

MINUTES OF THE UNIVERSITY SENATE, SEPTEMBER 8, 1975

The University Senate met in regular session at 3:00 p.m., Monday, September 8, 1975, in the Court Room of the Law Building. Chairman Joseph Krislov presided. Members absent: John G. Banwell*, Paul Barito, Harry Barnard*, Charles E. Barnhart, Robert P. Belin*, Sam Brown, Joseph T. Burch, H. Stuart Burness*, John L. Butler*, W. Merle Carter*, Henry Cole*, Foy Cox, Marjorie A. Crandall*, Vincent Davis*, Patrick P. Deluca*, George W. Denmark*, Ronald Dillehay, Anthony Eardley, Michael Etzel, Robert O. Evans*, Joseph Hamburg, Theodore A. Kotchen*, David L. Larimore*, Donald R. March, James Marsden*, Charles Masters, Randolph McGee*, William G. Moody*, Robert C. Noble*, Roger Nooe, Steven Petrey*, Daniel R. Reedy*, Ellen Roehrig, P.S. Sabharwal, William Sartoris, John S. Scarborough*, Kenneth Schiano*, A.H. Peter Skelland*, Marjorie S. Stewart, John P. Strickland*, William C. Templeton, Charlene Thacker, Jerry Thornton, M. Stanley Wall, Richard Warren, Julie Watkins*, M. O'Neal Weeks*, Kennard Wellons*, William G. Winter*, Roy Yarbrough*.

The minutes of the meeting of April 14, 1975 were approved as circulated.

Chairman Krislov welcomed the new Senators; Dean Ockerman, Secretary, University Senate; Mrs. Shelburne, Recording Secretary of the Senate; Professor Robert Bostrom, Parliamentarian; Mrs. Todd, Administrative Assistant to the Senate Council; Professor Burkett, the faculty Sergeant at Arms. He reported that Colonel Alcorn, the Sergeant at Arms, would be unable to serve the Senate during the Fall Semester. The Chairpersons of the Senate Committees were introduced, namely: Dr. J. R. Ogletree, Rules Committee; Professor Joseph Jones, Library Committee; Professor Rudolph Schriels, Teaching, Learning and Advising Committee; Professor James E. Criswell, Academic Organization and Structure Committee; Professor Dean Jaros, Research Committee; Professor Constance Wilson, Special Teaching Programs Committee; Professor Mary Hargreaves, General Studies Committee; Professor William Peters, Admissions and Academic Standards Committee; Professor Lynn Spruill, Academic Facilities Committee; Professor Paul Forand, Academic Programs Committee; Professor David Larimore, Academic Planning and Priorities Committee; Professor Levis McCullers, Student Affairs Committee. Members of the University Senate Council were recognized: Professor Judith Worell; Professor Thomas Ford; Professor Sidney Ulmer; Professor Fred Zechman; Professor Stephen Diachun; Professor Robert Rudd; student Mary Duffy; student Michael Clawson; Professor Michael Adelstein; Professor Paul Sears; James Harralson, Student Government President; Professor Malcolm Jewell, Chairperson Elect; Professor Betty Rudnick, Secretary; and Professor Joseph Krislov, Chairperson.

Dr. Krislov introduced President Singletary who spoke to the Senate as follows:

Good afternoon, ladies and gentlemen.

The brochure that was mailed out billed this as an address by President Singletary. I will put your minds at ease and tell you that you are not going to be subjected to an address. In fact, I started out merely to come in and welcome the new Senators and to welcome all of you back for what I hope is going to be another good year for the University of Kentucky. Certainly, I am welcoming you back to an institution that is somewhat more crowded than the one you left. Figures that I think may be of interest to you are those having to do with enrollments. These are head count, not full-time equivalent; and if my latest report is anywhere near accurate, enrollment in the Division of Colleges is up about 1,000 students, which represents about 5.4 per cent increase over last year. The Medical Center enrollment is about where it was. The Community Colleges have had a fantastic increase -- 26 per cent -- from 13,006 to 17,002, which would suggest that the Community Colleges still have some attractive features to people in this state. If you add the Lexington Technical Institute students, who are also taking courses on this campus, the Division of Colleges figure goes up to about a 15 per cent increase. Overall, what this amounts to is something like a 38,000 student population in the total University System which is, overall, a 13.4 per cent increase over last year, far greater than any of us would have anticipated. This does not include the Fort Knox enrollment nor the extension and evening programs, both of which are on the increase. So I am sure that as you have looked at the size of your classes, the size of the lines, drop-add, and all the rest of it, you know that there are more bodies out there than we had counted on.

There are also some new faces in the administrative family and I would like to present them to you to be recognized. I would like to reintroduce to you Bob Drake, who has come back to the University. All of you know that he was Professor and then Dean of the Engineering College. He took a leave of absence and served as Vice President of Research and Development for Combustion Engineering, one of the major firms of its kind in this country. We were fortunate to persuade him to come back to the University in a new role as my Special Assistant. He will serve primarily as my liaison and provide the administrative supervision for such things as the Tobacco & Health Research Institute, for the Mining and Minerals Research Institute, for the Computing Center, and for such other assignments as we may, from time to time, add to that list. Bob, we are delighted to have you back.

A not altogether new face is that of Dr. John Smith who comes to us as Vice President for Minority Affairs. John was, for many years, Director of the Jefferson Community College and before that was a member of the Ashland Community College faculty and served in the public schools in Lexington. In his new position, John will be responsible for the offices of Affirmative Action, Employee Counseling, and Minority Affairs and he will be the Janus-like spokesman both to the outside world, on our behalf, and to us, on behalf of the outside world, about these matters. It is a very real pleasure for me to introduce to this body a man with whom I hope you will have a good deal of contact.

We were distressed at the decision of Mr. Larry Forgy to leave the Vice Presidency for Business Affairs to go into the private practice of law but I am pleased to report to you that we have been successful in filling that position and filling it very well, indeed. Jack Blanton has signed on with us and has been here about a week. He was formerly Vice Chancellor for Business and Finance at the Tennessee

State Board of Regents and he is also a former Budget Director of the state of Kentucky. He is very knowledgeable about this state and particularly in those relationships where the state and higher education touch. He is widely respected in the state and he now comes to take over this office which is the principal fiscal and business office for the University and its affiliated corporations.

We also have two new deans who have come to the campus and I am not sure that they have been presented formally to the Senate -- the new Dean of the College of Medicine, Kay Clawson. Dr. Clawson is a graduate of the Harvard Medical School, did his residency work at Stanford University, and has had additional study in England, Holland, and Italy. He has had very wide professional experience and we were able to attract him here from his position as Chairman of the Department of Orthopedics at the University of Washington in Seattle. Among his many honors he also received the Outstanding Teacher Award at the University of Washington on two occasions. He is here and at work and we are very pleased to have him.

As you all know, the College of Dentistry has enjoyed considerable prestige in the national ranking hither and yon. It too, has also had a change and I wish to introduce the new Dean, Dr. Merrill Packer. Dr. Packer received his degrees from the University of Minnesota; he was a former faculty member here at the University, so he does know something about this institution and this state and we were able to persuade him to come to us from the National Institutes of Health in Washington. He has a list of honors and awards too long to read but I would simply say to you that we look to him to continue the kind of program thrust, and attitude of one of our really superior colleges.

There are two deanships that are, at present, receiving the attention of search committees. We are looking for a Dean of Library Science. The Search Committee is at work; we have invited several candidates to the campus; and we think they will be visiting here very shortly. You also have no doubt learned that Dean Haywood has resigned as Dean of the College of Business and Economics. Bill Ecton is serving as Acting Dean. A committee has been appointed to recommend a permanent dean. I met with that Committee last Friday morning and their search is well under way. We would hope that both of these will have rather speedy resolution.

Moving from personnel matter, I think it might also be of interest to you to take a very brief review of the various academic programs that have been passed by this body or considered and then disappeared from your vision, and I am sure you think they are out in limbo somewhere. During the summer the Council on Public Higher Education which, for lack of a better term I will call "the tank," did approve one of the programs we had over there, the Master of Public Administration. I am delighted that it was approved as I think it is one of the more imaginative programs that we have put forward recently and I really think this institution is uniquely fitted to do this in a number of areas. There are a number of other programs that you have considered, that are in "the tank" -- the Ph.D. program in Health, Physical Education and Recreation; the Ph.D. program in Philosophy; the Master's degree in Planning, which they have had for some time; and the Master's degree in Forestry. You will recall that the Council, has, in fact, declared a moratorium on new programs and it is my impression that they will waive that only in unusual cases. There are three other programs that have not yet gone to the Council on Public Higher Education - the Ph.D. program in Communications, now on my desk for my consideration of administrative feasibility; the Ph.D program in Criminal Justice which is not yet ready but will be coming back to the Senate for further consideration; the M.A. in Teaching with a Mathematics emphasis which has not yet been acted on. So there is one that has been approved, there are four in Frankfort, and there are three still on campus in the process. I thought it might be worthwhile to assure you that we at least know where they are.

I think you might also be interested in reviewing some of the changes that are taking place on the campus in terms of physical facilities -- things that hopefully will be underway during this academic year. I am sure you have noticed that we are now in operation at the University Hospital in the patient care division, which has been under construction for two years. It is basically an intensive care facility that I think enhances our ability to serve the people of Kentucky and is a very valuable addition to the Medical Center. We are going to have the formal dedication September 27th.

There are a couple of other projects that are under way. One is the Lexington Technical Institute which is the building across Cooper facing back on Cooper Drive. We plan to move Dr. Barnhart's silver barn, which is adjacent to it back further on the farm. The building is progressing very well and is a six million dollar project. In that same vicinity they are clearing the site for the Tobacco and Health Research Institute - a 4.2 million dollar building to house that program. That building is not being financed by the University but is being financed out of dedicated tax money that was allocated for the program.

There are three other structures that have been funded but have not yet advanced to the point where we can ask for and receive bids. During the course of this year we hope we will move on these three -- the Fine Arts Building, a 5.2 million dollar building which is to go on the site of old Stoll Field. We hope that this building will give us a much greater flexibility on the campus in terms of having a small auditorium for certain kinds of recitals, etc, and a 1,500 seat auditorium. In addition, we hope to have some gallery space and to be able to use the foyers around the two halls as exhibition space. We have a long way to go before we are going to be able to take bids on that building. The Health Sciences Learning Center, which will cost over seven million dollars in state and federal funds, will go up on the site of the old Jefferson Davis school property, and very close to it a two million dollar project, the Biology for the Aging Research Center that came from the one million dollar gift by the John Y. Brown Foundation and matching funds from the state. What this all means I can assure you is that there will continue to be that same condition you have known for some years -- a lot of noise, a lot of racket, a lot of open trenches on the campus. The building program for the future I think is likely to be aimed at fairly specific type buildings rather than those of general utility.

The next item I would like to mention very briefly concerns business that will be before this body in the year ahead and I want to speak specifically to the question of the reorganization of the College of Arts and Sciences. You will recall that the College, at my request, initiated a rather comprehensive study of possible reorganization. This was done during the 1973-74 academic year and reported to me in June, 1974. In accordance with the Governing Regulations I then sent this document to the Senate for advice with a request that attention be given first to the internal reorganization of the College. The Senate's Committee on Organization and Structure recommended last December that approval of the internal reorganization of the College be approved then and there. I agreed with this and we implemented the reorganization on July 1, which created in effect, a Division of Basic Studies, a Division of Experimental and Individualized Studies, and a Division of Advanced Studies. Probably it would be a good idea somewhere down the line for Dean Gallaher or someone to speak to you about that. I think it probably needs more amplification than I am in a position to give. There were a number of other suggestions in there that run not to internal reorganization but rather to the questions of the size and complexity of the present College. Some of these proposals have to do with the possible separation of the School of Communications, of the Department of Theatre Arts, the School of Music, and of realignments of some new colleges into schools, and possibly mergers. There are a whole range of things in it. All I want to say now is that I hope this body will give it some attention. The Governing Regulations require that I receive the advice and recommendation of the Senate on these matters of reorganization and when I submit this to the Board of Trustees I want to be in a position to make the statement that I have met that requirement. There are some very complicated issues that you should address yourselves to in this year ahead and make your recommendations and give me your advice so that we can make a recommendation to the Board. I think we have had plenty of time to look at it, plenty of time to talk about it and now we should get to it. I should say to you that one suggestion in that proposal was the separation of the School of Communications and its merger with the College of Library Science into a new College of Information Services. This was being considered along with everything else until an intervention came in the form of the accreditation problems of the Journalism program. Your Committee on Academic Organization and Structure has given a considerable amount of thought to this aspect of the proposal during the past year and has held some hearings. The Committee recommended to the Senate Council, and the Senate Council concurred, that a provisional reorganization of the School of Communications be undertaken immediately, abolishing the present School and realigning these programs into a School of Journalism and a Department of Human Communications within the College of Arts and Sciences. I went to the Senate Council back in the summer, and asked them if they would advise me, mainly because I thought that the uncertainty and the confusion surrounding this could best be abated by being in a position to tell the respective faculties, when they returned to the campus, what was in store for this particular year. I will recommend these actions to the Board of Trustees next week and I wish to say to you now that this is a provisional and interim reorganization, to this degree. There are several ways that we might choose to go. We may wish to leave both of them in the College of Arts and Sciences, we may choose to take them both out of that College; or we may decide to leave one in and take the other out. But before we make that decision I want the full consideration of it by this body.

Therefore I want to stress that I hope the Senate will make the Arts and Sciences reorganization a prime topic in terms of importance.

Let me conclude by saying that this is also a legislative year and there will be many issues, as always, that will emerge in the course of this year that we cannot foresee. One of the consequences is already very clearly outlined and that is that we are in the throes of preparing the biennial budget request for the University of Kentucky. We have been involved in this for months and we are now getting down to the very hardest part. We have had to shrink the figures considerably from the original request that came in, to what can be a manageable and defensible request. We are aiming at having the biennial request submitted to the Board of Trustees at its October meeting. At this time we have considered two things concurrently. The Council on Public Higher Education has also asked that there be a five-year plan. We have not only generated the five-year plan, as many of you know because you have been a part of the generation, but we have tried, in terms of the five-year plan, to make the biennial budget request reflect the priorities and concerns of the University in the two years immediately ahead of us.

These are some of the items that I thought you would be interested in. I hope and expect to be back from time to time during the year to report to you and to discuss with you these matters and others. In the meantime let me do what I really came to do which is to say "We are glad to have you back here." The place has taken on some life again and I hope that you and all of us are going to have a very good year at the University. Thank you very much.

On behalf of the College of Home Economics, Professor Patricia Horridge presented a Resolution on the death of Professor Betty Eastin and directed that the Resolution be made a part of the Minutes and that copies be sent to her family.

BETTY DOWNER EASTIN

Betty Downer Eastin, Associate Professor of Textiles, Clothing and Merchandising, served as a member of the University of Kentucky faculty for 13 years. She was a native of Aliceville, Alabama and earned B.S. and M.S. degrees in Home Economics from the University of Alabama. She taught Vocational Home Economics in the Alabama school system from 1947-50. Mrs. Easton was an instructor at the Louisiana State University in 1951. She joined the faculty of the University of Kentucky, School of Home Economics, as an Assistant Professor in 1952. In 1968, Mrs. Eastin became Co-Chairman of the Textiles and Design Area, and from 1969-1971 she was Acting Chairman. In 1971 she became Acting Chairman of the Department of Textiles, Clothing and Merchandising upon the organization of the College of Home Economics and served in this capacity until 1973.

Mrs. Eastin was instrumental in the development of the Fashion Merchandising program at the University of Kentucky. In the implementation of the program, she guided over 300 students through professional preparation and practical experience in the business field. Mrs. Eastin maintained friendly contacts with many of her students and was always willing to give direction when needed.

Mrs. Eastin, who taught History of Costume at the University of Kentucky for many years, was instigative in establishing the historical costume collection in the College of Home Economics. It was because of her interest and initiative that the College now has a working collection for students, faculty and community.

Because of her concern for home and family life, Mrs. Eastin was active in promoting home economics. She was a member of the American Home Economics Association, Kentucky Home Economics Association, serving as the college advisor in 1953. She was State Chairman of the Committee of Home Economics in Homemaking from 1961-63 and organized two new Home Economics in Homemaking groups in the state. When Mrs. Eastin left the University in 1974 due to illness, she was active in the National Society of Interior Designers, Fashion Group of New York, American Association of University Women, and the University of Kentucky Women's Club.

Mrs. Eastin died on July 3, 1975, and is survived by her husband, Dr. Charles Eastin, Lexington veterinarian, and five children.

The University community will miss her competency in the area of home economics, her compassion, and her never ending interest and concern for people.

Following the reading of the Resolution the Chairman asked the Senators to stand for a moment of silence in tribute and respect to Professor Eastin.

Chairman Krislov announced that the Senate Council had been active during the summer. He reminded them that a good amount of the work of the Senate is done by its several Committees and that in order to facilitate that work a date had been set for the meeting of these Committees during this year. He reported that these Committees would meet the first Monday of each month, from 3:00 to 5:00 p.m., the first meeting to be held Monday, October 6. He stated that the Committee members would be receiving a notification from the chairperson regarding the place for the meeting. Chairman Krislov stated further that the Senate Council would be asking the Senate for comments and suggestions for committee activity.

The Chairman turned to the five informational items on the agenda. The Developmental Studies Program (circulated to the faculty under date of August 26, 1975) was discussed briefly on the floor. The Program follows:

Due to the University of Kentucky's Open Admission Policy, 400-500 students accepted yearly whose academic preparedness level is so low as to virtually guarantee that they are not able to compete successfully and will not complete a degree program at UK or any other institution. Of the approximately 400 new students each fall who have a composite ACT score of 14 or less, 93% do not last three semesters.

In an effort to be more responsible to this "high risk" group and hopefully, to salvage a significant number, President Singletary has funded an experimental program entitled Developmental Studies. For this initial year the program revolves around four courses. The first is a non-credit Reading and Studies Skills course (RSS), patterned after a similar one now offered on a limited basis by the Counseling and Testing Center. The other three courses are English 101, Math 108R, and Speech 181, each a three credit course. Some sections of these 3 courses are dedicated entirely to the Developmental Studies Program. For example, all of the English 101-Tutorial sections are so dedicated.

To participate, a student must agree to take the Reading and Studies Skills course and at least two of the other three. The remainder of a 12-hour schedule is to be composed of other courses appropriate to the student's plans for a major. Such choices will be made in consultation with the student's adviser (one of the three academic-personal-career advisers) who have been recruited to work exclusively with students in the Program.

The sections assigned to the Program will generally have a small number of students. English 101-Tutorial will have a maximum of 17 per section, while the dedicated sections of Speech 181 will have 20 each. Mathematics plans on 40 students per section, but also intends to hire special tutors to work with students in this course.

In addition to the advantages of a smaller class size and of a greater opportunity for special attention by the instructor, it is planned to allow students who need it extra time to work through the courses. The Program has received special permission of the Senate Council to award the grade of "S," as appropriate, at the end of the first semester and have students repeat their registration in the course for the Spring Semester and receive a letter-grade at the end of that semester. Of course, such students will earn 3 credit hours even though they have been enrolled in the course for two semesters. This permission of the Senate Council is for experimental purposes and is valid for this year only.

A Developmental Studies student enrolled in any one of the dedicated sections is expected to achieve the same exit skills (even though he or she may take a full academic year to achieve them) as a student taking the same course in a non-Developmental Studies section. The intent of the Program is to give students with weak academic backgrounds closer personal supervision, courses that begin at a more fundamental level and in some cases, a longer period of involvement; but not to expect less work from, or a lower final performance level by such students.

In addition to the dedicated sections and the special advisers, there is a third advantage associated with participating in the Program. Specifically, the University guarantees not to drop the students who show a good faith effort for three semesters. This will give an adequate period of time for students in the Program to overcome their background deficiencies and prove that they can work successfully at the University level.

For the first year, the target of the Program is 200 students. To administer the Program, the University has recruited a Director-- Dr. Mary F. Franke -- who is an Assistant Dean in the Division of Basic Studies of the College of Arts and Sciences. The Program is housed on the third floor of Frazee Hall and the offices of the Director and Program Specialists are located there, as well as specially equipped learning laboratories for students in English 101-Tutorial and Reading and Study Skills. The various class sections assigned to the Program are being taught on the second floor of that building. The advisers have their offices on the second floor of the Office Tower in order to utilize the services of the College's Office of Records and Registration.

Though administratively a unit in the College of Arts and Sciences' Division of Basic Studies, the Developmental Studies Program has a University-wide mission. It is designed to assist entering freshmen throughout the University who can profit from its services regardless of their ultimate choice of a college, department, or personal program of study. Developmental Studies students will initially be enrolled in the College of Arts and Sciences to simplify record keeping and to insure that they are provided the intensive advising and the personalized instruction they require to maximize their chances of academic success. Simultaneously, however, the advisers will insist that each student who has declared a major be in touch with a liaison faculty adviser in his chosen area. Upon completion of the fundamental skills courses provided by the Program and when a clear choice of a major is made, each student will be transferred to the college of his choice.

Faculty encountering students whom they believe could be helped by the Developmental Studies Program are invited to refer them to Dr. Mary Franke (312 Frazee Hall) who will counsel them individually regarding the prospects of participating in the Program. The general criteria for admission to the Program is a composite ACT score of 14 or less.

Chairman Krislov alerted the Senators that a proposal for changes in Senate Rules regarding student rights and responsibilities is now in the hands of the Committee on Student Affairs chaired by Professor Levis McCullers and anyone who wished to be heard concerning possible changes in student rights and responsibilities should contact Professor McCullers. In answer to a request from the floor that Professor McCullers give the Senators a brief synopsis of the changes that are being considered in student rights and responsibilities, Professor McCullers reported that the proposed changes would be circulated to the faculty; that the biggest single item pertains not only to the penalties but the procedures involved in academic offenses relating to cheating, plagiarism, etc.; further that there were a number of minor changes.

Chairman Krislov reported that the degree of Master of Science in Veterinary Science had been approved by the Senate Council and the Board of Trustees, and was now operational. He stated that it was not necessary to submit that degree to the Council of Public Higher Education since the department has a Ph.D program.

Chairman Krislov reported that the Senate Council has been asked to waive the Senate rule on transcripts for incoming Vietnamese refugees and had done so since it seemed unlikely that transcripts would be available for this group. The Council waived the Rule for a two-year period and the Dean of Admissions and Registrar's Office is operating under this waiver.

The Chairman further reported that the Academic Programs Advising Handbook, which had been in preparation about a year, is completed. He stated that it was a very attractive booklet and is available in a looseleaf binder; that there were several hundred of these booklets in the Community Colleges; and that it was hoped that this booklet would enable the Advisers in that System to counsel the students about the various four-year programs available at the University of Kentucky.

Chairman Krislov reported that because of its concern about the disaccreditation of the Department of Journalism, the Senate Council had held several meetings in which it had focused on the broad policy level of accreditation. He stated that it was in the process of discussing with the Administration a number of proposals which it thought would benefit the University. He stated that he was not sure when these proposals would be brought to the floor of the Senate but that, hopefully, some of them would come to the Senate in the form of Rules changes or policy statements.

The Chairman called on Dean Ockerman to explain the rationale for the proposed University Calendar for 1978-79 (circulated to the faculty under date of August 26, 1975).

As you know, the University of Kentucky was one of the first institutions in the country to move to the early calendar. It seemed to work very successfully and some few years later a careful review was done by representatives of the Senate and it was determined that the University would remain on the early calendar.

We now find that a good many institutions across the country are considering, and some actually adopting, a calendar similar to the one we are proposing.

In essence, this calendar simply suggests that we open the Fall Semester one week earlier than the calendar which has already been approved and one week earlier than the University is now opening. This would conclude the Fall Semester one week earlier, but essentially there are no other changes. In like manner, we would open the Spring Semester one week earlier and conclude that semester one week earlier. It would provide, on a regular basis, an interval of time between the conclusion of the Spring Semester and the opening of the Four-Week Intersession.

So it does regularize things a bit more and provides improvement in the flow of information from the faculty to the various offices, to the students, and would serve the University better than it is now being served.

For these reasons, I move the adoption of the revised proposed University Calendar for 1978-79.

Professor Rey Longyear presented written objections to the proposed revised Calendar after which he moved to return the proposed Calendar to committee for other options or alternatives to the proposed calendar.

Professor Longyear's motion was ruled out of order since there is no "committee" to which to return the proposed early calendar.

Following extensive discussion which was overwhelmingly against the proposed earlier calendar, the University Senate defeated the proposed early University Calendar for 1978-79.

The 1978-79 Colleges of Dentistry, Medicine, and Law Calendars that have been approved by the Senate Council, are made a part of these Minutes.

The Chairman moved to the last item on the agenda, the recommendation from the Senate Committee on Academic Organization and Structure to reorganize the College of Arts and Sciences (circulated to the faculty under date of August 20, 1975). He called on Dr. James E. Criswell, Chairman of that Committee, who reviewed some of the recommendations in the circulation.

Following a question and answer period, Professor Betty Rudnick, Secretary of the Senate Council, presented a motion on behalf of the Council, that the Senate approve the Report of the Senate Committee on Academic Organization and Structure relative to the proposed Arts and Sciences reorganization circulated under date of August 20, 1975, to be forwarded to the President of the University for appropriate action. The Senate approved this motion.

RECOMMENDATIONS ON ACADEMIC REORGANIZATION

(1) The Committee on Academic Organization and Structure has thus far studied in depth the Arts and Sciences external reorganization proposals as they relate to the College of Library Science and the School of Communications. The Committee finds that there are no compelling reasons, or at least that a case has not been made for a merger of the two units. Accordingly, the Committee does not feel it appropriate at this time to recommend that they be combined into one academic unit.

(2) However, after extensive study including 18 hours of discussions with the administration, faculty and students of both units, the Committee senses that properly initiated discussions between the two units might in fact uncover a basis for a mutually acceptable merger. Accordingly, the Committee suggests that representatives of the College of Library Science and the School of Communications (and other related units) be requested to meet to determine if they have areas of commonality in the field of communication sciences; if such areas do exist, the representatives should develop a proposal for an organization structure of the units to form a College of Communication (or perhaps a College of Information Sciences). Subsequently the results of their deliberations should be submitted to the faculties of the respective units for their consideration.

(3) The Committee views with deep concern the lengthy period of organizational uncertainty experienced by the School of Communications and recent accreditation difficulties of the Department of Journalism. The Committee concludes that, regardless of actions that may be taken under paragraph two, provisional reorganization of the present School of Communications should be undertaken immediately. Accordingly, it recommends that the present School of Communications be abolished and that elements of the School be realigned into two new academic units - a School of Journalism and a Department of Human Communications - within the College of Arts and Sciences. Recommended academic sequences within the School of Journalism include news reporting and editorial writing, broadcast journalism, and advertising. Recommended academic sequences within the Department of Human Communication include speech, communication, and the management and production aspects of telecommunication. Responsibility for the administration of the graduate program in communication would be assigned to the Department of Human although graduate faculty would come from both units. These recommendations reflect the Committee's opinion that current University Governing and Administrative Regulations inadequately provide for strong academic units at a level between the traditional colleges and departments. They give journalism activities a new somewhat separate identity, a degree of autonomy not possible in the current organizational structure, and a name traditionally applied to units having strong professional orientation. Finally they satisfactorily resolve the matter of internal realignments of elements within the present School.

(4) Should the deliberation of paragraph two fail to yield the bases of a satisfactory merger by the end of the 1975-76 academic year, the Committee recommends that a new College of Communication be established. Academic units within the new College would include the proposed School of Journalism and the proposed Department of Human Communication. The new College of Communication would preserve and enhance the strong ties that have developed among the faculty and programs of the present. It would support the Arts and Sciences reorganization proposal to the extent that units of the present School would be removed and the size of the College of Arts and Sciences would be moderately reduced. It would support and give visibility to the University commitment to programs in communication.

(5) The Committee has also examined the other merger proposals outlined in Recommendation for the Reorganization of the College of Arts and Sciences. The Committee feels that to achieve a comprehensive rationale for any particular merger, as well as general faculty acceptance of such action, discussions should be initiated within the affected units. Therefore, it is the Committee's suggestion that, at the request of the President's Office or the Academic Vice President's Office, merger discussions be initiated within the respective academic units as outlined in the Arts and Sciences Reorganization Plan.

The Rules of the University Senate provide that minor changes in a University Calendar may be made by the Senate Council, upon recommendation of the Registrar, and with the further provision that the Senate Council report any such changes to the University Senate. The following Calendar changes have been approved by the Senate Council:

Dear Dr. Eastin:

The University Senate met this past Monday for its first meeting of this academic year. Professor Patricia Horridge, College of Home Economics, read the enclosed Resolution concerning the death of Mrs. Eastin and asked that the Resolution be made a part of the minutes of that meeting and that you be sent a copy of the Resolution.

We were very sorry to lose Professor Eastin and extend to you our sincere sorrow at her passing.

Cordially yours,

Elbert W. Ockerman
Secretary, University Senate

BETTY DOWNER EASTIN

Betty Downer Eastin, Associate Professor of Textiles, Clothing and Merchandising, served as a member of the University of Kentucky faculty for 13 years. She was a native of Aliceville, Alabama and earned B.S. and M.S. degrees in Home Economics from the University of Alabama. She taught Vocational Home Economics in the Alabama school system from 1947-50. Mrs. Eastin was an instructor at the Louisiana State University in 1951. She joined the faculty of the University of Kentucky, School of Home Economics, as an Assistant Professor in 1952. In 1968, Mrs. Eastin became Co-Chairman of the Textiles and Design Area, and from 1969-1971 she was Acting Chairman. In 1971 she became Acting Chairman of the Department of Textiles, Clothing and Merchandising upon the organization of the College of Home Economics and served in this capacity until 1973.

Mrs. Eastin was instrumental in the development of the Fashion Merchandising program at the University of Kentucky. In the implementation of the program, she guided over 300 students through professional preparation and practical experience in the business field. Mrs. Eastin maintained friendly contacts with many of her students and was always willing to give direction when needed.

Mrs. Eastin, who taught history of costume at the University of Kentucky for many years, was instigative in establishing the historical costume collection in the College of Home Economics. It was because of her interest and initiative that the college now has a working collection for students, faculty and community.

Because of her concern for home and family life, Mrs. Eastin was active in promoting home economics. She was a member of the American Home Economics Association, Kentucky Home Economics

AUG 25 1975

Association, serving as the college chapter advisor in 1953. She was State Chairman of the Committee of Home Economics in Homemaking from 1961-63 and organized two new Home Economics in Homemaking groups in the state. When Mrs. Eastin left the university in 1974 due to illness, she was active in the National Society of Interior Designers, Fashion Group of New York, American Association of University Women, and the University of Kentucky Women's Club.

Mrs. Eastin died on July 3, 1975, and is survived by her husband, Dr. Charles Eastin, Lexington veterinarian, and five children.

The university community will miss her competency in the area of home economics, her compassion, and her never ending interest and concern for people.

Resolution of Death

September Meeting

✓ The Faculty of the College of Home Economics ^{respectfully} requests that this resolution be spread upon the minutes and that copies be sent to the family of Mrs. Betty Eastin.

FROM: University Senate Council

RE: AGENDA ITEM: University Senate Meeting
September 8, 1975: Recommendations from the Senate Committee on Academic Organization and Structure on the proposed Arts and Sciences Re-organization.

The Committee on Academic Organization and Structure decided to tackle one phase of the Arts and Sciences Re-organization proposal and this part deals with Journalism, Communications and Library Science.

Because of the need to act in the Journalism-Communications area, President Singletary requested that the Senate Council advise him tentatively on recommendation #3. After considerable debate the Council passed unanimously the following motion:

"The Senate Council advises the President to act immediately on recommendation #3 of the Academic Organization and Structure Committee report, to wit: that, ' . . . provisional re-organization of the present School of Communications should be undertaken immediately. Accordingly, it recommends that the present School of Communications be abolished and that elements of the School be realigned into two new academic units - a School of Journalism and a Department of Human Communication - within the College of Arts and Sciences'."

The action of the Council, however, is not binding upon the Senate, and the entire report is before you for your consideration.

MEMORANDUM

TO: University Senate
FROM: Elbert W. Ockerman

RECOMMENDATION:

That beginning with the 1978-79 Academic Year the Calendar be revised to allow the opening of the term one week earlier than has been done since the inception of the "Early Calendar."

RATIONALE:

After several years of experience with the Early Calendar at least four problems have emerged that are important enough to merit attention. They are:

1. The opportunity for students to complete the semester's work and to earn at least some money has been almost completely eliminated.
2. The Christmas vacation time of the faculty is interrupted and/or delayed by the examination period and submission of grades deadlines running up to or beyond Christmas Day.
3. Due to the lateness of grades being submitted Deans are delayed in notification to students placed on probation or dropped beyond a reasonable time frame.
4. Jamming up the end of the term against the Christmas holidays produces too large a number of late grades thus incomplete grade reports to students, calls by students to faculty members, and incomplete transcripts for students requesting copies of their records.

M E M O R A N D U M

TO: Deans, Department Chairmen, Members of the University Senate and Non-Faculty Group of the University Senate

FROM: Joseph Hamburg, M.D., Dean
College of Allied Health Professions

SUBJECT: Proposals for new courses, changes in existing courses and dropping of one course

The faculty of the College of Allied Health Professions recommends and submits for your approval the following new courses, changes in existing course, and dropping of one course.

FOR THE DEPARTMENT OF CLINICAL ASSOCIATE

NEW COURSES

AHE-869 - Clinical Internal Medicine for Clinical Associates (4 credit hours)

This course provides the student with an experience in evaluating the adult patient with a variety of acute and chronic problems seen in an out-patient setting.

AHE 870 - Clinical Emergency Room for Clinical Associates (4 credit hours)

This course provides the student with training in triaging, evaluating and managing the multitude of patients with a wide variety of complaints presenting to today's busy emergency room.

AHE 871 - Clinical Psychiatry for Clinical Associates (2 credit hours)

This course provides the student with an experience in evaluating psychosocial problems and mental health in an out-patient setting, and observation of the on-going management of these problems.

AHE 872 - Practical Therapeutics for Clinical Associates (3 credit hours)

The purpose of this course is to teach enough about the practical use of the drugs used in everyday primary care; to allow the student to use the drugs competently under the supervision of a licensed physician.

AHE 873 - Counseling and Interviewing Skills for Clinical Associates (1 credit hour)

This course is designed to provide Clinical Associate students with a basic understanding of individual and group dynamics, and counseling and interviewing techniques applicable to their role as a Physician Assistant.

CHANGE IN EXISTING COURSES

AHE 854 - Biology of Disease (1-5 credit hours)

Change from pass/fail to regular graded basis. This change is requested to be consistent with the policy of offering required program courses on a regular graded basis.

AHE 858 - Common Office Problems (5 credit hours)

Change from four to five hours credit. This change is requested since, in order to complete the course objectives, it is necessary to increase the lecture time to five hours per week during the Spring semester.

FOR THE DEPARTMENT OF MEDICAL TECHNOLOGY

NEW COURSES

MT 831 - Introduction to Laboratory Methodology I (4 credit hours)

An introduction to basic clinical laboratory methodology in theory and practice relative to Urinalysis, Serology, Immunohematology and Bacteriology. Laboratory reporting, quality control, intra-hospital communication, medical terminology and concern for the patient will be emphasized throughout the course.

MT 833 - Introduction to Laboratory Methodology II (4 credit hours)

An introduction to basic clinical laboratory methodology in theory and practice relative to Hematology and Clinical Chemistry. Laboratory reporting, quality control, intra-hospital communications, medical terminology and concern for the patient will be emphasized throughout the course.

DROP

MT 832 - Introduction to Laboratory Methodology

This course is being replaced by two 3 credit hour courses.

KENTUCKY JANUARY PROGRAM

NEW COURSE

AHE 841 - Health Care System Clerkship (3 credit hours)

An organized rotating clerkship in the community designed to demonstrate the elements of community influence on health care delivery and the response of the delivery system to those elements using the team approach as the investigative mechanism. Students may elect for clinical or observational teams. Required for Allied Health Professions baccalaureate students.
