Welcome Week May Be Changed

The annual administrative nightmare known as Welcome Week may be tackled from a new angle next year.

Dr. Kenneth L. Harper, assistant dean of men and director of Welcome Week activities, outlined several of the changes he hopes to make when the new freshman class arrives for orientation next fall.

If Dr. Harper has his way, next year's freshmen will spend more time with his academic advisor.

"This is the most crucial thing in the whole program," said Dr. Harper. "The student must have sufficient time with his advisor. I believe his whole academic career hinges on this."

The suggested changes are the results of a recent study conducted by Dr. Harper designed to point out possible improvements in the Welcome Week program. The final word about changes in the Welcome Week agenda belongs to the faculty-composed Welcome Week Committee.

The Welcome Week director expressed hope that an informal meeting could be arranged between the new freshmen and approximately 200 faculty members.

Dr. Harper explained that the get-together would provide an opportunity for the faculty to answer the students' questions and "set the academic atmosphere for the year." This meeting could replace one of the Welcome Week dances, according to Dr. Harper.

"We tried to do the impossible this year at registration," he said. "We attempted to process all the students Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. Next year we'll take more time with it."

The administrator said he wished there were some way of expanding the orientation phase of Welcome Week to include a greater period of time.

"After Welcome Week is over we forget about the poor freshmen, and in a couple of weeks he's so homesick he can't stand it," Dr. Harper continued. "I'd like to see orientation take place over the entire first semester. You just don't orient someone to university life in one week."

Construction To Begin On Euclid Widening

Initial construction on the widening of Euclid Avenue between Rose and High Streets may begin next week, according to Howard Gabbard, associate city traffic engineer.

The work between Rose and Limestone streets will not begin for some time, Gabbard said.

"We hope that contract will be let next spring," he said.

The construction of the overpass and the widening of Euclid Avenue between Limestone and Rose Streets will be done as one project, he said.

Gabbard said heavy construction may not start for two or three months, but the utilities companies may start cutting trees, setting new poles and lines, and laying a new sewer line next week.

The Kentucky Highway Department last month accepted the $342,000 bid of the Codell Construction Co., to widen Euclid Avenue from Limestone to High Street.

Since that time, the project has been divided into two phases: widening Euclid between Rose and High Streets, and a later widening project between Limestone and Rose Streets.

Gabbard said the construction of the latter phase was delayed because of difficulties in reaching agreement on plans to construct an overpass for students at Euclid and Harrison Streets.

Gabbard said cross streets cutting the construction strip to be started next week will be kept open to traffic.

Answering criticism which said the widening of Euclid Avenue was unnecessary, Gabbard said, "UK is the largest business Lexington has. Anything we can do to help the flow of traffic in that area, the better off we'll all be."

Bonds Sale Approved For Science Building

A syndicate headed by Bear, Stearns and Co. of New York was low bidder for the 8 million dollar bond issue for construction of the proposed science building.

The Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees approved the sale of the 8 million dollar bond issue at a meeting yesterday afternoon.

The low bid was at an average interest rate of 3.599 percent. Next lowest bidder was Blyth & Co. of Chicago and Louisville at an average interest rate of 3.964 percent.

The difference in the two bids was $5,525 on the entire bond issue. The bonds will be gradually retired by part of the student fees taken in each semester.

The Physics-Chemistry building will be located on the present site of the tennis courts and part of President Frank G. Dickey's garden. Construction will begin in 2 or 3 weeks.

Bids on the Margaret I. King Library addition will not be advertised until about Dec. 1.

In other actions at the meeting, the committee accepted gifts for the University totaling $12,955. Donors and their gifts include:

Naugatuck Chemical, Naugatuck, Conn., $1,000 to the College of Agriculture covering the second payment of the grant-in-aid for field tests on burley tobacco.

The American Dairy Association of Kentucky, Louisville, donated $500 for the Dairy Education and Scholarship Fund; Lexington Junior League, $2,500 to be used by the Department of Art in conducting the second high school art studio week during the summer of 1961.

General Motors Corporation, Detroit, Mich., $6,130 to the Kentucky Research Foundation in support of the University's scholarship program; American Society for Metals, Novelty, Ohio, $500 given to the Research Foundation in support of one scholarship for the year 1960-61.

Nut Grove Products Co., Inc., Atlantic, Iowa, $1,000 grant-in-aid to be used by the Department of Animal Husbandry for swine nutrition research.

National Plant Food Institute, Chicago, Ill., $200 to be presented to the next winner of the National Plant Food Institute Agronomy Achievement Award; Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation, St. Matthews; $125 to be used as a scholarship for the first semester of the 1960-61 academic year.

Encyclopedia Britannica, Inc., $1,000 representing a scholarship to a student for his sales record last summer.

Miscellaneous gifts and their donors were:

International Harvester Co., Lexington, a gas engine for use in research and teaching given to the Agricultural Engineering Department and Yoder Brothers, Inc., Barberton, Ohio, a gift of chrysanthemum cuttings to the College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

The committee also approved 3 practicum supervisor appointments to the Department of Psychology, one appointment each to the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, College of Commerce, and College of Engineering.

Three appointments were made by the committee to the Extended Program, three to the Medical Center and four to the Office of the Vice President.

UCLA Professor

To Lecture Today

Dr. George O. Abell, assistant professor of astronomy, at the University of California at Los Angeles, will lecture on "Exploring the Farthest Reaches of Space" tonight at 8 o'clock in Room 111 of McVey Hall.

Dr. Abell is a guest of the University of Kentucky's Department of Physics and the Department of Mathematics and Astronomy. His visit is under the auspices of the visiting astronomers program of the American Astronomical Society and the National Science Foundation.

Dr. Abell will also have a seminar today at 4 p.m. in Room 104 of McVey Hall and one on Friday in Pence Hall in Room 208. The seminars are on the subjects of "Measuring Extragalactic Distances" and "The Large Scale Structure of the Universe."

Actors, Athletes To Visit Campus

A group of celebrities who will be in Lexington campaigning on behalf of Sen. John Kennedy, Democratic presidential nominee, will be introduced at the Homecoming Game Saturday afternoon.

John Y. Brown, UK law student and co-chairman of the reception committee said the group, representing the theatrical and sports world, will be headed by Shelley Winters and Jeff Chandler.

Other than Miss Winters and Chandler, the group will include Mrs. Peter Lawford, sister of Senator Kennedy, Stan Musial, James Mitchener, Angie Dickenson, Arthur Schlesinger Jr., Byron White, and Al Smith.

Plans include a motorcade to Stall Field Saturday afternoon, where the group will be introduced at the Kentucky-Vanderbilt game.

The celebrities are scheduled to arrive at 10 a.m. at Blue Grass Hotel.

Field and go by motorcade to the Phoenix Hotel where a reception will be held in the ballroom.

Democratic officials said members of the group would remain at the hotel until all persons attending had gone through the receiving line.

Lesley Decker, President of the University Young Democrats, said that the student political organization would participate in the motorcade from Blue Grass Field to the hotel and back to Stall Field.

Mrs. John Kennedy's mother, Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss of McLean, Va., scheduled to arrive in Lexington today, will join the group Saturday at the Phoenix Hotel.

WORLD NEWS AT A GLANCE Naval Base Defended

HAVANA, Nov. 2 (AP)—The U.S. Navy's chief in the Caribbean disclosed today that American mine fields were planted a few weeks ago along the fence enclosing the 45-square-mile Guantanamo Naval Base—just in case.

"The mine fields are labeled plainly," Rear Adm. Allen Smith, commander of the 10th Naval District, told reporters at that base. "Dr. Castro has stepped up his tempo and we have taken steps accordingly. We have made our defense a little bit tighter."

Kennedy Lashes GOP Tactics

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Nov. 2 (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy today lashed out with a scathing, jeering attack on what he called "desperate and despicable" tactics by the Republicans.

Kennedy told a boisterous rally that a poster had been shown outside a defense plant here saying "Jack Kennedy is after your job."

With heavy irony, Kennedy repeated it and then added: "I'm after Mr. Eisenhower's job."

Kennedy Blasts Defense

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy today called the Defense Department's release Monday of $155 million for development of the B70 supersonic bomber a "transparent political maneuver."

"The objective is not to increase national defenses," he said in a statement issued through the Democratic National Committee. "It is to increase Republican votes."

Britisher Leads Congo Raid

LULUABOURG, the Congo, Nov. 2 (AP)—An English adventurer told today of leading a punitive raid of looting and burning Baluba tribesmen against their hereditary enemies, the Kanokas.

John Meredith Roberts, 23, admitted leading a reprisal raid but denied participating in the killing of Kanokas tribesmen, allies of Communist-backed ex-Premier Patrice Lumumba.

Dr. James J. Jenkins of the University of Minnesota will discuss "Associative Factors in Verbal Behavior" at tonight's program in the psychology lecture series. The lecture will be at 8:30 in Room 124 of the Funkhouser Building.

Dr. Jenkins is a professor in the psychology department at Minnesota, where he received his doctorate. He spent a year at the Center for Advanced Studies in the Behavioral Sciences and has been engaged in verbal behavior research since 1950.

Poster Policy

The University policy has always been that posters should be put up in such a way as not to cause damage to buildings or property.

The University prefers that posters be placed on campus bulletin boards provided for that purpose. But if they are attached to trees, they should be attached with string or tape and not tacks or nails.

3 Southern Colleges Offer Administration Fellowships

The University is one of three southern schools at which students may receive a fellowship in public administration under a program sponsored by the Southern Regional Training Program in Public Administration.

June graduates may apply for the $2,000 fellowships at UK, the University of Alabama, or the University of Tennessee.

The fellows will serve for three months with a governmental agency in one of the three states and will take graduate courses at one of the universities.

Among the governmental agencies at which the students selected will serve their internship are TVA, the Marshall Space Flight Center, or a department in some city or state government.

Completion of the training and college year will entitle fellows to a certificate in public administration. They may be awarded a master's degree at either of the three universities upon completion of a thesis and passing appropriate examinations.

Government Heads Assure Proper Spending Of Funds

FRANKFORT, Ky., Oct. 31—Governor Bert Combs, Highway Commissioner Henry Ward, and Ed Fox, Parks Commissioner, have joined in assuring Kentucky Congressional nominees that if the roads-and-parks bond issue is approved by the voters November 8, funds derived from the sale of bonds will be spent properly.

Senator John Sherman Cooper, Republican, had said in a television debate with his Democratic opponent, former Governor Keen Johnson, that the state administration should declare firmly that the funds would not be spent to promote political interests.

The Governor and the two commissioners who would be in charge of the programs sent the following telegram to each Congress nominee:

"This is to assure you that the highway funds from the roads-and-parks bond issue will be used only to match federal funds and will be spent under the supervision of the Federal Government.

"All such funds will be used on a nonpartisan, nonpolitical basis and will be used only to build roads in Kentucky in the most efficient and economical manner possible.

REALLY LIVING

Meaningless Grades

University students have missed quite a bit of sleep and burned a lot of midnight oil this week and will continue to do so until midterm exams are completed and the grades turned in.

Much of this extra effort on the part of students will be to no avail, however, if the past performances of some professors gives any indication of what they will do this semester. Some instructors do not even bother to grade midterm exams; or if they do grade them, they do not turn in the students' actual grades.

Last year we heard many complaints from students who received lower midterm grades than they felt they deserved, only to learn that everyone in the class got a "C." Some professors attempt to justify their little deception by pointing out that the midterms really mean nothing and that only the final grade counts. Others hold that giving students lower grades will spur them to higher attainment.

We are aware that the only value of the midterm grade is as an indication of whether the student is passing any courses that might be prerequisites for courses in which he is planning to preclassify, but we still feel that if students are going to have to expend so much time and effort in taking midterm grades, they are entitled to an accurate accounting of the results.

The way things now stand there is not even any use in having midterm exams.

Getting Rid Of Queens

We have noted a refreshing change in the campus atmosphere during the past few days. There seems to be more exuberance on campus as we noted livelier campaigning for Homecoming queen than we can remember having seen in years.

The campus has been flooded with posters and signs proclaiming the myriad qualities of the more than 30 queen candidates and it would seem that student enthusiasm is returning after having fallen to its nadir following last year's Thanksgiving riot after the Tennessee victory.

Many explanations could be offered for this phenomenon, but we feel we have the answer. Here it is the first week of November and we are having the first real queen contest of the semester.

By the time Homecoming had rolled around in the past, the campus had already been deluged by more queens than graced all the thrones of 18th century Europe. In the past, we would have already had Lances, Keys, and Pershing Rifles queens. This year we have had just the Sigma Chi Derby queen and that was not a campuswide contest.

Just as a wag observed several years ago, there's nothing wrong with this University that getting rid of a few of those damn queens can't cure.

The Bearded One Squirms

By J. M. ROBERTS

Associated Press News Analyst

Fidel Castro obviously expects somebody to try to do to him what he did to Fulgencio Batista, but he isn't getting anywhere with his effort to convince the United Nations that the invader will be the United States.

The picture of an American behemoth standing over poor little Cuba with mailed fist drawn back to strike is just a little too much for the delegates to swallow. As the Nepal delegate said of Communist tactics in general, it's an insult to their intelligence.

A fundamental practice of the United Nations is to give anybody a hearing about anything. But twice now the delegates have ruled that Cuba's accusation of an impending U.S. invasion is inconsequential, to be debated in its turn with other routine of the Political Committee, with no air of immediacy.

What Castro is trying to do is lay the groundwork for charging, when the anti-Castro refugees do try to go home by force—as they will—that the Cuban people are being attacked by the United States. Otherwise he might find the loyalty of his militia rather spotty.

In the meantime, Castro hopes to substitute fear of invasion for growing unrest at home over the ever-mounting failure of his economic program.

He owns all the newspapers and radio stations now, so that he can publish these gambits in the United Nations against a background of his own manufacture. And his actions in New York in September strongly suggest he is not sensitive to the impression he creates abroad.

There's nothing he would like better than to provoke a military incident, and nothing the United States will be more careful to avoid. All of Cuba is now "off limits" to American military personnel except the tiny enclave at Guantanamo Bay, which Cuba leased to the United States in perpetuity as a part of her own defense.

The Castro administration, while talking about some vague "legal" means or recapturing that base, itself admits that a military attack would be "idiotic."

The Castro regime also is building up trouble for itself with its bragging about growing military strength. Already the Castro revolutionaries have caused some shooting in several other Latin American countries, and their activities are growing more and more irksome to these governments. As their fears are enhanced, so will be their sympathy and material support for a counterrevolution in Cuba.

On The Campaign Trail

Waning Crowdmanship

By GEOFFREY GOULD

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy's camp is suffused with an air of quiet confidence in these final days of the campaign, but there is no attempt to exploit it or display it ostentatiously.

Quite the reverse, in fact. It seems to be Kennedy's policy, and it is followed by all his aides, to avoid grandiose claims of victory.

On Monday in Philadelphia, Kennedy said in a speech, "I look to the future with some degree of hope." That's about as far as he went until Tuesday night. Under the stimulus of a "he's going to win" introduction by Adlai Stevenson, Kennedy said, "We're going to march forward to success and victory."

Nor do they try to make much of the huge and tremendously enthusiastic crowds Kennedy draws almost everywhere. They decline to issue their own crowd estimates or even solicit them from police officials. They let the reporters do that for themselves if they wish.

This sort of playing it cool and close to the vest is a considered policy of Kennedy and his strategists. Last weekend news stories emanated from the camp of Vice President Richard M. Nixon to the effect that he believes he can carry most or all of six big Northern industrial states and will have a winning margin in electoral votes.

The stories contained a detailed rundown of how Nixon associates figure his chances in all the sections of the country. There has been at least one report that Nixon himself was the source of these stories, but stipulated that they should not be attributed directly to him.

The stories got wide display. In the interest of achieving full coverage, the Associated Press asked Pierre Salinger, Kennedy's press secretary, if the senator or any of his aides desired to give their own estimates on a state by state basis.

Salinger's reply was terse. "We don't care to play that game," he said.

The business of comparing crowd estimates of the two candidates has been called "crowdmanship" by Nixon.

But Nixon at almost every speaking stop these days takes note of the crowd he has drawn, or mentions one at a previous stop. He says if such a crowd turns out for him he is sure to carry that state.

He also often says he senses a strong tide running in his favor, that he is certain of victory on Nov. 8.

Kennedy, on the other hand, never mentions crowds in his speeches. He appears so eager to get his message across that he will hardly even let a crowd roar its approval as long as it might want. He cuts it short and resumes his rapid-fire delivery.

At each Nixon rally an aide finds a police official and gets a crowd estimate from him. Then he circulates the figure and the official's name among the newsmen covering the rally.

This makes things easier for the newsmen, but they sometimes find that some of these crowd estimates are greatly inflated by exuberant local officials.

The whole question of who draws the biggest crowd has probably been overemphasized in this campaign already.

Average College Cost About $1,550 A Year

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 15 (AP)—One year of college education for a boy or girl costs an average of $1,550 out-of-pocket—and although more than half of the nation's college students earn a part of their expenses, 21 percent of parents find "real difficulty" in financing such educations.

This is one of the significant findings of a University of Michigan survey on "How people pay for college."

Conducted by the University's Survey Research Center for the U.S. Office of Education, the study examines the effect of college expenses on a family-by-family basis.

The authors of the study, John B. Lansing, Thomas Lorimer, and Chikashi Moriguchi, compiled their findings from interviews with 2,700 families across the United States.

The results, they say, reveal that now, more than ever before, American parents are counting on sending their children to college and are doing some hard-header financial planning to get them there. "There seems to be little question that parents are now making more adequate provisions for the future than did the parents of children who have recently been to college," the report says.

But . . . "The experience of many parents whose children recently attended college was one of financial difficulty. Hence, there is substantial room for improvement in planning ahead."

The pig, if I am not mistaken, supplies us sausage, ham, and bacon. Let others say his heart is big—I call it stupid of the pig.—Ogden Nash.

Only one family in 10, the survey shows, expects financial aid from inheritances, gifts, or scholarships, and four out of five expect the student to help pay his way with a summer or part-time job.

"It's an increasingly common pattern for some additional member of the family—usually the mother—to go to work to help support the student. The survey shows this happening in one of every five families.

This is regarded as normal, the researchers report, and parents generally prefer this or almost any method of finance to borrowing.

Professors Support Constitution Revision

The University chapter of the American Association of University Professors passed a resolution Monday calling revision to the state constitution essential to the state's educational program.

Released by Dr. Robert D. Haun, president of the chapter, the resolution said the constitution was "outmoded in many respects and revision is essential to the future progress of Kentucky in general and to the state's educational program in particular.

The professors pledged their support to the calling of the UK community and Kentucky citizens to support the move.

Three Named To Revision Group

Three UK students have been named to an advisory committee of the Committee for Constitutional Improvement to get the backing of college voters for the call for a limited constitutional convention.

and Lowell Hughes, law student and former Wildcat football player.

Twenty-seven colleges in Kentucky now have bipartisan organizations working for constitutional revision. The groups will work with Republican Jim Carroll and Democrat Bert Edwards, the college coordinators for the committee.

Vandy's Morris Back To Trouble Cats

A Louisville player majoring in industrial psychology attempts to make Kentucky's job unpleasant Saturday afternoon.

Quarterback Russ Morris also hopes to win back the starting position he lost to Hank Lesesne as Vanderbilt beat Clemson last weekend.

Lesesne took over the starting quarterback position by leading the Commodores to their last two touchdowns against Clemson.

It was Morris who put the game out of the reach of Kentucky at Nashville last year with a field goal as Vandy won, 11-6.

Morris' most effective play is the roll-out option, a maneuver where he may pass or run. Before the Clemson game, he had averaged 11 yards per carry on this play.

The 5-11, 183-pound senior went to Vanderbilt after being captain of the Louisville Male team where he was an All-State choice.

A versatile athlete, he played quarterback in high school, halfback as a freshman in 1957, fullback in '58, and was moved to quarterback last year.

Because of his defensive ability,

Well Liked At Home

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — The University of Wyoming established a home attendance record for Cowboy football games in 1959 when four contests attracted 55,759 spectators.

he played more than any other quarterback in the league last year. He kicked eight of 11 PATs and booted the first Vanderbilt field goal since 1954.

He also led the league in pass interceptions with five. His versatility even extended to the punting department where he punted 67 times for a 37.4 average.

His 67 punts were the most by any punter in the league.

Three other Kentuckians are on the Commodore squad. Bobby Nay, a 200-pound senior from Morganfield, is the fullback. Nay hails from the same town as Kentucky's Jim Fisher.

Bill Thomas is a 218-pound junior from Trigg County. Thomas is the number two tackle.

The number two center is Davison Thompson from Louisville Male High. The 205-pound sophomore is described as a "hard knocker" by Coach Art Guepe.

Vandy Has New Play

Vanderbilt claims it has a new play which has been used effectively the last two games.

The innovation is the "Nay Play," a maneuver on which a Commodore tackler knocks an opponent loose from the football and Fullback Bobby Nay recovers it for Vandy.

The play was used twice in the Marquette game and once in the Clemson game. Vanderbilt's opponents have fumbled eight times this year, the Commodores have recovered six, and on four occasions, Nay has come up with the ball.

Coach Must Go On

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Iowa Football Coach Forest Evashevski, whose Hawkeye teams won Rose Bowl games twice in three years in the late 50's, had a date to address a doctors' meeting. He also had a cold and a temperature of 102 degrees.

He made the speech anyhow. He could have had medical attention promptly if he had needed it. But he urged the doctors to work with high school coaches in spotting athletic injuries which could be serious while appearing to be minor.

Murtaugh Is A Guard

NEW YORK (AP) — Pittsburgh Manager Danny Murtaugh's 43rd birthday wasn't such a bust after all.

His Pirates had bowed to the Yankees, 10-0, but son Timmy that night had aided St. James High of Chester, Pa., in an 18-0 football victory.

"I don't know what it means," said Mrs. Murtaugh, "but Timmy made 11 tackles and assisted in eight others."

Timmy Murtaugh is a guard.

Smart Coach, Too

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — The Air Force Academy figures it has the smartest college football team in the nation—academically, at least.

Coach Ben Martin can field an entire team of players with a B average or better.

"I never try to outsmart these fellows," says Martin, who was sixth in a class of 1,045 when he was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1945.

Jim Hardy, brother of former Kentucky Quarterback Bob Hardy, is listed as one of the Vandy quarterbacks.

'Nervous At First'

Football 'Mom' Calls Job Fun

By JUDY SHARPE

What's it like to be "mom" to 48 football players? One woman on the campus knows, Mrs. Helen Fishback — the housemother at Wildcat Manor.

For the last five years, Mrs. Fishback has been counseling the players and listening to their problems. Whenever she talks of the players, she always refers to them as "my boys."

She is never called anything but "mom" by the players. She described the various reactions of the players before a game. "In the four or five hours before a game, some of the players get nervous and cannot eat. Others just sit around and say nothing."

When Mrs. Fishback, a Lexingtonian by birth, first accepted the position, she was nervous. "However, I have found my job both fascinating and fun. I have never regretted being here," she stated.

The one thing which antagonizes the housemother is the manner in which people refer to football players as dumb.

"Last year, the players had an overall average of 2.33 while the rest of the male students had an average of 2.30."

"All 48 men at the Manor are here on scholarship and they respect these scholarships. The players come here to play football because of their love of the game, but their primary aim is to get an education," Mrs. Fishback said.

She went on, "Without a football scholarship, most of the men would be unable to attend college. A man would have to have some degree of intelligence just to read Coach Collier's handbook."

She said that she knew a lot about football when she took the job. "After listening to the boys talk and by asking a few questions, I realized the fine organization and hard work that goes into a game."

Once a season, Mrs. Fishback is taken on a road trip with the team. Last weekend, she journeyed to Tallahassee to see the Florida State game.

She says she enjoys these trips because she loves to see the boys play. She attends all home games.

Mrs. Fishback is helped in the management of the football house by the Student Council. The responsibility of seeing that the players observe training rules, however, rests with the two Co-captains — Jerry Eisaman and Lloyd Hodge.

Mrs. Fishback frequently receives calls from players who have turned professional. She also corresponds with other players who have graduated.

Hutchinson Leads Bird In Wildcat Scoring Race

Kentucky End Tom Hutchinson is threatening to break the stranglehold Calvin Bird has held on Kentucky scoring for the last two years.

Hutchinson leads Bird in scoring, 24-18, with three games remaining on the Wildcat schedule.

Hutchinson had caught three touchdown passes and scored another TD on an intercepted pass. Bird has run for two scores and caught a pass for his third touchdown.

Clarkie Mayfield is third with 16 points. Charlie Sturgeon and Jimmy Poynter, with 12 each, trail Hutchinson, Bird and Mayfield.

Gary Cochran is the rushing leader with a 5.5 average on 173 yards in 31 carries. Sturgeon is close behind with 178 yards on 38 rushes and an average of 4.6 per carry.

Jimmy Poynter is third with 149 yards on 35 attempts for a 4.2 average.

Jerry Woolum has hit on 55 of 106 passes to lead the passers. Woolum has completed 52 percent of his tosses.

Jerry Eisaman has completed 49 percent of his passes—17 of 35. Both Woolum and Eisaman have thrown three touchdown passes.

State Studies Machines To Keep Highway Records

Kentucky may become the first state in the nation to develop an electronic machine records program that will keep timely information constantly available on its highway construction program.

The state's planned use of machine records is the basis of one of two studies on phases of highway construction made by the Bureau of Business Research at the University.

James W. Martin, director of the Bureau in the College of Commerce, is the author of a 14-page study on "Problems in Formulating Highway Construction Programs," and Eugene C. Holshouser, research associate in the College of Commerce, wrote the study on "Accounting and Budgeting Requirements for Advance Construction Programs."

Eisenhower Campaigns For Nixon In New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 (AP) — President Eisenhower tonight called for election of Richard M. Nixon and Henry Cabot Lodge as men of maturity, proven experience and decision.

At the same time, Eisenhower slapped indirectly at Sen. John F. Kennedy, the Democratic presidential nominee. He did so in saying that during the years of the Eisenhower administration the nation's domestic economy "has become immeasurably stronger," and the years "have been the brightest in our history."

In another obvious dig at Kennedy, Eisenhower said he can't understand "how, in the face of the record, anyone can seriously contend that the world leadership of the United States has been impaired."

Eisenhower called America "the mightiest temporal power that has ever been developed here on God's footstool."

In reference to Kennedy's charge that America's prestige abroad has fallen during the Eisenhower administration, the President said hundreds of thousands of persons each year risk their lives to defect from Communist-controlled states. He added:

"There is no question in their minds about American prestige." Campaigning in tandem with Nixon, the man he wants to suc-

Holshouser says executives responsible for the highway construction program need timely information on the status of engineering progress and money spent for comparison with budgets.

According to Holshouser's study, an electronic processing center can compile information superior to that obtained manually, result in savings in clerical and managerial manpower, and provide more accurate and timely estimates of costs.

In his study, Martin examines the work of the budget staff and the effective administration of the construction budget.

The business researcher says the budget staff must occupy a position where it provides full information which is the basis for decisions by engineering, accounting, and political personnel.

ceed him, Eisenhower during the day addressed three rallies in Manhattan and in nearby Nassau and Westchester Counties. At each place, the President plugged hard before crowds for election of Nixon and his running mate, Lodge, next Tuesday.

HAYMARKET PLANS CHECKED

The advanced architecture students who are working on the relocation of the Haymarket in Louisville returned there yesterday to have their preliminary plans criticized.

The main topic criticized was the proposed layout of streets. Most of the students felt that parts of Market and Brooks Streets should be closed. There seems to be some doubt at this time whether it will be possible to eliminate sections of these streets due to the flow of traffic.

The final jury on the students' plans will be held here later this month.

Representatives from the Louisville Central Area, the American Institute of Architects, the Courier-Journal and Louisville Times, Charles Waite, Director of the County and City Planning and Zoning Commission, and Richard Beck of the Urban Renewal Development program, criticized the work.
