This is how the north stands of McLean stadium should look tomorrow afternoon when the freshmen perform their Sukey card stunts between halves of the Kentucky-Washington and Lee game.

CARD STUNT RULES FOR WASHINGTON AND LEE GAME

- 1. Cards will be found in canvas bag hooked underneath your seat. 2. At the beginning of the half, remove cards from bag, being careful to keep colors from view of opposite stands. 3. As each stunt is called, look on your program sheet beside that numbered stunt, raise color printed there. 4. Hold color called for by program sheet high and to the front. (Program sheets will be inside flap of bag.) 5. Cards are raised UP ON THE GUN and DOWN ON THE WHISTLE. In case of up stunts, gun will go off for each formation 100 times. In case of down stunts, whistle will be blown only on whistle. 6. Flip stunts will be indicated by parenthesis including two stunts on program sheet.

Greeting To Tau Beta Pi, With A Few Dark Reflections

To the 120 engineers now on campus for Tau Beta Pi's national convention, we extend greetings. Your assembly, always an important one, this time takes on a more significant and a graver tone that is usual, for it is you of the engineering profession who will have a great deal to do with what happens to all of us in the next few years.

America is rearming, gearing herself to the teeth on weapons and ammunition in the desperate hope that by being strong militarily it can keep the world's wars away from the U. S. and out of the Western hemisphere. The burden of that rearmament has fallen, and will continue to fall, on the shoulders of the nation's engineers.

Most of you are undergraduates, and because of it you are in the position most useful to the rearmament program. Specialization is much needed in the current plans, and you, possessing minds trained in the engineering fundamentals but not yet fettered by years of routine practice of methods now outdated, are the logical ones to receive this special training.

Realizing this, the Government has made provision for U. S. engineering colleges to offer intensive courses of short duration in such fields as diesel engines, metallurgy, and the chemistry explosives. On the UK campus, for example, a new laboratory for the testing of aeronautical motors is being erected, and experimentations made with tin and manganese.

The United States Office of Education reports that there is at present a marked shortage of college-trained naval architects, ship drafts men, marine engineers, engineers skilled in airplane construction, airplane power plants and airplane instruments, machine tool designers and engineers to supervise and speed up production all along the line. There is a shortage in immediate prospect of inspectors of materials who are familiar with physical, chemical, X-ray and similar tests. A need may develop also for college-trained men in such fields as structural and machine design and metallurgy.

All of these are being provided for in engineering colleges throughout the nation, and members of Tau Beta Pi, as the key men in these various schools, will no doubt play a major role in the program.

It is for these reasons that we believe your convention is perhaps the gravest and the most important in the entire history of your organization. The best of luck, then, and a maximum of results.

While on the subject of the motion picture, it seems just the occasion to mention an idea that's been buzzing around upstairs for a long time. Maybe we ought to write to Hollywood and let them know because it's probably an idea that more than a handful of people have had.

It seems we Americans almost have become resigned to the Jack Armstrong type of pictures and the photo-finish melodramas in which the gallant hero rescues his golden-haired woman from the tentacles of disaster. Always the villain is hauled off to the state penitentiary or shot to pieces by the hero, or falls off a high cliff or something, and the hero and heroine live on happily ever after. The poor villain who, generally speaking, isn't a bad chap, always gets it in the neck. Well, this sort of affairs needs changing, we think, and our idea is about a new sort of plot that should gross a couple of million, maybe, at the box office.

Instead of making the hero the tall, dark and handsome fellow, we'll make him up to look like the hunchback of Notre Dame, except perhaps a bit uglier. He should stand for everything good and just and should be the lo-

There Surely Ought To Be A Better Way Than This

The now near-famous case of Marcus Harlan, Paris, who last month was denied entrance to the University on scholastic grounds, serves only to prove what a number of its students have suspected for several years.

That is the fact, now obvious, that the University is conducting a behind-the-scenes campaign to raise UK's academic standards, and is, in the undergraduate parlance, "sort of tightening things up." Many of us, sensing what we thought to be preliminary skirmishes before a general grade-upping offensive, have on numerous occasions asked members of the faculty and the administration if such were not the case. In almost every instance reported, the answers were either evasive or negative—and usually given with an air of amused condescension.

These almost flippant attitudes are inclined to view more with shakes of the head than with shrugs of the shoulders. That Kyrke has long felt academic requirements at UK could be slightly higher, and that the problem is not the laughing matter some seem to make it and something should be done to raise standards immediately.

However, it seems to us that if these standards are to be raised, it is not so important to get scholastically untried transfers out of the University as it is to prune out some of the dead wood still permitted to hang on here.

If the facts reported in Harlan's case are correct—and certainly they have the word of UK Trustee Lee Kirkpatrick to support them—then we can only conclude that an injustice has been done.

This newspaper does not consider it an insult to the University that anyone should make it his "second choice," and we can see no reason why any other of UK's agencies should regard it as such. It should be the business of the student only if the transfer was made, and if his record is satisfactory and his recommendations good, we cannot see why his motives should be questioned. If there is a lack of "college ability" on his part, surely a fair trial will bring it out.

But Harlan has entered another school by this time, and although he reports he is "perfectly happy" there, it is a certainty that his impressions of his native state's University are far from pleasant.

Meanwhile the heroine should be inveigled by the villain with whom she finally falls in love and marries. The hero should live on in tortured existence and everything must go wrong for him. He should lose bets on the races, get bit by stray hounds, and miss bank night prizes by a whisker. For the villain all should be well and happy. We shall let him drive a nice shiny car, with two horns, and he should win a football scholarship to a prominent university where he may run for touchdowns every time he carries the ball. As a final, vivid scene, the villain and hero's former girl will ride off into the horizon on horseback to live happily ever after while the hero is dragged off to Devil's Island on some trumped-up charge.

This picture won't rate for the Academy award, but it should be as novel as anything you can see on the screen these days. Maybe William Saroyan will lend a hand. He once wrote something about making a new type of motion picture and all for only $300.

WELL, I'LL BE DAMNED

By John Ed Pearce

And now, children, let's gather around and discuss one of America's foremost exponents of the art skill that increases the power of loud music, that destroyer of cultural appreciation, that bird of prey that eats from the dump of American bad taste, that caterer to the tasteless, that caterer to the tasteless, that caterer to the tasteless.

I say let's pick out Personality Percy because he seems to have such a sturdy half-nelson on the collegiate tastes at present, despite educational influences, and because he is so exemplary of the kiddie school of popular entertainment.

Our amiable friend was born reared and schooled in the good state of North Carolina, a fact which must now embarrass the inhabitants and a fact which he never tires of telling his acting listeners over the radio. Just why this penchant for claiming birthplace so rabidly cannot be explained here, unless inasmuch as it does quell any doubts that he does have at least one foot in the States.

He eventually finished the prescribed course at the state college, where he has assembled an orchestra and fared forth into the world, to give out a type of music which he utters as original. Although who anyone would want to claim such style is quite beyond comprehension, some there are who dispute this parentage of this particular class, saying that Sammy Kaye was really in there first. He has taken advantage of the American bad taste for ten or fifteen years now with such success that he is very well-off, holds a near top ranking in the list of corn outfits, and has been chosen as second rating band with the connoisseurs of our land.

It has long been a contention among popular-music lovers that if a song is good enough to be played, it is good enough to be played by itself, without aid of other tunes, though, in comes thinking of you. This Kyrke happily ignores, and manages to stick a lick from his tune into every tune he mangles, regardless of "incompatibility of composition, and you are constantly surprised to hear a break in the music and the mournful reversion of the air song.

Not only does the fellow play music in a very unimpassioned manner, but he habitually chooses bad songs to play. One of the tunes which he has won favor lately is a nursery special called "Playmates," a revolting bit, and one which is performed something like this: "The music starts, and you hear a few bars of the kid tune. Suddenly, the tune drops out of the race, and there is an influx of "Thinking of You" done in sprightly tempo, and into the mike the vocal boy croaks "Play-mate, come out and play with me."

MUSICAL MUTTERINGS

By BILL PENICK

Greatest surprise of the year noted from this corner is the new Blue and White band. Their playing at the Union Hop Saturday night really sounded big time. Though their style has changed little, they now possess more finesse and smoothness than was shown last year. One important element in the change is the adding of Norris Wilson, a Georgetown drummer, to rhythm section. Though not spectacular, this boy leads the band with an even but driving beat. Best number offered Saturday was this a first class swing ditty. Hear this and you are sure opportunity and you won't be disappointed.

New High Set For Enrollment

With 659 students registered, enrollment reached a new peak in the agriculture college this year, Prof. J. J. Horstcher, assistant dean, announced yesterday.

Of the 659 agriculture students, 152 are first-year men. The Sears Roebuck scholarships, which were awarded for the college for the first time this year, are partly responsible for the increase.

The Clothes Closet

By Dave Graham

For the second time we come forth with forecasts of what the sartorially conscious collegian will wear this fall. Whether this copy will reach you in its entirety, we do not know after the editor's blitkrieg on last week's column.

For a long time we've been itching to write about this new miffier known as the "Windoor." The Duke must have had a few weeks to himself to learn it because even a sailor couldn't master it nor could Madame La Zonga teach it.

On The Air

Orchestra tuning up... engineers rushing with mikes... announcers polishing up their vowels...

But even the disgruntled atmosphere of this week is merely a prelude to what is to come, for with the conclusion of the Detroit-Cincinnati battle, UK radio studios open the lid on a headline series of six weekly coast-to-coasters.

Not content with the obviously demerited actions and vocals of Mr. Mason, pretty soon there comes tearing out of the group another one, he dubbed Ishkhabille, and he in turn is joined by Harry Babbit, who looks the part. In baby voices, and with accompanying idiotic expressions, they all chant:

"Pulcherrime, come out and pull me with may."

An brave yer dollies thray, Climb up mah appul tray."

All this time one professor Kyser is trucking around the band stand shouting, grinning at the audience, and exuding personality. Very depressing, really.

A number of years ago, Kay got the idea to hold a quiz hour, with questions concerning different types of music, song titles, themes of various bands, etc. The audience was straightway made into a classroom and the hour labeled "Kay Kyser's College of Musical Knowledge." The Knowledge of course is strictly lay-brow. One of the main features of the program is Kyser's personality, which is terrific. I know it's terrific, because I have read his press releases and all the stories say that he is a master showman. But after an hour of old Kay's clowning (100% juvenile) you begin to yawn at the famous personality and wonder if he is a showman, but after a while you begin to wonder if it will ever take the place of the old band that used to play music that you could listen to, and to which dancing was not a problem.

MEDICAL AID

(Continued from Page One) The bill proposing abolishment of the University campus, tabled last semester, was brought up for reconsideration by this year's legislature. The measure was referred to the rules committee with the recommendation that it later be turned over to Panhellenic council and the Interfraternity council.

A Student Government association office, in room 127 of the Union, has been equipped with desk and filing cabinet, and will be open from 3 till 5 p. m. every day. President Allen announced, an NYA employee, will be on duty in the office at other times in the day, he added.

Other business of the three-hour session included:

Election of Ben Sublette, Commerce senior, as chairman of the Student Standards committee, and Rollins Wood as chairman of the welfare committee.

Designating to the welfare committee an investigation of student employment conditions and housing conditions.

Proposal of an amendment to the constitution stating that all rulings made by the Association of Women Students and Men's Student council, prior to the establishment of the Student Government association, should be binding except where specifically changed by the legislature.

Appointment of members Lovett, Patterson, Tooms, and Clark to the important rules committee; election of Doris Reichenbach as secretary to replace Sheila Robertson.

Approval of a committee to investigate the possibility of establishing a check-against bureau for out-of-town students.

Approval of the Student Co-operative association's petition for a lobbyist; appointment of John Long, Commerce senior, as clerk of the legislature; and setting the regular meeting time as 8 p. m. on alternate Tuesdays.

MUTTERINGS

(Continued from page Two) elaborately orchestrated with Frank Sinatra handling the lyrics. The Andrews Sisters, who always turn up with recordings of swing tunes after they have begun to age, along with "Beat Me Daddy (Three-Part)" and "Pennsylvania 6-5000" on their latest platter, "Daddy" is the tune that brought Will Bradley's band to the front while "Pennsy" is G. Miller's brain child. Try both if you can stand it for a long time. You must listen.

One of the best records put out by the Bob Crosby band since its inception in "Companions", an original by Jess Stacey. It is primarily piano solo, but the rest of the band are really there with short ensemble bits. Reverse is a modernization of an oldie, "Ja-Da," and Stacey is again spotted solo honors. This record has been released for several months, but it is one which will last.

Unusually good is Glenn Miller's Bluebirding of "Beat Me Daddy," with guitar-playing Jack Lathrop managing the vocals. For those of us who go for the collegiate atmosphere in our music, the new album of Southern College songs, sung by the All-American Glee Club and just released by Victor, is right in the groove. They sing "Oh, On U. of K." and "Kentucky Fight, Fight, Fight," the latter which was heard for the first time by this writer. Coincidentally we like the latter song better than the old standard, Bunny Berigan's old band ticks nicely on "Ain't She Sweet" and "Ay Ay Ay," while the King sisters really harmonize an old favorite, "Till Get By."

Mr. Spencer presided at the opening session which was taken up with the reports of national officers. The important business to come before the meeting will be the consideration of petitions for charters from groups at Rice Institute, Houston, Texas; the University of Detroit, and City College of New York.

High-lighting Saturday's program will be the convention banquet, at 6:30 p. m., at the Phoenix hotel. John T. Paig, president of the Ohio Mechanics Institute, Cincinnati, and a graduate of the engineering college in 1894, will be the principal speaker.

Convention visitors and local fraternity members will attend the Kentucky-Washington and Lee football game tomorrow afternoon, a special section in the north side stands having been reserved for them.

The final business session will be held at 9 a. m. Saturday, followed by luncheon in the Union building at noon.

Officers of the local chapter include Fred Fischer, president; E. V. Albert, vice president; Jack McNamer, secretary and Ernest Railey, treasurer.

CHAMBERLAIN EXPLAINS ACTION IN HARLAN CASE

Refusal To Admit Transfer Student Is Defended

In explaining the University's refusal to admit Marcus Harlan, Paris, Leo M. Chamberlain, registrar, in a letter to Lee Kirkpatrick, member of the board of trustees, wrote that "no institution can maintain its academic standing if it admits transfer students without regard to the quality of their work."

The rejection was made known last Tuesday, when Assistant Attorney General W. Owen Keller, Frankfort, suggested to Kirkpatrick, superintendent of the Paris high school, from which Harlan was graduated, that legal proceedings be instituted to force the University to admit the youth.

Kirkpatrick has written Keller that Harlan was denied entrance at Paris high school because he had withdrawn from Tulane university last February on account of scholastic difficulties. The school head also said that Harlan, who went to Tulane on an athletic scholarship, was forced to withdraw because he was given "no many jobs" that he had no time to study.

At Paris high school Harlan had a "splendid standing," Kirkpatrick declared and he received an "honorable discharge" from Tulane. Kirkpatrick added that University students who fail to meet the scholastic requirements are allowed to return after a lapse of one semester, but that Chamberlain advised Harlan that "they would not accept anybody from another institution on the same grounds."

Such action "shows prejudice against a student who had over-chosen any other school," Kirkpatrick said. Keller called the move an "arbitrary action" on the part of Chamberlain.

Keller stated that through a suit it might be possible to uncover numerous activities at the University about which the public is kept in the dark.

Kirkpatrick wrote Keller that he did not believe that the registrar, or even the senate or board of trustees, has "any right to say that a Kentucky boy of good character meeting the entrance requirements of the University can be denied the privilege of studying in a state school if an certain other students have been discriminated against a good many times at the University."

William Blanton, Paris, state motor transportation director, wrote Keller about the case and cited the incident of a student who went to the University of Cincinnati last year and came here to enroll this year. Blanton wrote:

"Mr. Chamberlain made several rather derogatory remarks with reference to his not having attended the University the first year but taking it as a second choice. It seems to be a rather unsavory attitude that he has taken and might have some derogatory effect on the University."

Meanwhile, young Harlan entered

Transylvania college completely oblivious of the controversy until he "read it in the paper." He said he "regretted very much" being the center of the argument.

Dr. Virgil F. Payne, Transylvania registrar, said school officials were unaware of the controversy, over Payne's enrollment here, and that he was admitted on approval of the school faculty council. Doctor Payne further stated that Harlan would not be dismissed from school as long as he makes a scholastic standing.

75 JUNIOR MEN ACCEPTED FOR ADVANCE COURSE

Inadequate Quota Causes Rejection Of Equal Number

Out of 150 junior men who applied for admission into first-year advanced military 75 have been accepted, it was announced by the military department this week.

Of the 75 dropped only about 20 failed to meet the physical requirements, the balance being rejected because of lack of credits to classify them as Juniors.

The number of applicants this year doubled the quota for first year advanced students allotted the military department by the war department. An increase in the quota has been requested by Lt. Col. Howard Dunnehy, head of the military department.

If the request is granted the juniors who were not selected will be favored over sophomores who are eligible for the first year course.

Intramural Teams Prepare For Touch Football Tourney

By Warren J. Shesert

Independent and fraternity touch football teams have been going through strenuous workouts this past week, preparing themselves for the on-coming season which is scheduled to begin on next Tuesday, October 8. Already, intramural supervisor C. W. Hackenschmidt, reports that four independent teams and 18 fraternity teams have entered into the competition, and that they are in fine condition for the contests. Entries closed yesterday.

The independent teams consist of the "Polecats," managed by Berkman; the "Indians," managed by C. W. Hackenschmidt; the "Sunk Hollowers," managed by Demetrius Passas; and the "Pre-Meds," managed by Robert Long.

Fraternity teams entering into the competition are Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Phi Delta Theta, Alpha Gamma Rho, Phi Kappa Tau, Sigma Nu, Sigma Chi, Alpha Tau Omega, Pi Kappa Alpha, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Alpha Sigma Phi, Phi Sigma Kappa, Kappa Alpha, Phi Delta Theta, Lambda Chi Alpha, Kappa Sigma, Triangles, Delta Chi, and Gamma Tau Alpha.

The tennis singles and doubles entries were coming in slow yesterday, but Hackenschmidt asserted that there would be approximately 85 teams ready for action, when the contests get under way.

A meeting was held yesterday afternoon in the office of the intramural supervisor with managers of the independent-fraternity organizations present. A sports program was worked out for the school year.

After The Ball

By ROY STEINFORT

Added attractions: two slightly used feuds.

Besides tomorrow's feature feud between Ab Kirwan's Kentucky Wildcats and Washington and Lee's Generals, two added attractions are in the offing, either of which may blast Kentucky's football aspirations into oblivion for this season.

For when the Generals stalk onto Stoll field at 2 p. m., five Kentuckians will be in their starting lineup, all yearning to take a crack at what appears to be a red-hot Kentucky eleven.

That is added attraction number one, which in itself, should be enough to make the game one worth watching. But just to top things off and give Gus Q. Fan one of those Hollywood epics, Kirwan and his crew have arranged another feud, of slightly smaller nature, but guaranteed to produce results.

One Against Four

Only one Kentucky participant is involved, that being Eddie Fritz, the smallest man in stature on the Kirwan squad. He stands a mere five feet seven inches.

Eddie, who hails from New Britain, Conn., will have to battle a quartet of home-town boys in the W and L line if he expects to snag any General hall carriers. For, when he lowers himself into his crouch, Eddie will find himself face to face with four back fence neighbors who have promised him a busy afternoon. Rulovich at tackle, Jack Mangan at center, Bill Gray at left guard, and Ray Fabiano at right guard are all former home town "playmates" of Fritz.

Win With Wildcats!

At this stage of the game, we haven't taken out our official prognosticator's license, but picking winners looks like a cinch to us. Kentucky will win, of course, and here's why:

Washington and Lee's 8-0 victory in '38 was strictly according to precedent in that the Generals always defeat a Wildcat coach in his first year as Cat-tamer. The same fate befell former coaches Fred Murphy, Harry Gamage, and Chet Wynne.

So, precedent and tradition having been duly observed, the Wildcats can't be stopped by any witchcraft, sleight of hand, or hand of fate, and that's about all that could stop them.

Shux, this win-picking is a cinch.

New Dance Club To Be Organized

For the first time in the history of the campus, a University "Troupers" club will be organized. It will be under the direction of Mrs. Mary King Koums and Mr. Joseph Huddleston, instructors of physical education.

Any student with any talent may report for troupe for club membership at 3 p. m. today in the Women's gymnasium.

The purpose of this organization will be to provide various forms of entertainment including music and dramatic numbers, readings, and other forms, for the programs of the numerous campus organizations.

The success of the new club will determine future operation and cost.

Injuries, Air Corps Take Cat Stars; Sophs To Fill In

By Fred Hill

Coach Ab Kirwan and his Kentucky Wildcats met an unscheduled and entirely unexpected foe early this week—the United States Army.

The result of the invasion by the unexpected foe was the loss of one perfectly good end named Ed Ghoslen, who received orders to report to Randolph Field, Texas, or one of his nearby subsidiaries for instruction in army air training.

Kirwan seemed resigned, however, to the misfortune. He pointed out that he had several sophomore flankers who, though less experienced than the husky senior, were quite as talented.

Kirwan was optimistic Tuesday afternoon before practice about the prospects of putting his full team on the field Saturday, in good physical shape. In fact, he said, "We'll be all there." But this statement boomeranged a few minutes later when Dutch Sabant's suffered a severe sprain of his left ankle, shelving him for possible two weeks.

The injury jinx again smacked into the Kentucky camp Wednesday and then sneaked out with one victim—Carl "Hood" Combs, Combs, while scrimmaging the KETAs, received a painful dislocation of his right elbow. "Skipper" Mann, team trainer, said he will be out of tomorrow's game and possible the Vandy tilt next Saturday.

Although Sabant will undoubtedly be missed in the opening lineup, Kirwan is well fortified with full-backs able to turn in a creditable performance. Sophomore Bob Herbert and Senior Claude Hammonds are enough to keep a coach's disposition cheerful.

Line Coach Frank Mosely seemed optimistic about the end situation. "Lose one good man," he asserted, "and we'll find two more."

Ab Hopes To Turn Tables On Indigestible W-L Generals

By JOHN CARRICO

Ab Kirwan hopes that when he arises from the table Saturday night, he will be smacking his lips over a meal of tender and well-basted Generals—the Washington and Lee kind.

For although Coach Kirwan has sat down at the gridiron festive board with W. & L. many times, he has yet to come away without indigestion of some kind.

Once he emerged with only a few burps of discontent, when the Wildcats had played to a 6-6 tie with the Generals. It was then, in 1923, when Ab was a sophomore halfback, that he discovered he was allergic to General meat.

Ab tried hard enough, even setting up the tying score, but Tex Tilson, then tackle and now coach of W. & L., blocked the try for extra point.

In 1924, with Kirwan shifted to end, the Generals defeated the Wildcats 10-7. Ab blocking a punt which another Kentucky player fell on for a touchdown.

Then came 1925 when Ab as captain of the Big Blue. Kentucky met three Generals having held a powerful Chicago eleven to a meager 9-0 victory. The Generals, however, made it three in a row over Ab and Kentucky by a 25-0 score.

By this time Mr. Kirwan was showing definite symptoms of indigestion. After the doctor had prescribed a triumph over W. & L. as the "cure for what ails you," Ab joined the Blue coaching staff under Fred Murphy. The Wildcats that year barely missed during Ab's ailment, losing 14-12.

Finding no antidote for his dyspepsia, Kirwan left in an attempt to forget the ptomaine-inducing Generals. In 1928 Ab returned to his alma mater with the sickening feeling still in his stomach. But the fare cooked up that year by the Virginians, an 8-0 victory, still upset his delicate constitution.

So with his stomach practically a wreck, Ab looks forward to a victory Saturday over W. & L. which will disquiet forever the tremors which have racked his frame for so long.

He's confident this time that the Washington and Lee swing will not be a rendition of "Dinner Music for a Pack of Hungry Generals."

French Club Elects New Officers

Harold Dunn, Lexington, was elected president of the French club, La Cercle Francaise, at a meeting yesterday afternoon in the Natural Science building.

Other officers chosen were Betty Arvet, Lexington, vice-president; Josephine Tunis, Lexington, secretary-treasurer; and Jean Williams, Lexington, publicity manager.

Retiring officers are Clarence Albro, Central City, president, and Dunn, who held the offices of both vice-president and secretary and treasurer.

The next meeting will be held on Thursday, October 17, at the home of Prof. B. W. Schick, 833 West High street.

EXTRA DISTANCE IN HIS DRIVES—EXTRAS IN HIS CIGARETTE

YES, LARRUPING LAWSON LITTLE, NATIONAL OPEN CHAMPION, PREFERS THE CIGARETTE THAT GIVES THE "EXTRAS" — SLOWER-BURNING CAMELS

I TURNED TO CAMELS FOR EXTRA MILDNESS AND FOUND SEVERAL OTHER SWELL EXTRAS, TOO, INCLUDING EXTRA SMOKING, SLOWER BURNING SURE IS THE TICKET FOR STEADY SMOKING

● WATCH OUT, PAR—here comes Little! No, Lawson Little is never content unless he can better par... in his golf... in his cigarette. "I want all the mildness I can get," he says. "Camels burn slower and give me extra mildness." Yes, Camels give all the qualities you want in a cigarette plus an extra measure of each. The extra flavor of costlier tobaccos preserved by slower burning. The natural mildness of costlier tobaccos plus freedom from the irritating qualities of too-fast burning. Extra pleasure—and extra value (see right).

EXTRA MILDNESS EXTRA COOLNESS EXTRA FLAVOR

In recent laboratory tests, CAMELS burned 25% slower than the average of the 15 other of the largest-selling brands tested—slower than any of them. That means, on the average, a smoking plus equal to
