REPORT TO THE ALUMNI

A University is a dynamic institution and changes and innovations should always be taking place. However, there seem to be certain periods when even more activity than is normally true is underway. The period from September, 1956, to the present seems to be such a period of time. It is impossible to list all of the changes which have occurred and the new programs underway, but the following will serve as examples of the manner in which the University of Kentucky has moved forward in the past four years.

1. The MEDICAL CENTER, including the Colleges of Medicine, Dentistry, and Nursing, and the University Teaching Hospital, has reached the stage in its development where the first class of medical students began their work in September, 1960. This $28,000,000 structure, operating with a budget of over $3,000,000 from state funds, will be one of the finest in the entire nation and will make a significant contribution to the welfare of Kentucky.

2. COLDSTREAM FARM, a rich Bluegrass farm of 1,067 acres, was purchased for an experimental farm for the College of Agriculture in 1957. The addition of this farm has enabled the College of Agriculture to increase the allocations for the various departments as follows: Agronomy's acreage has increased in the past five years from 85 to 190.2. Animal Pathology now has 140.9 whereas in 1952 it had only 7.5 acres. Beef cattle acreage has increased from 120 to 820.8, while Dairy has increased from 105 to 699 acres. Entomology which had no acreage in 1952 now has 25 acres. Forestry research land has increased from 4.7 acres to 204.7, while Horticulture has moved from 23.7 to 64.7 acres. In this five year period Swine acreage has increased from 23 to 118. Poultry has increased from 18.5 acres in 1952 to 89 now, while Sheep acreage has jumped from 25.6 to 444 acres. The overall increase represents almost a 600 per cent jump in the land available for agricultural research.

3. The KENTUCKY LIFE MUSEUM was established at Waveland, a civil war home, located on Higbee Mill Road. This museum along with the other museums on the campus, will enable the university better to fulfill its function as the protector of valuable items of historical value.

4. OFF-CAMPUS CENTERS at Waverland, Ashland, Henderson, Knox, and Elizabethtown have been authorized or established. These centers, designed to offer freshman and sophomore work and to serve as centers for various types of terminal education programs be enrolling approximately 2,000 students by 1962. Currently, their enrollment is over 1,000.

5. The STUDENT BODY of the University of Kentucky has increased from 8,051 in September, 1956 to 10,133, in September, 1959.

6. The COMPUTING CENTER, established in 1958, has grown in importance and use. This center enables the University, through the use of the IBM 650 Computer, to perform important research in a wide variety of fields.

7. SALARIES OF FACULTY members have risen appreciably during this four year period, as indicated by the following official figures:

	Mean Salary 1956-57	Mean Salary 1960-61
Deans	$11,000	$14,900
Professors	8,220	10,410
Associate Professors	6,903	8,550
Assistant Professors	6,070	7,390
Instructors	5,210	6,120

8. The PATTERSON SCHOOL OF DIPLOMACY and International Commerce was established in September, 1958, one of the five schools offering such work in the United States.

9. The PROGRAM OF GENERAL EXTENSION of the University was reorganized and the Extended Programs concept has been developed, strengthening to a significant degree the off-campus arm of the University.

10. The RESEARCH PROGRAM of the University has grown at a rapid rate. Through the Kentucky Research Foundation and the regular departmental research programs, contracts and grants totaling $1,500,000 for the 1959-60 year are now in progress.

11. The UNIVERSITY LIBRARIES have grown not only in quality but in quantity as well. The holdings have increased from 690,000 volumes to 820,000 during the period from 1956 to 1960.

12. Departments of AGRICULTURAL ENGINEERING and CHEMICAL ENGINEERING have been established and are now offering full programs. A new Department of FORESTRY is being established this Fall (1960).

13. The student newspaper, THE KENTUCKY KERNEL, has been expanded from a one-per-week issue to four issues per week.

14. The LANGUAGE LABORATORY has been established serving our own students and the community as well.

15. Programs for the preparation of TEACHERS OF EXCEPTIONAL children have been inaugurated.

16. The contract with UNIVERSITY OF INDONESIA, started in 1956 under ICA sponsorship, has been expanded to include agriculture as well as engineering and related sciences. A contract with Guatemala is also in operation.

17. In PHYSICAL FACILITIES the University, in addition to the tremendous Medical Center plant, has constructed Shawneetown, a $2,000,000 housing unit for 185 married couples; Holmes Hall, a residence hall for 500 women; the $500,000 College of Pharmacy Building; and ten fraternity and sorority houses, serving as dormitories for 475 students. In addition, Cooperstown, another married student housing project with 225 units was completed in the fall of 1956.

18. The following BUILDINGS are now either in the planning stage or under construction:

- Chemistry-physics building
- College of Commerce
- Library addition
- Student Union Building addition
- Dormitories (two)
- University Teaching Hospital

19. The UNIVERSITY PRESS had gained nationwide recognition for its excellent publications. The editing and publishing of the ten-volume set of Henry Clay papers is of great significance.

20. New ATHLETIC PRACTICE FACILITIES have been completed, giving adequate space for four football fields, a new track, two baseball diamonds, and a shower-locker room building with handball courts, therapy rooms, and offices.

21. A CAMPUS PLAN projecting campus building development for the next decade has been completed by Hare and Hare, Planners, with the cooperation of the Campus Planning Committee of the University.

22. Several committees which have previously been administrative committees have been changed to FACULTY COMMITTEES, thus giving the faculty greater opportunity for participation in University affairs.

23. The ALUMNI ASSOCIATION has conducted a most successful capital gifts campaign with the goal of $250,000 almost realized. In addition, the Alumni Association has contributed four $500 research awards to outstanding faculty members for the past three years.

24. The ALUMNI SEMINAR, a discussion session of two or three days duration, has been held for three years, with topics centered about crucial issues of the day such as communications, the U.S. Constitution, and our American heritage. This seminar has brought real distinction to the University of Kentucky.

25. GRADE STANDARDS for students have been raised to assure those interested in this institution that students are working as nearly up to the level of their abilities as is possible.

26. CARNAHAN HOUSE, a self-sustaining faculty-alumni house and club, has been in operation on Coldstream Farm for three years, thus giving at nominal cost the opportunity for club membership to faculty and alumni and their families.

27. SPINDLETOP FARM has been purchased as an investment by the Kentucky Research Foundation, any funds to be realized in its disposal to be used for University projects. A portion of the farm is to be devoted to the development of the University of Kentucky Spindletop Research Institute and Park.

CLARK WILL LECTURE AT WISCONSIN IN SPRING

The executive committee of the University Board of Trustees has granted leave of absence request to permit Thomas D. Clark to serve as visiting professor at the University of Wisconsin during the 1961 spring term.

Dr. Clark, head of the University of Kentucky History Department since 1957, will teach the Frederick Jackson Turner course at Wisconsin as a lecturer from Feb. 1-May 31, 1961.

Dr. Carl B. Cone, professor of history, will be acting head of the Department of History during Dr. Clark's absence.

Noffsinger Returns From Indonesian Assignment

Dr. James P. Noffsinger, who served on the University of Kentucky contract team in Indonesia since 1957, is serving as an associate professor of architecture this year.

He is part of the faculty of the university's new Department of Architecture which opened with this school year.

Noffsinger, a native of Washington, D. C. holds bachelor, master and doctorate degrees in architecture from the University at Washington. He received the latter degree in 1955.

He studied in 1953 and 1954 at the University of Illinois, and has taught at the University of Minnesota and the University of Kansas.

He also has worked for the Department of the Interior as an architectural researcher for the historic building survey.

ALBRIGHT IS NAMED UNIVERSITY PROVOST

Dr. A. D. Albright, executive dean of the University Extended Programs, was recently named provost of the University by the UK Board of Trustees.

As provost, Dr. Albright is in charge of UK's instructional program. Academic deans will report directly to him to achieve better coordination and communication.

A native of Tennessee, Dr. Albright received his educational training at Depauw University, Milligan College, the University of Tennessee, and New York University. He has served on the faculties of George Peabody College for Teachers, the University of Tennessee, the University of Utah, Yale University, and Teachers College of Connecticut. He also has served as consultant for the Fund for the Advancement of Education of the Ford Foundation, the Carnegie Foundation, and the Southern Regional Education Board.

DOCTOR RECEIVES CANCER RESEARCH GRANT

A $71,901 cancer research award from the United States Public Health Service to Dr. E. Douglas Rees of the University of Kentucky Medical Center was received recently.

With the help of the three-year grant, Dr. Rees, an assistant professor of medicine, will be investigating the development of breast tumors and chemical changes in such tumors induced in albino rats. Dr. Rees will seek to explain the chemical mechanism which induces the breast cancer to survive and grow. Another purpose of the study is to provide information concerning the influence of hormones upon the growth of this particular tumor.

Blythe Is Awarded Fellowship To England

Prof. David K. Blythe, head of the Civil Engineering Department, has been awarded a senior visiting fellowship in science to the University of Durham, King's College, England.

It is one of 27 such fellowships granted by the National Science Foundation and the Organization for European Economic Co-Operation. Blythe will go to England in February for a three-month stay.

His purpose will be two-fold:

He will present a paper dealing with the planning of urban highways and their impact on business and land use at an international symposium in April on "Urban Survival and Traffic." He will also assist the Civil Engineering Department at the University of Durham in the organization of the program for this meeting.

His second assignment will be to participate in research projects currently in progress at the University of Durham.

His family will accompany him to England. They will travel by ship and live at Newcastle where Durham University is situated.

AN ALUMNUS ASKS — HOW DO YOU SPEND

By HELEN G. KING
Director of Alumni Affairs

Suddenly, amazingly, after fourteen years of explanation, interpretation and appeal, and thousands upon thousands of written and spoken words to and about the alumni of the University of Kentucky, we, the professional alumni workers find ourselves in the untenable and unjustifiable position of not having made your program, the expenditure of your money and the purpose of your Alumni Association perfectly clear to you.

This discovery is good, and, we hope, has not been deferred too long. It is the result of the inquiring minds of some of our good alumni who have taken the time and trouble to put us to the test. It is easily resolved in the following analysis of why we ask for your support and what we do with your money, once we have received it. Perhaps it will inspire the generous ones to increase their contributions; perhaps it will be an impetus to those more reluctant souls but, above all, it should resolve forever the question of the WHY and WHAT FOR of an Alumni Association and an Alumni Fund.

How We Began

Your Alumni Association was organized in 1889 by a small band of loyal men and women who felt the need for fellowship among themselves and a program of alumni assistance to what was then the A&M College of Kentucky. Dr. Alfred M. Peter was the first president and through the 71 years since its establishment, the UK Alumni Association has remained an existing force in the life of your Alma Mater which became Kentucky State College shortly after the turn of the century and then, in 1917 accepted the title and responsibilities of the State University of Kentucky.

In 1933 the University of Kentucky Alumni Association became a separate corporation, dedicated to the following purpose: "To promote the best interests of the University of Kentucky; to fully acquaint the membership of the Association with the progress and needs of their Alma Mater; to assist in interpreting the University, its work and its services to the state and nation; and to encourage loyalty and closer bonds of fellowship among its members."

Internal Organization

In the last decade and a half the UK Alumni Association has grown both in stature and in responsibility. The need for broadening its program to fit the needs of a growing University has been the result of the vision and leadership of the succeeding presidents of the Alumni Association and their executive committees who travel, at their own expense, to these meetings eleven out of the 12 months of the year to determine policies, guide the work of the professional alumni workers, and to acquaint themselves with University policies and programs that they may, in turn, interpret to the people of Kentucky and to the alumni body.

The executive committee of the Alumni Association is composed of four officers: the president, vice president, treasurer and executive secretary (who wears the coat also of Director of Alumni Affairs); the immediate president of the Association and elected alumni members of the Board of Trustees (three in number); members to be elected from the Association as a whole, each to a three-year term or until his successor is elected, with five such members to be elected each year; nine members to be appointed by the current

—FACULTY AWARDS, SCHOLARSHIPS—

ident and the ex-officio members of the committee consisting of the presidents of each organized alumni club of 25 or more members.

Office Staff

The professional alumni workers number nine. The Executive Secretary and/or Director of Alumni Affairs has the responsibility of program planning, fund-raising, direct mail, magazine supervision, alumni communications and public relations, service on administrative committees, supervision of expenditures, staff direction and together with the treasurer and auditor, detailing the proposed budget for each fiscal year, raising the funds to meet budget demands and staying within the limitations of that budget.

The Field Secretary has the responsibility of organizing and revitalizing alumni club organizations, student-alumni relations on and off campus, the speaker's bureau and the organization of parents of students.

The Office Manager's duties involve handling of records for special fund drives, keeping up-to-date office files and records, public relations and information and coordination of alumni functions such as Homecoming, banquets and reunions.

The Alumni Office Secretary-Bookkeeper is solely responsible for all funds which accrue to the Alumni Association, keeps records on all such funds, both income and expenditures, keeps records of leaves of staff members, serves as secretary to the Director and to the executive committee and fulfills whatever other requirements may fall under this category.

The Head of the Department of Records carries out one of the many important functions of and reasons for an alumni organization. She is responsible for keeping up with lost alumni, changing records on approximately 30,000 known alumni, keeping cross-files by geographical, class and personal record information, transferring this information, by categories, to address plates and getting out approximately 200,000 pieces of mail annually. Three other staff members work in this department.

The Magazine Editor works closely with the other members of the Alumni Office staff and edits and publishes four issues annually of the KENTUCKY ALUMNUS. She is employed on a contract basis to carry on this assignment and is not a permanent member of the office staff.

Is The Alumni Association Important to UK?

The administrative officials and the Board of Trustees of the University, recognizing the importance of a strong Alumni Association and realizing that alumni records MUST be kept, subsidizes this record-keeping in the amount of $17,600 annually. All other funds upon which we operate the various alumni programs are dependent upon the contributions of the alumni.

In President Frank G. Dickey's biennial report, 1957-59, he had this to say about the University of Kentucky Alumni Association: "Other notable activities of the University in this biennium include the beginning of a capital gifts campaign by the University of Kentucky Alumni Association. Our alumni are exhibiting a marvelous spirit in this and other matters and the University can be justly proud and thankful for this dedicated group. The inauguration of the four annual Faculty Awards for Outstanding Research (awards of $500 to each of four faculty members) is one of the most heartening innovations to come to any campus in the nation. The Alumni Association has shown real initiative and creativity in sponsoring Alumni Seminars designed as continuing education programs for the alumni of this institution. . . . Through the capital gifts campaign the Alumni Association plans to make additional contributions to the ongoing instructional and research programs of the University."

If the alumni body questions what is done with the contributions from alumni, they have only to read the above or discuss the alumni program with the administrative leaders of the University.

The 1960-61 budget of the Alumni Association calls for an expenditure of $42,191.00 if we are to provide the additional services to the University of Kentucky which the University has the right, by established precedent, to expect, and which will add to the prestige of Alma Mater and increase her stature. It has been established that any private foundation, corporation or representative of industry to which an educational institution appeals for supplementary funds, is guided in making gifts and grants by the percentage of alumni participation in the institution's total program. In the past University of Kentucky alumni participation, percentage-wise, has been pathetically small.

What About My Tax Dollar?

One sure way of differentiating between a good University and a great one is through the additional services it offers, services which are not provided for in state appropriations but which come from gifts and grants from individuals, corporations and foundations. A rough estimate of the number of men and women who have attended the University of Kentucky since its establishment would put the figure at about 60,000. Excluding the number of "deceased" and "lost" alumni there are presently 30,000 names of these former students in our files, 18,500 of whom live in Kentucky. The more than 18,000 who live in Kentucky pay taxes, to be sure, but it is interesting to note that only approximately 9.8% of the total tax dollar goes to public higher education and this sum must be proportionately allocated to the five state colleges and to the University.

—CENTURY CLUB, CARNAHAN HOUSE—

This should answer the question of many well-intentioned alumni who say, "why should I contribute when I pay taxes?"

As to the more than 11,000 alumni living outside of Kentucky, it is a self-evident fact that their only sure method of supporting the University's programs is through generous contributions to the Alumni Fund.

How Do We Spend Your Money?

It seemed not only fair but to the best interests of individual alumni contributors and to the University generally, to outline in some detail the total operations of the Alumni Association before going into specific areas of our programming and expenditures. If the foregoing has been tedious, it has been done for the record so that such detailed descriptions of the origin, purposes and organization of the Alumni Association may not have to be done again.

It is time now to describe for our readers and for other alumni and friends of the University what we have been doing with your money, what we hope to do through the expansion and growth.

(1) THE ALUMNI LOYALTY FUND SCHOLARSHIPS

The Alumni Association's first parture into the field of general assistance to the University's total program was initiated in 1947 with establishment of the Alumni Loyalty Fund program. The purpose of Loyalty Fund program was to raise funds with which to grant a four-$2,800 scholarship annually to an incoming freshman who had demonstrated outstanding qualities of scholarship, leadership and character and had a definite need for financial assistance. The first of these scholarships was granted in 1948 and since that time eight students have been graduated from the University under program and four currently are holding the scholarships, representing total outlay of alumni contributions the amount, to date, of $25,200.

versity which attempts to attract an outstanding faculty. In an effort to assist the University of Kentucky to retain its good teachers and to encourage them in writing and research, the Alumni Association initiated a Faculty Awards program in 1957, the purpose of which was to give four $500 awards annually to faculty members, chosen by their colleagues, who had, during the previous two-year period, made an outstanding contribution to the University's prestige in the field of writing or research. In the last three years the Alumni Association has presented twelve of these awards, totaling an outlay of $6,000 from funds contributed by loyal alumni. The program is a continuing one and will be carried forward if alumni continue to contribute to the many projects financed by the Alumni Fund through annual giving.

(3) ALUMNI SEMINARS

At the same time the Faculty Awards program was initiated, the Alumni Association, feeling the need to offer to University graduates and former students a stimulating opportunity to keep abreast of modern scientific and cultural developments, sponsored and financed the first of a series of annual Alumni Seminars, an experiment in continuing education that has not only found general approval among the alumni, but which has brought distinction to the University of Kentucky on a national level. Many universities are offering Alumni Seminar programs but the UK Alumni Association's plan is unique wherein it uses both faculty members and distinguished alumni as lecturers. To date these Seminars have represented a monetary expenditure of $3,600 from Alumni funds and plans for the 1961 Seminar are now in the making.

(4) CARNAHAN HOUSE

In December 1956 Governor A. B. Chandler announced that the Commonwealth has purchased the 1,150 acre tract of bluegrass land on the Newtown Pike, near Lexington, known as Coldstream Farm, for the purpose of increasing the University of Kentucky's farm holdings.

The 22-room mansion on Coldstream farm, which had been occupied for six years prior to the purchase, was the University's and the Alumni Association's answer to the need for an Alumni-Faculty Center where both groups might get together for social functions and meetings and where the common interest of the two groups might be enjoyed.

In order to obtain funds for activating and decorating the mansion, President Frank G. Dickey turned to the Alumni Association and more than $50,000 was raised for this purpose through the efforts of your alumni officers and executive committee members. Most of the money came from the late Alumnus-Publisher J. W. Carnahan, '96, of Chicago and subsequently this fine recreational facility for alumni and faculty was dedicated and named for him.

(5) ALUMNI CENTURY CLUB

The most recent, and by far the most ambitious fund-raising program ever attempted by your Alumni Association has been the capital gifts campaign inaugurated in June 1959 and known as the Alumni Century Club.

The University of Kentucky will be 100 years old in 1965 and your Alumni Executive Committee, with the hope of making a substantial contribution to the institution upon the occasion of her centennial, asked President Dickey to advise as to the form in which a tangible gift may be presented. His suggestion that we adopt a two-fold purpose for the fund-raising campaign has been followed to the letter. (a) He requested that the tangible gift take the form of an Alumni Center where visiting alumni would have an on-campus meeting place, where the Alumni Office might be housed, thus releasing badly needed space in the Student Union, and where meeting rooms would be available to faculty and student groups. (b) President Dickey then suggested that in the campaign we emphasize not only the building program but additional support for the various on-going projects of the Association, such as the Seminars, Faculty Awards and Scholarships, and additional financial support where and when the University feels the need for funds not immediately available from the budget. This has been the program of the Alumni Century Club, wherein we asked at least 500 alumni and friends of the University to contribute $100 a year for five years, with the hope of reaching our $250,000 goal by 1965. To date, after thirteen months of appeal and solicitation, we lack approximately 12 members to achieve this goal. The building should be under construction by next spring and the dedication is planned for the centennial year.

(6) JOINT ALUMNI COUNCIL OF KENTUCKY

Three and one-half years ago your Alumni Association, with the blessing of the President of the University and the Alumni Executive Committee, invited to the campus the presidents and alumni secretaries of the five state-supported colleges in Kentucky, to initiate an organization and an idea which has been unique in a program of unified action among all of the state-supported institutions. The result of this meeting was the formation of the Joint Alumni Council of Kentucky, its purpose being to promote the improvement of education at all levels in the Commonwealth. The six state-supported institutions adopted as its slogan "Working Together to Serve Kentucky" and its programs and efforts have been so outstanding that last July the American Alumni Council, composed of alumni directors representing approximately 1,100 member educational institutions in the United States and Canada, recognized the Joint Alumni Council for "its unique cooperative approach to alert alumni of the six public institutions of higher learning in Kentucky and the citizens of the Commonwealth to the problems facing higher education."

(7) GENERAL ALUMNI ACTIVITIES

Other functions of your Alumni Association include organization and revitalization of local alumni clubs, athletic banquets, financed by the public and the Athletics Association; reunions, homecoming, a speaker's bureau of faculty members who make themselves available to alumni and civic groups for informative talks about the University and current events; a parent's organization which has just been initiated as a two-way street to keep parents of UK students informed about their activities and to interest the parents in the operations and financial needs of the University; and participation, in an advisory capacity, of members of the Alumni Office staff in the operations and functions of student and faculty organizations, such as the Little Kentucky Derby, the commencement programs, etc.

(8) WHY CONTRIBUTE?

The answer is simple. If you have not been convinced by this detailed outline of your Alumni Association's activities and functions, these answers suggest themselves: (a) because schools and colleges need money, sometimes for operations, sometimes for a small capital expenditure, sometimes for important things that cannot be purchased out of the annual budget.

(b) Because the pooling of many gifts into one major project provides an excellent means of giving support to education. Few alumni would think of sending a modest amount to their universities each year if it were not suggested that they pool their gifts with others.

The Alumni who read this exposition of our program in the columns of the KENTUCKY ALUMNUS already are contributors—otherwise they would not see it. Perhaps, through your generosity, we may find the financial means to send this story to the non-contributors, in the hope that they may become more cognizant of the importance of giving, in large or small amounts to their Alma Mater.

Whatever the results, this is the story, to which it seems appropriate to add an epitaph: "When we are dead, the only things which will be left in our cold dead hands will be the things which we have given away."

UK ENROLLMENT GOES OVER 10,000

The University of Kentucky has a total of 10,157 students enrolled during the current term. About 7,425 are at the main campus at Lexington and others are enrolled in extension programs or are at UK's five off-campus centers.

It is the second consecutive year that enrollment has topped the 10,000 figure, Dr. Charles F. Elton, dean of admissions, said.

The enrollment does not include about 4,000 students enrolled in correspondence, extension and evening courses without credit, those attending short courses and 373 students enrolled in University schools below college level.

A breakdown of the enrollment figures shows:

Some 7,425 students doing residential work on campus; 1,630 attending five two-year centers; 674 attending organized extension classes; and 373 enrolled in the evening class program for college credit.

Center attendance is as follows: Lexington 362; Covington 520; Henderson 251; Ft. Knox 231; and Cumberland 266.

The 1960 figure marks the eighth straight year that the University has shown an enrollment increase.

With Esso 30 Years

Eger V. Murphree, president of Esso Research and Engineering Company, has completed 30 years of service with the industrial research firm.

President since 1947, Murphree has contributed to the development of such significant oil industry advances as Fluid Catalytic Cracking—the oil industry's most widely used method for producing high quality gasolines—as well as synthetic toluene, butadiene and hydrocarbon synthesis. He has written or co-authored more than 45 technical papers and holds 39 patents. During World War II, he was a member of the Office of Scientific Research and Development S-1 Executive Committee.

He has also been a member of the General Advisory Committee of the Atomic Energy Commission since 1950, and in 1956-57 served as Special Assistant to the Secretary of Defense for guided missiles.

Born in Bayonne, Mr. Murphree moved with his parents to Louisville, Ky., when he was eight years old. He was graduated from the University of Kentucky, earning both a bachelor's degree and a master's in chemistry in 1920. An All-Southern tackle for Kentucky's football team, Murphree was captain of the Wildcats during his senior year.

After graduation he accepted a teaching post as physics and mathematics instructor and football coach at Paris (Illinois) High School. A year later, in 1922, he went to Massachusetts Institute of Technology. While there, first as a staff assistant and later as a research associate, he wrote the paper that forms the basis for the well-known "Murphree Efficiency," used to calculate the effectiveness of fractionation.

The Esso Research chief executive has been awarded honorary doctorates from UK in 1949 and the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn. He was the recipient of the Society of the Chemical Industry's Perkin Medal in 1950 and in 1953 received the Industrial Research Institute's annual award for outstanding organization and direction of research. In addition, Murphree was permanent chairman of the World Petroleum Congress from 1951 to 1959.

C. Robert Yeager Named President Of Balfour Co.

C. Robert Yeager has been named president of the L.G. Balfour Co. in Attleboro, Mass.

The Balfour Co. is said to be the country's largest manufacturer of insignia jewelry, class rings, commercial awards, trophies and allied products.

Yeager will succeed Lloyd G. Balfour, who founded and became president of the company in 1913. Balfour is relinquishing the presidency to become chairman of the board.

A native of Kentucky, Yeager is a 1933 graduate of the University of Kentucky.

Yeager joined the Balfour Co. upon graduation, working in sales until entering the armed forces in December, 1941. He served for more than four years as a colonel in the Army.

Returning to the Balfour Co. after the war, Yeager was appointed assistant to the president in 1947, vice president and a director of the company in 1950 and executive vice president in 1955.

In addition to his duties with the parent company, he serves as a director and officer of the L. G. Balfour Co. of Canada, Ltd., California Balfour Inc., the Balfour Realty Trust and other subsidiaries.

Active in local and state civic affairs, he is a director also of two banks, a leading mutual insurance company and the Associated Industries of Massachusetts.

Yeager is also known for his work with youth. He was chairman of the National Interfraternity Conference in 1953 and among leaders of industry, education and public affairs honored at the 1959 national convention of the Future Farmers of America.

He serves on the International Supreme Council, Order of DeMolay, and has been interested for years in the National Honor Society, whose scholarship program for ranking high school graduates is largely underwritten by the company he heads.

Robert Camenisch Family Returns to Brazil

The Rev. and Mrs. Robert Camenisch and their six children returned recently to Ceres, Brazil, where he resumes the missionary work that started six years ago.

The Camenishes and their four children started their missionary work in Brazil in 1954 after he had served as pastor of the Perryville Presbyterian Church. While they were there, their youngest children, Marlena and Robert, were born. In July, 1959, the family returned to Lincoln County to their families and to continue a different phase of missionary work.

For the past year, Mr. Camenisch has been visiting Presbyterian churches and telling of the work he and other Presbyterian missionaries are doing in Brazil.

After he was graduated from Kinley High School in 1940, he attended the University of Kentucky, where he studied agriculture for two years. His education was interrupted by World War II.

For three years and nine months he served in the Marines as a sergeant. He returned to the University of Kentucky to receive his degree in agriculture in 1948. He later received a degree from the Perryville Presbyterian Seminary.

His preaching obligations in Brazil keep him continually on the move. He is pastor of three churches, 12 Sunday Schools and 25 prayer points. Usually, each church has services each week. All of his work is done in Portuguese, the official language of Brazil.

Mrs. Camenisch and all of the children speak Portuguese. Mrs. Camenisch, a graduate of Eastern State College, with a major in home economics, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Davis Sr. of Stanford. They plan to stay in the missionary field in Brazil for another five years before returning to this country.

NOMINATE YOUR CANDIDATE NOW

FOR THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARD

In the August issue of the Kentucky Alumnus, it was announced that two special awards to be given by the UK Alumni Association were established by the alumni executive committee at its April meeting.

Members of the University Alumni Association are asked now to nominate persons for awards in the following categories:

(1) Alumni who have distinguished themselves in any field.

(2) Any other person who has made an outstanding contribution in any way to the betterment of the University.

Nominations must be in by January 1, 1961. A committee of five persons will make the selections from nominations. The committee will be composed of the president or vice president of the University, president of the Alumni Association, Director of Alumni Affairs, chairman of the Alumni Achievement Award Committee and an alumnus appointed by the president of the Alumni Association.

Award winners will be recognized at the annual alumni banquet in May with an honorary life membership in the Alumni Association.

The ballot is printed below and you are requested to fill it out in detail and return it to the Director of Alumni Affairs, Room 124, SUB, University of Kentucky, by Jan. 1, 1961.

Please do not fail to offer supporting evidence for your nomination.

The new six-story, air-conditioned Medical Science Building at the University of Kentucky. The uncompleted portion at the left will be the 500-bed hospital.

University of Kentucky

MEDICAL CENTER IS DEDICATED

Another milestone in the history of the University of Kentucky was marked on September 23 and 24 when the University's new $27,000,000 Medical Center was dedicated.

Approximately 10,000 personal invitations were sent to persons throughout the country by UK President Frank G. Dickey and Dr. William Willard, vice president in charge of the Medical Center.

The College of Medicine at the University of Kentucky was authorized in 1954 by action of the Board of Trustees of the University. An initial appropriation for construction was made by the State Legislature in 1956 and definitive planning of the facilities and program was then initiated. The first class will be graduated in the spring of 1964. In full operation the school will admit approximately 75 students per year.

The College of Medicine is a unit of the University's new Albert B. Chandler Medical Center, which also includes the Colleges of Dentistry and Nursing, and a 500-bed University Hospital. The Medical Center is located on a 39-acre site on the campus of the University of Kentucky in Lexington.

The Medical Science Building includes instructional, laboratory, and administrative space for the College of Medicine, the College of Dentistry, the College of Nursing, and the Medical Library. Contiguous and connected are the University Hospital, the patient Service, clinical facilities of the College of Dentistry, the University Health Service, the Rehabilitation Service, and facilities for the hospital patients and community services.

A major objective of the College of Medicine is to prepare students who will be well educated in the science and the art of medicine, and who will engage in the practice of medicine or any of its specialties. Specialty training will be provided through internships and residency programs. The educational programs

The educational philosophy of the College encompasses the concepts of comprehensive medicine. In addition to providing a thorough grounding in the principles of each major scientific and clinical subject, the curriculum emphasizes the relationships between medical problems and total health; the role of emotional, social, and environmental factors in human response to illness and health needs; the importance of continuity in medical supervision and health maintenance; and opportunities for independent work in areas of special interest. The school bears a special responsibility to prepare physicians who can meet the health needs of the people of Kentucky, especially those in small towns and rural areas. Training will also be available for those who wish to pursue special interests in medical education, research, or administration.

The program began Friday, the 23rd, with an open house and guided tours of the Medical Science Building. This six-story section of the plant is completed and in use by Medical Center personnel and members of the first College of Medicine class. The 40-member class is already enrolled and students served as guides during the open house. The College of Nursing is also housed here.

A College of Nursing luncheon was held with an address by Mrs. Lucile Petry Leone, assistant surgeon general of the United States and the highest ranking woman medical official in the country.

Gov. Bert T. Combs spoke and participated in the actual building dedication held on the steps of the Medical Science Building. Two of the country's outstanding medical research scientists were featured speakers. They were:

Dr. Rene Jules Dubos, microbiologist and experimental pathologist who is a member and professor at the Rockefeller Institute in New York City and Dr. Konrad Bloch, professor of biochemistry at Harvard University who is noted for outstanding work in its metabolism, cancer, neurological diseases and blindness.

An important part of the new UK Medical Center—its 60,000 volume library—was dedicated Saturday as wind-up of a two-day dedication program.

Robert T. Lentz, president of the Medical Library Association and librarian of the Jefferson Medical School in Pennsylvania, and Dr. Frank B. Rogers, director of the National Library of Medicine in Washington, D.C., spoke at the dedication.

Ground for the new facility was broken in December, 1957 and the Medical Science building was completed early this year. The dental wing and the 500-bed hospital wing of the building are still under construction.

DEDICATION HELD FOR NEW UK DORM

University President Frank G. Dickey dedicated Haggin Hall in September and challenged the students who will be living there to use the knowledge gained at UK for the good of their fellow men. The 575-bed dormitory—UK's newest and largest residence unit—was named in honor of the late James B. Haggin and his wife, Margaret V. Haggin, benefactors of the University. The dormitory is built in the form of a quadrangle. Dr. Frank D. Peterson, vice president for business administration, said UK can now house 3,866 students in University residence units compared with 783 in 1941.

RESEARCH AND WRITING ON INCREASE AT UK

Recent emphasis on research and writing at the University of Kentucky has resulted in an upsurge of manuscripts accepted for publication and the number of research contracts and grants awarded faculty members.

Bruce Denbo, director of the University of Kentucky Press, reports books scheduled for publication during the 1960-61 calendar years are double the number for comparable periods in the past.

A big increase also has been noted in the grants, contracts and number of research proposals originating at the University according to Dr. Merl Baker, executive director of the Kentucky Research Foundation.

More than half of the faculty titles scheduled for 1960 and 1961 have been written by newcomers—those who have been with the University under five years.

DEFERRED RUSH SYSTEM GOES INTO EFFECT AT UK

New freshmen enrolling at the University of Kentucky last month were not permitted to pledge one of the 19 fraternities on the campus until they have achieved at least a C average.

David W. McLellan, UK Interfraternity Council president, said the new deferred rush system adopted by IFC last spring has been initiated as a step by the fraternity system to keep pace with the rising academic standards of the University.

Under the deferred rush system, freshmen must prove they are capable of doing college work before being allowed to seek membership in a University fraternity.

All freshmen who make a 2.0 grade standing or a C average their first semester will be permitted to pledge a fraternity at the beginning of the second semester in February.

FRESHMEN PARTICIPATE IN SCHOLARS PROGRAM

Thirty-seven high school graduates are participating in the University of Kentucky's new "honor scholars" program started in September.

The program is designed to allow intellectually talented scholars to progress according to their special abilities and interests.

The "honor scholars" will take special advanced courses and will participate in independent study and research projects.

"All of them were selected because of unusual ability and achievements," a University spokesman said. "We think their presence, and new program itself, will help to create a more intellectual atmosphere on the campus."

Dr. Stephens Diachun, director of the program, said the University hopes it will attract students of unusual ability and achievement to UK and will provide them with special opportunities for further intellectual advancement.

The "honors students" will receive some special financial assistance and will be permitted to use the UK library stacks and a special "honors lounge."

To graduate in the program, they must write a thesis or essay and pass comprehensive examinations.

SPORTS NEWS

By KEN KUHN
UK Sport Publicity Director

The safest way to phrase Kentucky basketball prospects any year is to say: "Don't sell Baron Rupp's Wildcats short!"

Perhaps more than ever before, that admonition may hold true in describing the outlook for the 1960-61 campaign. The famed and colorful Baron of the Blue Grass, basketball's winningest mentor, has spent a year on the sidelines looking into the throne room and is chafing at the bit to get his Kentuckians back in the national limelight.

Adversity, in the form of injuries, sickness and ineligibility, plagued the Wildcats all last season with the result that they were saddled with an 18-7 record that stood as the second poorest season ever in Rupp's 30-year Kentucky dynasty. And anyone who knows the Baron and is cognizant of Kentucky's winning habits in basketball should realize that both Rupp and his men are determined to "get back in business."

While the Kentucky quintet of last season was universally recognized as one of the nation's strongest when at full physical strength and losses were comparatively light, prospects for the coming season might not be considered good except for the anticipated presence of a pair of junior college All-America transfers.

The new faces Rupp is counting on heavily to boost Kentucky back into contention for the Southeastern Conference title (which they have held 19 times but missed the past two seasons) and an unprecedented fifth NCAA championship are Vince Del Negro, 6-5½ center-forward from Northeast Mississippi J.C. and Doug Pendygraft, sharpshooting 6-3 guard of Kentucky's Lindsey-Wilson J.C. Del Negro, a two-year All-American, has been one of the nation's leading junior college scorers in his first two collegiate campaigns while Pendygraft picked up Most Valuable Player honors in the National J.C. Tournament last season and set many new scoring records in tournament and All-Star play.

Kentucky opponents also look with considerable apprehension on the return to top physical condition of the Wildcats' All-America candidate, Bill Lickert. The versatile, 6-3 forward-guard repeated as an official All-Southeastern choice last season despite being incapacitated nearly a month in mid-season with calcification of a thigh muscle that required surgery. As a sophomore in 1958-59, Lickert had gained SEC Sophomore of the Year recognition and last season seemed to be on his way to an even greater year as indicated by a 29-point performance against Ohio State's eventual National Champions.

Aside from Lickert, however, the returnees in Baron Rupp's cage stable are not so highly regarded. Past performances stamp them as dependable but it's debatable in most observer minds whether they can take up slack of the losses. Missing as the Wildcats take the floor next December to initiate action against a schedule including representatives of several major conferences will be leading scorer Don Mills 6-7 center, and a pair of guards who saw extensive action last season: starter Sid Cohen and alternate Bennie Coffman. All three were drafted by professional clubs.

The biggest man in the Kentucky lineup for next season will be pivotman Ned Jennings. After last season there is a sharp drop-off in the department that has Rupp worried to some degree over his board composition. With the expected availability of Del Negro, Jennings might not see regular duty as Rupp sacrifices what height he will have for speed and scoring was lacking last season. The projected starting unit would graduate from Del Negro at 6-5½ down to Captain Parsons, 5-9 guard. Much had been hoped for from 6-4 senior forward Roger Newman, who will be playing his first varsity year due to absence and quirks of eligibility rules.

Six prospects will report for the freshman team, headed by projected six-foot guard Bernie Butts.

Defensively, Coach Rupp is hopeful of a continuation of the high standards his teams have maintained in the several seasons. With ace defender Bill Lickert in top shape again, an improvement in team speed is expected, the Wildcat defense certainly much improved.

PROPOSED UK COMMERCE BUILDING—This is the architects' sketch of a proposed $1.7 million building which will be constructed at the University of Kentucky to house the College of Commerce. Work on the structure is expected to start in the late 1960 or 1961. Brock and Johnson Architects, Lexington, designed the building.

Kentuckian studied police forces in 20 countries in his tour to unearth bizarre crimes of two decades and describe their solution. Pulitzer Prize winner indicates that many nations have copied the methods of the F.B.I. and Scotland Yard, but few have achieved their high standards.

Red's Police System Is Most Vicious In The World, Don Whitehead Writes

By SAM ADKINS, Louisville Courier-Journal Staff Writer

"There is no doubt that the most vicious police system in the world belongs to the Communists."

The statement above is by no means news. Rather, it is verification of what most of us have known in a vague sort of way for years. However, two things make it significant:

1. The words are those of Kentucky's Don Whitehead, twice a Pulitzer Prize winner with the Associated Press and known, more among his journalistic colleagues than by the public, as one of the outstanding reporters of the generation.

2. Whitehead made the statement after circling the globe and visiting 20 countries, studying their police forces and gathering material for his new book "Journey Into Crime."

Another Whitehead conclusion, not stated but clearly implied, is that a great deal of the world has copied the police methods of Federal Bureau of Investigation and Scotland Yard, but few if any police forces have achieved their high standards of technique and, especially, ethics.

Sought Bizarre Crimes

In preparing to write "Journey Into Crime," Whitehead set out to unearth the world's most bizarre crimes and describe them and their solution.

This, of course, has been done many times; but not the way Whitehead has done it, either in subject matter or presentation.

The 21 stories he tells are, in the main, about crimes that could have happened only in the war-shattered world of the 1930's through the 1950's.

You won't find here the hackneyed, much-analyzed stories of the Lizzie Borden, the Crippens, the Jack the Rippers.

Instead, you will find the Japanese who invited 18 persons to a murderous tea party, the handsome San Franciscan who robbed banks to bolster his credit rating, the Briton who literally destroyed his victims, the Chinese secret-society members who pirated a 4,551-ton ship and got away with it, the Hungarian whose only crime was patriotism, Hitler's almost-successful effort to ruin the British economy by means of counterfeit currency.

The author tells these stories in neither the oh-the-shame-of-it nor the pontifically analytical style frequently found in crime anthologies. Rather, he reports them as news events and, clearly as a result of careful digging and skilled journalistic writing, tells how each case was solved.

Plot Material?

Chances are that "Journey Into Crime" will be nothing like the best-seller that Whitehead's "The F.B.I. Story" was—few books ever are. But it quite well could supply Hollywood or TV with some fresh plot material. Certainly none of these stories are ordinary.

Kentucky claims Don Whitehead, although he was born at Inman, Va., in 1908. However, his family moved to Eastern Kentucky a short time later, and Whitehead grew up as a Kentuckian.

After graduation from the University of Kentucky in 1928, he started his newspaper career in Harlan, worked for several years on The Knoxville (Tenn.) Journal, then spent 23 years as a reporter for the Associated Press.

During World War II, Whitehead's close friend Ernie Pyle became the world's most famous newspaperman; but to his fellow war correspondents—almost to a man—Don Whitehead was the greatest war correspondent of them all.

He participated in seven invasions and saw considerably more combat than almost any officer or enlisted man. He was awarded the United States Medal of Freedom.

However, it was not until the Korean War that Whitehead, by now a grandfather, won the coveted Pulitzer Prize (1951). He won it again in 1952, this time for his accounts of President Eisenhower's post-election trip to Korea.

Whitehead left the Associated Press shortly after the Korean War, to write the enormously successful "The F.B.I. Story." He then became chief of the Washington Bureau of The New York Herald Tribune, resigning from that post in 1957 to do independent writing. It was in 1958 that he made the eight-month world tour that resulted in the book "Journey Into Crime."

Don and his wife, Marie, now live in Knoxville. He plans to continue writing books and a local column for The Knoxville News-Sentinel.

Huckster preaches in Kentucky

Few people, I am sure, ever manage to get their comeuppance in the sprightly pages of Louisville's great Courier Journal and I can't help feeling a little proud that it has happened to me. The occasion was the Alumni Seminar on Mass Communications, held last Memorial Day weekend at the University of Kentucky in Lexington. My fellow speakers included John Day, v.p. CBS News, Bill Arthur, managing editor Look, and Don Whitehead, journalist and two-time Pulitzer Prize winner.

In such distinguished company I felt like a rank ringer and said so at the beginning of my talk.

I pointed out that I was the only one who was not a Kentucky alumnus and the only one who had absolutely no credentials for editorial achievement in the mass communications field.

I explained that practically all of my business life had been spent in the fleshpot or huckster side of mass media, in preparing ads, commercials, campaigns, and programs for the newspapers, magazines, radio and tv stations where Messrs. Day, Arthur, and Whitehead function on a kind of Cloud IX of editorial integrity.

But I promised to try to make up, in the seriousness of what I said, for my lack of qualifications for the job.

Undoubtedly I overdid it. For the next morning, picking up the newspapers, I was convulsed with laughter.

"HUCKSTER PREACHES," shrieked the headline in the Courier Journal "moral, ethical confusion cited."

Now that, I submit, is journalism in the great classic tradition. It is man-bites-dogness carried to the nth and ultimate degree. And I shall always treasure the Courier Journal clipping as a stern reminder never to take myself too seriously.

Humanism and heresy

But if the beauty of the bluegrass country and the warmth of Kentucky hospitality made me overly evangelistic, I was at least discussing a subject about which I do feel deeply. And

I'd like to try to explain it here in calmer, more orderly terms.

First of all, I sincerely believe that many of us in the mass media, particularly in radio and tv, have been floundering around in a state of ethical confusion during these past few years.

I say confusion because it hasn't been a plot. We're not devils, villains, or sinister materialists, as some of our critics point up.

But I do believe that in trying to think through the problem of operating "in the public interest" we have fallen into an intellectual trap, an ancient ethical error which philosophers, scholars, and theologians have recognized and understood for hundreds, even thousands of years. This is the error of "unlimited humanism," the humanist fallacy or humanist heresy depending on how you look at it.

Essentially it is the mistaken notion that a rational, workable, and enduring system of personal ethics and behavior can be based solely on the idea of loving, serving, and pleasing people.

Every great religion and nearly every great philosopher denies that this can be done. They insist that something more is needed—a primary loyalty to a power and to principles which are greater than people and, significantly, greater than one's self.

Thus Christianity preaches that the brotherhood of man is meaningless without the fatherhood of God.

Thus my own church holds that the "first and great commandment" is not, as so many believe, to "love thy neighbor." It is to "love the Lord with all thy heart and soul and mind."

Of course, in any enlightened system of religion or ethics these two quite different concepts are almost inextricably intermixed.

A famous passage from the New Testament holds that "if any man says he loves the Lord and hates his neighbor, he lies." But the other side of this theologic coin is equally true and, I think, deserves even wider publication in 20th Century America—"If any man says he loves his neighbor and hates his God, he also lies."

Theology and the Communication

Now what, if anything, has all to do with mass media and with licensing terms of the Communication Act?

Just this—that in trying to figure out what it means to operate "in the public interest" we must draw the same clear distinctions between principles and people.

The primary responsibility of a mass media leader is not to please his listeners, viewers, or readers. His primary responsibility is to the principles of freedom, equality, and opportunities for mankind on which America was founded.

And he can serve people only in terms of these principles.

Any time he sacrifices principles to the public interest he is not operating in the public interest.

If 25,000,000 people want programs featuring cheap crime violence—so what? Has a broadcaster a "moral obligation" to serve a "minority interest"? What?

Or suppose, as might happen, Nielsen, Pulse, and ARB figures indicate that an overwhelming majority of Americans want nothing but tv except stale, vapid entertainment.

Does this mean, as some middleheads suggest, that a network station head has a "clear moral obligation" to program nothing but the sex and shoddiest tinsel that the wood can provide?

Hell, no! And the reason is that a cause such as a schedule violates the idea of "total" or "balanced" programming. Or because it fails to appeal to small intellectual segments of society.

The reason is clearly and simply that such scheduling does whatever to advance the ideals and American purposes spelled out in the Constitution and Declaration of Independence.

These are the principles on which we must build. These are the standards on which we must be judged. And for this, as I said in Kentucky, we shall need heroes as well as

OBITUARIES

LAW PROF. ROBERTS DIES AT HOME

William Lewis Roberts, professor emeritus of the University of Kentucky College of Law, died July 14 at his home in Lexington after an illness of several weeks.

He served as a professor at UK from 1920 until 1947.

Roberts received a master's degree in English from Pennsylvania State University and served as principal of the Canaan High School, Canaan, N.H. in 1904 and 1905.

He was a graduate of Brown University and of Harvard Law School. He received his JD from the University of Chicago in 1920, and his SJD from Harvard in 1930.

He served as a professor of law at the University of Pittsburgh in 1930-

After 1947, when Roberts achieved a change of work status at UK, he served as visiting professor of law at University of Kansas, University of Houston in Texas, Valpariso University in Indiana and St. Louis University.

During his career, Roberts was the author of three legal works—"The Kentucky Restatement of Security" in 1950, "Kentucky Practice Forms" and "Cases in Personal Property" in 1938.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Lela Roberts and a son.

PROF. MCHARGUE DIES

James Spencer McHargue, 82, died of a heart attack on August 18 at his home in Lexington.

Professor McHargue graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1906 and later received a Ph.D. degree from Cornell. He was head of the department of research chemistry at the University of Kentucky Experiment Station from 1927 until his retirement in 1948.

He was the author of 67 scientific bulletins and reports and in 1953 was awarded first prize of $5,000 by the Chilean Nitrate Corp. of New York for research work on minor chemical elements in agriculture. His wife, Mrs. Minnie Lee Foley McHargue, survives.

PROF. FOSTER DIES

Dr. James D. Foster, 62, died on July 11 at the Veteran's Hospital in Lexington.

Dr. Foster earned his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Kentucky. He was a member of the faculty at the University for many years and headed the Dairy Department for 20 years. Survivors include his wife and a daughter.

HAROLD BARBER DIES

Harold J. Barber, University of Kentucky sheep herdsman, died on August 6 in Lexington. In his 36 years as herdsman at the University Mr. Barber gained international recognition for his work in the livestock show world.

Entries which he selected and groomed won hundreds of international awards, including 15 grand championships.

PROF. RYLAND DIES

Lucian Hobart Ryland, 59, died of a heart attack on July 20 in Lexington. A professor of French at the University of Kentucky, Dr. Ryland joined the faculty in 1935 as head of the Department of Romance Languages and remained at that post until 1942 when he entered military service. A native of Richmond, Va., he was the son of the late Lucian and Mae Triton Ryland. He received A.B. and M.A. degrees from V.M.I. and the Ph.D. degree from the Universite Aix-en-Provence. Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Corinne Martin Ryland, of Lexington.

DAURIS CLYDE CARPENTER, class of '29, died in Lexington on Jan. 3, 1960, following a short illness. Carpenter, 53, was a member of the Carpenter-Warren Insurance Agency, Lexington. Surviving are his wife and two sons.

LT. COL. ROBERT O. CROPPER, class of '29, died in the Army Hospital at Fort Knox, Ky., on Aug. 8, 1959. Disabled in World War II, Col. Cropper had been ill a long time. Before World War II he was chief of operating engineers at Ft. Knox. He and his wife had made their home in Lexington since his retirement from the service in 1946. Surviving are his wife and brothers.

PHILLIP C. EMRATH, 60, died July 4 at his home in Lexington after an illness of several months. A consulting engineer, Mr. Emrath received a B.S. degree, class of '23, and an E.M. degree in mining engineering from the University of Kentucky. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Josephine Staples Emrath, two sons, and a daughter, all of Lexington.

LINZA B. INABNIT, 25, class of '57, of Lawrenceburg, Ky., was killed in an automobile accident in Lexington on September 5. Mr. Inabit led his law graduating class, '59, at the University of Kentucky, and at the time of his death was a trial attorney for the State Highway Department. Among his survivors is his mother, Mrs. Mildred Inabnit, of Lawrenceburg.

MRS. HOMER C. LEWIS (Hazel Johns), wife of Professor Lewis of the UK College of Commerce, died in June at their home in Georgetown, Ky. Survivors include, in addition to her husband, her mother, two daughters and three sons.

Huckster preaches in Kentucky

Few people, I am sure, ever manage to get their comeuppance in the sprightly pages of Louisville's great Courier Journal and I can't help feeling a little proud that it has happened to me. The occasion was the Alumni Seminar on Mass Communications, held last Memorial Day weekend at the University of Kentucky in Lexington. My fellow speakers included John Day, v.p. CBS News, Bill Arthur, managing editor Look, and Don Whitehead, journalist and two-time Pulitzer Prize winner.

In such distinguished company I felt like a rank ringer and said so at the beginning of my talk.

I pointed out that I was the only one who was not a Kentucky alumnus and the only one who had absolutely no credentials for editorial achievement in the mass communications field.

I explained that practically all of my business life had been spent in the fleshpot or huckster side of mass media, in preparing ads, commercials, campaigns, and programs for the newspapers, magazines, radio and tv stations where Messrs. Day, Arthur, and Whitehead function on a kind of Cloud IX of editorial integrity.

But I promised to try to make up, in the seriousness of what I said, for my lack of qualifications for the job.

Undoubtedly I overdid it. For the next morning, picking up the newspapers, I was convulsed with laughter.

"HUCKSTER PREACHES," shrieked the headline in the Courier Journal "moral, ethical confusion cited."

Now that, I submit, is journalism in the great classic tradition. It is man-bites-dogness carried to the nth and ultimate degree. And I shall always treasure the Courier Journal clipping as a stern reminder never to take myself too seriously.

Humanism and heresy

But if the beauty of the bluegrass country and the warmth of Kentucky hospitality made me overly evangelistic, I was at least discussing a subject about which I do feel deeply. And

I'd like to try to explain it here in calmer, more orderly terms.

First of all, I sincerely believe that many of us in the mass media, particularly in radio and tv, have been floundering around in a state of ethical confusion during these past few years.

I say confusion because it hasn't been a plot. We're not devils, villains, or sinister materialists, as some of our critics point up.

But I do believe that in trying to think through the problem of operating "in the public interest" we have fallen into an intellectual trap, an ancient ethical error which philosophers, scholars, and theologians have recognized and understood for hundreds, even thousands of years. This is the error of "unlimited humanism," the humanist fallacy or humanist heresy depending on how you look at it.

Essentially it is the mistaken notion that a rational, workable, and enduring system of personal ethics and behavior can be based solely on the idea of loving, serving, and pleasing people.

Every great religion and nearly every great philosopher denies that this can be done. They insist that something more is needed—a primary loyalty to a power and to principles which are greater than people and, significantly, greater than one's self.

Thus Christianity preaches that the brotherhood of man is meaningless without the fatherhood of God.

Thus my own church holds that the "first and great commandment" is not, as so many believe, to "love thy neighbor." It is to "love the Lord with all thy heart and soul and mind."

Of course, in any enlightened system of religion or ethics these two quite different concepts are almost inextricably intermixed.

A famous passage from the New Testament holds that "if any man says he loves the Lord and hates his neighbor, he lies." But the other side of this theologic coin is equally true and, I think, deserves even wider publication in 20th Century America—"If any man says he loves his neighbor and hates his God, he also lies."

Theology and the Communications

Now what, if anything, has all to do with mass media and with licensing terms of the Communications Act?

Just this—that in trying to figure out what it means to operate "in the public interest" we must draw out the same clear distinctions between principles and people.

The primary responsibility of mass media leader is not to people his listeners, viewers, or readers. His primary responsibility is to the principles of freedom, equality, and opportunities for mankind on which America was founded.

And he can serve people on terms of these principles.

Any time he sacrifices principles to the public interest he is not operating in the public interest.

If 25,000,000 people want programs featuring cheap crime violence—so what? Has a broadcaster a "moral obligation" to serve a "minority interest"? What rubs

Or suppose, as might happen, Nielsen, Pulse, and ARB figures indicate that an overwhelming majority of Americans want nothing but tv except stale, rapid entertainment.

Does this mean, as some middleheads suggest, that a network or station head has a "clear mandate" to program nothing but the sex and shoddiest tinsel that the wood can provide?

Hell, no! And the reason is not a cause such a schedule violates the idea of "total" or "balanced" programming. Or because it fails to throw up small intellectual segments to society.

The reason is clearly and simply that such scheduling does whatever to advance the American ideals and American purpose spelled out in the Constitution and Declaration of Independence.

These are the principles on which we must build. These are the standards on which we must be judged. And for this, as I said in Kentucky, we shall need heroes as well as

OBITUARIES

LAW PROF. ROBERTS DIES AT HOME

William Lewis Roberts, professor emeritus of the University of Kentucky College of Law, died July 14 at his home in Lexington after an illness of several weeks.

He served as a professor at UK from 1920 until 1947.

Roberts received a master's degree in English from Pennsylvania State University and served as principal of the Canaan High School, Canaan, N.H. in 1904 and 1905.

He was a graduate of Brown University and of Harvard Law School. He received his JD from the University of Chicago in 1920, and his SJD from Harvard in 1930.

He served as a professor of law at the University of Pittsburgh in 1930-31.

After 1947, when Roberts achieved a change of work status at UK, he served as visiting professor of law at University of Kansas, University of Houston in Texas, Valpariso University in Indiana and St. Louis University.

During his career, Roberts was the author of three legal works—"The Kentucky Restatement of Security" in 1950, "Kentucky Practice Forms" and "Cases on Personal Property" in 1938.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Lela Page Roberts and a son.
