is playing his senior as both guard and swingman. Andrews played forward at Laurel County High School, but this isn't high school. This is the Southeastern Conference."

Conference.
"In SEC basketball, you have guys out there who are going to try and knock your head off," Andrews said. Keeping his head on may be the last thing Andrews has to worry about when playing inside. There are other things more related to basketball than boxing. Defense is one. "Since I've been here, I've improved my defense a great deal," Andrews said. "And since Coach Sutton stresses man-to-man defense, I've had to work hard bequise if you Sutton stresses man-to-man detense, T've had to work hard because if you don't play defense, then you're not going to play."

So his defense has improved. But what about his height? How is he going to guard a player five inches taller than he is?

Miller getting feel for Wildcat court

By C.A. DUANE BONIFER Staff Writer

It was shortly after midnight on Oct. 15 when Derrick Miller was in-troduced to UK basketball fans for the first time.

the first time
When the Georgia native stepped before the crowd of more than 12,000, he was received as if he were a senior making his final appearance before the home crowd.

"It was really nice." Miller said. "It made me appreciate the fans at the University of Kentucky and appreciate the way they take basketball. It made me say. 'Hey, this is the place! want to be.'
Miller's decision to attend UK was not an easy one. As one of the nation's top college prospects, the 6-6 guard was heavily recruited by Georgetown, DePaul, Louisville, Georgia Tech and Auburn, in addition to UK.
When Miller made his visit to UK, three things about the University and the basketball program stood out and made him decide to play basketball for Eddie Sutton. One was Sutton's love of big guards, which has spawned a total of five backcourt players in the National Basketball Association.

"He (Sutton) loves big guards and he likes to play them,' Miller said." I think Coach Sutton is the best guard coach in the country."

Another aspect of the UK program that attracted Miller was the high job placement of UK graduates in the work force.

life." But more than anything else, it was the national reputation the UK basketball program sports that attracted Miller to the Wildeats.
"Up here basketball is big," he said. "There is no other place like this — basketball is No. 1 and football is No. 2."

And Sutton is usual as excited about having his new yourd as Miller is

"He's one of the top guards coming into college basketball," the coach said. "He's a great shooter and he plays with a lot of confidence."

Miller brings a very impressive list of credentials with him to the Bluegrass state from his Savannah, Ga., high school.

During his stint at Baptist Bible School, Miller led his team to a combined record of 93-4, including a state championship last year and the private school national championship in 1985.

Miller averaged 26.5 points per game, along with 11.1 rebounds and 41 assists.

each day was a little difficult for him to adjust to at first. But once he developed a routine and learned not to let httle things upset him, "things began to fall together," he said.

Sutton said he has observed through the first four weeks of practice that Miller may have the potential for becoming one of the greatest players to don the Blue and White. Sometimes the freshman's performance has even surprised the UK coaching staff.

"He's playing better right now than we had expected," Sutton said. Miller believes that one of his greatest assets as a basketball player is his ability to hit the long jump shot. And with the advent of the three-point rule, he thinks he should especially benefit.

"The jump shot is my shot," he said. "I love to take that shot if it's there. If not, I like to drive the basket or give it off to someone else."

Sutton agreed. "He probably has

But rest assured, they won't be same immediate impact that Eddie Stuton's freshmen will have for the men's team.
"The freshmen are coming along as well as can be expected," Hall said. While Hall isn't expecting any of the freshmen to step in right away and fill the gap created by departed forwards Lesley Nichols, Karen Mosley and Shelly Miller, she has left the door open for the best player to step forward, even if that happens as well as can be expected," Hall said.

Sutton's freshmen will have for the men's team.

"The freshmen are coming along as well as can be expected." Hall said. "They're just trying to learn how things are done in college."

Because four starters return from last season's team, the Lady Kat frosh are taking their time and adjusting to the college life, both on and off the court.

"I'm just taking it one day at a time," said Miller, an Owensboro native. "The way I see it, any freshman coming in has to sit back, learn the system and not raise her expectations too high."

The Lady Kats have five freshmen, including the 5-foot-4 Miller and a walk-on, to add to last year's squad, which finished with a respectable 18-11 record and an NCAA playoff berth.

Resides Miller the newcomers are said. "If we practice hard, then it will pay off."

Hall is pleased with her staff's re-cruiting efforts and feels that that will add to the team, which is pre-dicted to finish better than last sea-

"When we went out recruiting, we "When we went out recruiting, we looked for good shooters and people who would have good overall work habits," Hall said. "I feel we achieved that because those are the traits of this class."

Even with those traits, desire and consistency may be the key words for the Lady Kats this season.
"There is a lot of talent on the team," Spencer said. "We've just got to put it together and be consistent."

tent."
And according to the team, if the right chemistry is there, this group of Lady Kats could be one of the best in recent years.
"At this point, we can be as good as we want to be," Miller said. "We have the potential to do it and we must have the desire."

the team. Because of that inexperience, don't look for Georgia to surpass last season's fifth-place SEC finish and its 9-9 season record.

The team that may benefit the most from the three-point line this season is Vanderbilt. C.M. Newton's Commodores are always loaded with talented shooters and this year's squad is no exception.

Glen Clem (6-6, 5-6 points per game) and Barry Goheen (6-3, 8.1) can both put it up from long range. If that doesn't work, Steve Reese (6-9, 6.2) can be counted on to do his stuff inside. Also look for Louis-ville's Pleasure Ridge Park product Detrick Wilcox to make his presence known.

The basement battle will be between the two Mississippi schools and their new coaches.

Ed Murphy's Ole Miss squad has three of last year's regulars back, led by top scorer Eric Smith (6-6, 17.5 points per game). Richard William's Mississippi State team also returns three starters, including center Raymond Brown (6-9, 11.8).

UK needs tighter man-to-man to counter three-point threat

By BRETT HAIT

Just when it seemed that the rule nakers in college basketball had lone all the experimenting they vanted to do, here comes the three-oint shot. Ready or not

"Nobody knows for sure what effect it will have," UK basketball coach Eddie Sutton said.

Some coaches feel the advent of the 45-second clock makes the threepoint shot a necessity. The rea-soning is that the shot clock gives the advantage to the more skilled team, but the three-pointer will help teams without great height, speed or jumping ability

One change it will likely have is that it will become easier to score more points in a shorter amount of time. Simply put, shooting 33.3 percent from beyond the new 19400t9-inch line will produce the same number of points as shooting 50 percent anywhere inside the line.

"There will be a lot of scoring averages going up," UK guard Rex Chapman said.

UK's perimeter players — Chap-man, Ed Davender, James Black-mon, Derrick Miller and Richard Madison - could greatly help the Wildcats compensate for the loss of forward Winston Bennett, an All-America candidate who will miss the season because of a knee injury.

"I don't think it will affect us as much as other teams because we put pressure on the ball."

Wayne Breeden. UK assistant coach

Sutton mentioned Steve Altord's name, Indiana's outstanding outside shooter, to his team in a practice session as one person capable of destroying a defensive game plan via the three-point shot.

But how much will the new rule effect UK and its pressuring man-to-man defense?

"I don't think it will affect us as much as other teams because we put pressure on the ball," UK assis-tant coach Wayne Breeden said. "We'll be conscious of on-the-ball

Breeden's logic seems sound. But the Atlantic Coast Conference, which used the three-point shot in the 1982-83 season, produced some interesting statistics concerning the three-point shot.

Two ACC teams that use a zone Two ACC teams that use a Zone defense almost exclusively — Georgia Tech and North Carolina State — had the lowest defensive field goal percentage against the three-point shot. Duke, a perennial man-to-man team, like UK, had the man-to-man team, "That's surprising," Sutton said.

"That's surprising," Sutton said.
Regardless of past statistics, it's likely that more man-to-man defenses will be seen in the college game to prevent a solid shooter from cashing in from 20 feet and out.

"Now they'll have to play more man and pick up out on the floor," said senior guard Paul Andrews. "If you're going into the last minute with a nine-point lead, it's not safe because three three-pointers will tie the game."

Thus, UK apparently will apply lighter man-to-man pressure than tighter man-to-man pressure than before to stop the threat of a threebefore to asky moving pointer.

"We're trying to concentrate on our defense and on containing people and not letting them get by us," Andrews said. "We know it will be a banda".

The biggest change will likely be adapting to the relatively short distance of the three-point shot. The arc of the line hits the top of the key, which is a medium-range jump shot for many guards.

"For college basketball, it needs to be a little longer," Andrews said. "It's a normal jump shot for some people

And Thomas will certainly be called upon by Coach Eddie Sutton to produce in more ways than one — especially with the absence of the other frontline players.

"This season I feel as if my role would be to pick up a lot of the scoring slack now that Kenny's gone and Winston went down with his injury," he said. "I have to be strong on the boards and just help the team in all areas."

areas."
Even though the adversities have taken a toll on the squad, Thomas is confident that UK will still compete well against the tough schedule that lies ahead.
"We have enough talent and good guards that will really come through for us," Thomas said. "We can compete with the good teams."

And Thomas believes now is the time for him to break into the spotlight and earn a starting position against the tougher competition.
"I go out there every day trying to earn that (starting) spot," he said. "Things are going well right now for me.

"Things are going well right now tor me.
"I'm excited and ready to go. I know I can play within myself."
So Thomas will continue to work hard along with the rest of the team and prepare for the season as though everything was fine.
"All of us have to pull together now," Thomas said. "We all have been working hard in practice and it's up to us to determine our own destiny."

ALL THOSE IN FAVOR OF BETTER EDUCATION, RAISE YOUR HAND.

If you think better education starts with better teachers, you're not alone. The Commonwealth Institute for Teachers is working hard to make the quality of teaching in Kentucky better than ever. And Kentucky's teachers couldn't be happier about it.

The Institute gives them the opportunity to attend special lectures and seminars on important topics in education. And to broaden and perfect their teaching skills at special workshops conducted throughout the state.

The Institute also supports efforts to raise the qualifications of newly hired teachers in Kentucky. A timely initiative that could affect the quality of teaching in our state for years to come.

Ashland Oil supports the efforts of the Commonwealth Institute for Teachers. If you want to lend a hand to education in Kentucky, start by supporting our most valuable educational resource.

Contact: The Commonwealth Institute for Teachers, Kentucky Educational Foundation, Inc., 333 W. Vine Street, Lexington, KY 40507. Or, call 606-259-9342.

and take advantage of it."

And for Madison, the time is now.

After lurking in the shadows cast by Winston Bennett and All-American Kenny Walker, Madison feels it is finally his chance to step into the spotlight spotlight.

Bennett is gone with an injured knee and Walker is gone to the NBA.

And with Cedric Jenkins also out, the light on Madison has become even brighter even brighter.

"It's a chance for me and a lot of other players," the 6-foot-7 forward said. "This year we're in a situation where I have to perform every night to the best of my abilities, and I'm just looking forward to it."

It's easy to find the burned-out fuse in Madison's spotlight. Inconsistency has kept the junior on the pine of the bench, instead of the wood of the floor.

the flo

"I think the coaches talk to him all the time and try to impress upon him the fact that he does need to be more consistent in his play," Sutton said. "That's been one of his probsaid. "That's been one of his prob-lems.

"I don't think it's one area of the game. I think it's a matter of being able to do a lot of things."
Everyone agrees that Madison can do a lot of things. Sutton said his for-ward is strong, quick and has a nice touch on his rainbow jumpers. He just wants to see good play from his forward, more often than he sees rainbows.

Last season Madison averaged 4.8 points, grabbed 2.5 rebounds and hit 57.4 percent from the field. Not bad numbers for a reserve. But not what people expected from him.

Madison agrees that inconsistency has kept those numbers lower than expected. However, lack of consisexpected. However, lack of consis-tency map not be the only reason.

"I know I've got a lot of talent," Madison said. "And there were things I knew I could do last year, but I didn't do them. I was kind of confused about what my role was."

This year, with only three frontline players, Madison said it's evident what his role will be. But last season, when he wasn't quite so certain, his confidence dropped and his play suffered.

Now the junior from Memphis, Tenn., said his confidence is back and so is he.
"Confidence plays a big role in

"Confidence plays a big role in any sport," Madison said. "I feel much more relaxed and confident right now

"Last year, when Kenny came out and I went in, I felt I had to perform just as good. But I learned it's just a matter of confidence. Knowing that I've got to do it now, I feel better

Madison feels better about his confidence, but what really pleases him is that he'll get more chances to touch the ball. It's tough to put the ball in the hoop if you can't get your "This year we're in a situation where I have to perform every night to the best of my abilities, and I'm just looking forward to it."

Richard Madison. junior forward

"People look for the points and rebounds in the paper, but they don't see the shots that you get," he said. "And I was only getting about four or five shots a game. This year I'll get the ball a lot more and then I can do something with it."

Points will come when the basketball is in your hands. So will pressure. And when you're only one of three inside players left on the

But Madison said this year is no different from the past. Anytime you're in the game, there's pressure, he said. It's just that the thin ranks this year have created some unique pressure.

"It's pressure because if you get in foul trouble, who are you going to turn to?" Madison said. "We're the only big men that we have. We'll just have to play smart on the floor and don't make silly fouls because we don't have a deep bench."

Recause the bench is not deep Because the bench is not deep, Madison will finally get the playing time he's been waiting for. More time will mean more opportunities to show what he can do. And at last, the chance to silence those critics.

"I'm in a great position right ow," he said. "I think this year is going to be a big year for n

Ellison, dubbed "Never Nervous Pervis" after his play during his rookie season, will be subbed by 7-1 hometown product Felton Spencer.

Crook will be pushed by senior Mark McSwain and sophomore Kenny Payne, who Crum thinks could be the Cards' finest outside shooter.

The Louisville backcourt, however, is somewhat of a mystery Sophomore Kevin Walls, of the famed Camden connection, is an untested point guard. Fighting for playing time at the guard spots — and this could be the answer to Crum's problem — will be sophomore Tony Kimbro and high school running mate Keith Williams.

Ed, isn't that a little drastic. Sixteth' That's down there with the likes of Seton Hall, Connecticut and New Mexico.

Wildcat fans sure won't like to hear the Big Blue put down by their own coach, would they, Ed?

OK, so you've got two other CMIas (Cats Missing in Action) in Cedric Jenkins and that Todd Ziegler fella.

So you should be a little worried. I would be if I were in your shoes.

But at Kentucky, Ed, you can't show it. You can't let this one blow over.

Yes I know you just pulled off one.

You saw that you still might have included to that cake.

Well, let's hope there is still a cake to cut next season. You said if you don't lose any more players, you're going to have a pretty good basketball team.

contribute to his feeling of ease on the college court.

"I've been around and I pretty much know the different circumstances in the game," he said. "I really feel comfortable out there now. Everything is not so new to me anymore."

And because Blackmon has been around the court a few times, he's going to be called upon this year to do more than just concentrate on his own improvement.

With the absence of senior team-mate Winston Bennett, Blackmon must take the reins and step up as a team leader for the younger Cats.

Winston showed a lot of lead-"Winston showed a lot of lead-ership on and off the court," Black-mon said. "He always gave 110 per-cent and the other players really looked up to that. So every time I'm on the court, I'm going to have to do that and always make sure I'm playing as hard as I can."

So far, the rest of the Wildcat squad thinks Blackmon is doing fine in his new leadership role.

"He leads the team both by his ex "He leads the team both by his example on the court and by giving advice," said freshman Rex Chapman. "He can do so many things and I really look up to him as a complete player. He has really helped me adjust to the new system."

Blackmon is a complete player, Sutton said. His game experience will make him one of UK's most valuable assets this season, but that's not to say Blackmon doesn't have room for improvement.

"Blackmon is already a proven veteran," Sutton said, "but he has improved a lot from this time last season and I feel like he can contin-ue to improve throughout this year.

But he is one or the finest athletes we have."

Blackmon thinks he needs to improve in every aspect of his game in order to accomplish his goal of playing in the NBA.

But for now, Blackmon is concentrating on the season at hand. Despite the preseason injuries that have plagued the team, he believes that the Wildcats will be able to hold their own this year.

"We are all keeping a really good attitude," Blackmon said. "We still have a lot of talent on this team and people don't realize that. We will miss Winston a lot but we are going into the season with the idea that we can beat a lot of teams."

And after three successful seas at UK, the veteran guard thinks he knows what it takes to make a win-player. But the one thing that makes him an excellent defender, Sutton said, is that he likes to play said, is that he likes to play defense.

To some, defense is a job. To Davender, it's a labor of love.

"Playing defense is something i like to do," he said. "Tlike the challenge of trying to shut down my man. Not too many players like to play defense.
"But if you don't like doing something, there's no way you're going to be successful at it."

Davender understands that if the Wildcats are to be successful this year, he will have to play a major role both offensively and defensively. This might be pressure to some players, but not to Davender. "Id on't feel pressure," he said. "I've played basketball all my life"

"I've played fasketoan air my life." It's a good thing Davender doesn't feel the pressure because the burden of team leader may be falling on his shoulders. And like point guard, being a leader is a new role for him.

"My first two years here, I was the quiet guy on the team." Davender said. "The freshmen and sophomores are not supposed to say too much. But now I have to be a leader, both on the floor and off."

If Davender can play both his new roles well, perhaps the Cats will circle the wagons and hold off the enemy.

Easier said than done

to play like freshmen.
Easier said than done.
Even though Chapman is loaded with natural basketball talent, there are still certain areas of his game that need work, sutton said.
The main adjustment that freshman players must make is simply dealing with the amount of talent in college basketball.
"In high school you may only see a few players a week that have as much talent as you have," said senior guard James Blackmon. "But in college every player out there is either as good as you are or better."
For Chapman, the high caliber of college players poses the biggest problem on the defensive side of the court.

court.

"Offensively, he is making the adjustment really well," Blackmon said. "Defensively, he is having the same problems everybody does coming out of high school."

"The biggest question mark as to whether he will play early will be how well he can improve defensive-ly," Sutton said. "But he has im-proved greatly in that area and I think he will continue to improve." Chapman's natural shooting and passing skills make him a prime candidate for the Wildcats' sixth man.

This unique basketball sense that Chapman possesses was not taught in any gymnasium and, according to Sutton, can only be traced to the rookie's roots.

Chapman's father, Wayne, graduated from UK and played basketball for the Wildcats for one year. He went on to play pro ball for the old American Basketball Association and is now the head coach at Kentucky Wesleyan College in Owensborucky Wesleyan College in Owensborucky cerned about where his talent comes from or how he found his way to the Wildcat court. His attentions are fully directed toward making his first college season a successful one. "I think we will have a great team and a great season," Chapman said. "I just hope that I can step up and contribute and give them my best effort."

So far, the UK coaches feel they have gotten nothing less than his best effort in the preseason.

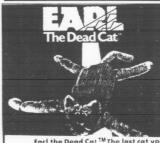

Whether it's his natural talent, his inherent feel for the game or his determination to be the best, Chapman is a winner, Sutton said.

And as far as the Wildcat coaching staff can see, the young guard will not fall short of last year's expectations.

Return to alma mater marks dream come true for former UK player

By CHRIS ALDRIDGE

Staff Writer

Dwayne Casey has returned.
After six years, he's back in town.
And this time he's a coach.
The former UK player returns to fill the boots of Leonard Hamilton, who headed west to take the top job at Oklahoma State.
For Casey, he's just glad Eddie Sutton gave him the chance to ride back into town.
"I'm happy to be back and happy to have the opportunity to work under Coach Sutton," he said. "My goal is to be a head coach someday, And I don't think I could learn from a better person or a better tutor than Coach Sutton."
Casey is no stranger to the coaching ranks. He served as a graduate assistant under former UK coach Joe B. Hall during the 1979-80 season. After one year at his alma mater, Casey received a call from Clem Haskins at Western Kentucky and headed down to Bowling Green.
Casey served as an assistant for the Hilloppers from 1980 to 1985, but now he finds himself back where it all began.

Casey served as an assistant for the Hilltoppers from 1980 to 1985, but now he finds himself back where it all began.

"When the vacancy came open, I talked to Coach Sutton about it," Casey said." It was no secret that I was definitely interested in the job.
"A lot of people had recommended me to him. I had been here as a player and as a graduate assistant under Coach Hall, so I felt like I knew the program. I was just fortunate Coach Sutton chose me for the job."

And Sutton feels fortunate that Casey was available.
"I'm very pleased with the addition of Dwayne," Sutton said. "He's an outstanding human being, a hard worker, a good recruiter and a good coach."

Casey said his responsibilities at the same of the system when he took over as head coach. "We ran the same offense, same everything," Casey said he has learned a lot of new tricks.

"Caching at Western Laght me a to about coaching," he said. "Each of those six years, I learned. You learn every day in coaching. There's an every day in coaching. There's a rewellenge and a new horizon every day that you go into the office."

Hall said he was glad that his former guard had returned to UK. And he's confident that Casey can fill the vacancy left by Hamilton.

"He's got some big shoes to fill, but if there was anyone who could coach."

Casey said his responsibilities at UK are not in one specific area. His responsibilities include coaching, recruiting and administrating. However, like Hamilton, recruiting is definitely Casey's strong point.

He was responsible for attracting some big-name players to Western Kentucky during his stint there. Almong those names were prep All-American Kannard Johnson and two former Kentucky Mr. Basketablis Steve Miller and Fred Tisdale.

H's not by coincidence that Kentucky harvested one of its best recruiting crops ever in Casey's first year as an assistant.

Although Sutton thinks Casey is a good recruiter, he said the assistant coach was not hired for that sole purpose.

"I would never hire anybody just because they are a recruiter," Sutton said. "They've got to be someone that one day they'll be a head coach under a program. I'd never hire anyone unless I thought they had that ability."

Casey said the transition from the Hilltoppers to the Wildcats was not a problem because, surprisingly, the systems were the same.

Lady Kat front line must overcome loss of power forwards

By PAUL MILES
Contributing Writer

Gone are Leslie Nichols and Karen Mosley — Lady Kats who ac-counted for only 36 percent of the team's scoring and rebounding last season, not to mention their off-the-ourt team leadership.

All of that will have to be re-

All of that will have to be replaced.

But in the eyes of Coach Terry Hall, the Lady Kats are not lacking experience and desire, which could be the keys to this year's success. "When you lose someone such as Leslie Nichols or Karen Mosley, you usually don't think you can fill in the gap."

Hall believes that in order to compete against one of the toughest schedules in the nation, the Lady Kats will need a powerful front line. Hoping to follow in the footsteps of Nichols and Mosley on the front line. Hoping to follow in the footsteps of Nichols and Mosley on the front line are returning forwards Beebe Croley, Pam Shrum and Laurie Hudgens—not to mention Hall's estras, freshman forwards Lora Spencer and Hudgens playing in at least 20 game last season and Shrum and Hudgens playing in at least 20 game as season and Shrum and Hudgens playing in at least 20 games as experienced and powerful salast season." Croley, a 5-10 junior from Lexing-ton Henry Clay, was the fourth-lead

Hall says one of the incentives for playing basketball in Lexington is the "tremendous support" the Lady Kats receive from the University.

"I think we get great support from Mr. (Cliff) Hagan (UK athletic director) and the administration," she However, Hall still has to deal with a stereotypical image that la-bels women's basketball a sport not as authentic as the men's version.

"It's a little disturbing to me that the fans here haven't really picked up Lady Kat basketball like they should if they're true basketball fans, which they claim to be." Hall said.

Hall says one of the reasons for that noticeable difference in atten-dance is that many Lexingtonians "don't know about Lady Kat basket-ball."

"People have an idea of girls in P.E. class playing basketball," she said. "But once they've seen us, they're hooked and they find out we play a good, exciting brand of basketball."

When the Lady Kats open their 1986-87 season, fans may be slow to recognize this year's edition of Terry Hall's team.

And Hall believes two things will be essential to filling that void.

"Hard work and dedication will definitely be the keys to a good season for us," Hall said.

In past seasons Hall has always had one dominant player to count on, but this season she does not have that luxury.

"In the eyes of the fans, they really don't know what to expect from us this year," she said.

Hall said the players will have to assume individual roles.
Sophomore guard Jodie Whitaker agrees. "Each of us is going to have to play a certain role on the team if we are to be successful."

A major factor affecting the success of the Lady Kats' season will be the backcourt combination of Whitaker and senior floor general Sandy Harding.

This is true for Terry Hall's Lady Kat team. The one-iwo combination of senior Sandy Harding and sopho-more Jodie Whitaker will be one of the keys to a suc-cessful 1986-87 season, Hall said.

"They (the other team members) will definitely look to our backcourt for leadership," Hall said. "Especially

What makes Whitaker and Harding's job even more demanding is the departure of last year's top point producers. Leslie Nichols and Karen Mosley.
But Harding doesn't think the absence of Nichols and Mosley will affect the team that much.
In fact, she thinks not having a dominant player may be an advantage because it forces the team to play as a team, is just as much an asset off the court as she is on the court.

"She is unbelievably quick, a great team leader and a team coordinator," Hauserman said. "She makes a big impact on this team when she's off the court, too." Flanking Harding at the wing position will be Whitaker, a 57 sophomore from Austin, Ind.
Whitaker was recruited initially with the idea of becoming the point guard when Harding departed.
However, midway through the 1985-86 season, Hall began to experiment with Harding at the point and Whitaker on the wing. The combination worked, and since then, the two have been Hall's starting guard combination.

"They almost begged us to play together," Hauserman said.

As a freshman last year, Whitaker "took off as if she had been a sophomore or junior," Hauserman said.

Last season the 1985 Indiana Miss Basketball averaged 10.7 points and 4.6 assists in her 26 appearances as a Lady Kat.

Senior playmaker Sandy Harding should be the team leader for the '86-'87 Lady Kats.

Whitaker believes that playing alongside a person who has the leadership qualities of Harding has helped her perform better on the court.

"She's such a great leader on and off the floor," Whitaker said. "It's fun to play with someone who's such a great leader. She just helps you do better.

"We know each other's moves," she said. "We know how each other wants to receive the ball to shoot it. We tell one another when we're in the wrong. We help each other out."

UK Lady Kat Debbie Miller is hoping the third time around will be a charm.

After starting for Terry Hall's UK basketball team for two years, the senior center believes that this, her final year, could be her best.

"With three years of maturity, I am ready for a good season," Miller said. "This is my senior year and when I leave here. I just want to know that I have been the best player that I could have possibly been."

But after looking at Miller's numbers from last season, it may seem that UK has already seen her best.

The 4-foot-I Miller was the team's second-leading scorer, averaging 12.4 points a game, and she scored in double figures 21 times during the season. Miller was also the third-leading rebounder on last year's Lady Kat squad.

Miller's numbers last season were not only high for the Lady Kats but also the SEC, where she placed second in field goals, making 60.3 percent of her shots per game.

"That's pretty hard to improve on. Those are really good stats," Hall said. "She is a fine shooter and I don't think she will drop her field goal percentage. Debbie does not take bad shots, so I think she will shoot well again this year."

Miller, however, has her sights set on improving those numbers, not just maintaining them.

"I am definitely looking forward to improving those numbers, not just maintaining them.

"I am definitely looking forward to improving those marks this tyear," she said. "That is what I will be working toward. I would like to bring my scoring average up to 20 or so points a game. That's where it should be."

While Miller's shooting ability is right on target, both she and Hall in agree that there are still certain areas in which the senior will have to improve before the season begins.

Miller will be called upon to take up the slack in the areas where the Lady Kats are lacking.

"It is very important that I rebound a lot better this season because we are not a tall team," she said. "As far as scoring, I realize that when the ball gets inside to me, I am going to be counted on to lead this season's Lady Kats by improving her playing on the court, but she also will be expected to come forward as a leader for the less experienced team members. And with five freshman recruits on this year's squad, Miller's leadership abilities will be greatly needed on and off the court.

"I think Debbie is more of a leader through her actions," Hall said. "A lot of the kids look up to her because she has seen three seasons and they know they can go to her if they need help with anything."

DEBBIE MILLER

"This is my senior year and when I leave here, I just want to know that I have been the best player that I could have possibly been."

One problem that Miller has on the court is her tendency to show her anger at herself when she makes mistakes. Now that she is going to be setting an example for the young team, Miller is deter-mined to control her frustrations.

mined to control her frustrations.
"I'm definitely trying to improve in that area," she said. "I realize that the younger players are watching me and someday they are going to feel frustrated also, so I know I have to control my temper."

But the Lady Kats' preseason frustrations may be a little hard to deal with

Andrews

Last year, Andrews came off the bench in a crucial SEC road game to drill three long bombs that helped turn back the Crimson Tide. His role of zone buster, however, is a role some fans believe he should play more often.

"A lot of people say I don't shoot enough and that when my shot's there, I don't take it," he said. "But I don't really think that's the case.

"When we're playing, a lot of people."

"Where it is now, it's just a normal jump shot," he said. "You can way he can in his final to even the beshouting that shot and not even realize you're at the three-point line."

"He's got good range," Sutton stid. "He can knock it down from this year. Especially since the three-point lene."

"If Andrews can knock down a few of those three-pointers, he should be in the UK lineup alot this season.

But he's not worried about himself. Andrews just wants to help the team any way he can in his final season.

"I really don't have any goals as far as myself is concerned." he said.
"But this being my senior year, I'm just going to try and go out in the best style that I can.
"I just want to play hard, win as many games as we can and hopefully win the SEC and get back to the NCAA tournament. Once you get into the NCAA tournament, anything can happen."
