Minutes of the University Senate - October 10, 1932

"Ellen Churchill Semple
1863-1932

In the life and career of Ellen Churchill Semple the University of Kentucky had a real and abiding interest. A native of Louisville, a Vassar graduate, and founder of Semple Collegiate School, She turned in 1891 to the study of the new science of anthropo-geography, in which she was destined to establish her reputation. Inspired by Frederick Ratzel at the University of Leipzig, she returned to America a pioneer in the field of the relation of geography to history and human progress. Three authoritative books and many articles now testify to her scholarly attainments, while her lectures at this University are remembered by many.

The Senate of the University learns with regret of the death of Miss Semple, and wishes to record its appreciation of her scholarly contribution to the State, and to make grateful acknowledgement of her generous spirit in the gift of books and her highly-prized Cullum Medal. The Senate would also commend to the youth and citizens of Kentucky her example of steadfast devotion to scholarship and liberal support for educational advancement.
