Dear Fred:

I think the American Medical Association did itself proud by electing you to the job of President-elect. I have just received last week's issue of the Journal and I am not very much impressed with the picture they have of you. It doesn't do you justice - so I think perhaps you ought to have another picture made because I don't want the boys to get the wrong impression of you; you are too fine a fellow for anything like that.

It was awfully nice to see you and be with you. Of course, getting you elected to the job was one of the easiest things we ever had to do. As a matter of fact it was like playing a bridge hand when you bid seven spades and have thirteen in your own hand - it was just that easy. I know of no one who deserves the honor more than you.

With my kindest regards and best wishes, I beg to remain

Very cordially yours,

James E. Paullin, M. D.
