Dear Dr. Rankin:

I am enclosing an article I clipped from the Times-Star. I am very happy to say "Congratulations" - to you, as the new president of the College of Surgeons - to you for the fine things you said.

I am sure I mentioned to you some years ago that Don wanted to be a doctor.

He completed his Pre-Med work, had a year of Anatomy at U.C., worked for Tanner's Research Lab on the U.C. campus for a year, and now is in Medical School at Louisville - on a shoe-string, no less. However, he is determined, and says he doesn't care how rough it is, just so it isn't impossible.

When I was in Lexington in July I heard that you had been quite ill, but had operated that week for the first time since your illness.

I wish you continued good health and happiness and hope to be fortunate enough to see you on one of my infrequent visits to Lexington.

As always, yours,

Alice Schulte
