

British Consul Slated For Convo August 5

716 Registered For New Session

Seven hundred and sixteen students have registered for the second half of the Summer quarter at the University. This figure will be increased by additional students who will register for short courses starting August 11, according to the office of the Registrar.

Final enrollment for the 1942 second half of the Summer quarter was 1,385. Registration for the first session of the Summer quarter this year reached 1,065.

UK Men At Perry Win Softball Game

The University of Kentucky softball team of Camp Perry, Ohio, composed of UK Senior ROTC men, recently defeated a similar team from the University of West Virginia, 12-1, according to Pvt. Bob Conway, former sports writer on the Kernel, who is now stationed at Camp Perry.

The team members were Charlie Bill Walker, Phil Cutchin, Mill Tocco, Noah Mullins, Roe Leer, Bob Hillenmeyer, Mel Brewer, Johnny Hurst, Gus Hank, O. C. Brumfield, and Clark Wood. The team manager was Bill Deep.

The Kernel Invites Soldier Contributions

Any soldiers on the campus who are interested in contributing news or feature items to The Kentucky Kernel are asked to contact the editor. Address all communications to The Editor, The Kentucky Kernel, McVey hall.

Question: What is your idea of paradise?

Marie Hilton, Education junior: Right now I'd like a cold Frigid-aire.

Dot Wells, Ag senior: It would be with the one I loves.

Cpl. William Boesate, Ft. Phoenix: Out of uniform, on a desert island, a blonde at my feet, a brunette in my arms, a redhead on my knee, soft breezes, and a full moon.

Bill Hollingsworth, ASTP: Somewhere where there aren't any bugles, whistles, and sergeants, and where you can sleep all day.

Dallas Villines, Ft. Phoenix: The University of Kentucky.

John Borman, ASTP: Fishing on Long Island Sound enjoying a furlough.

Bill Schumann, A&S junior: Not having to get up in the morning.

Charles Rupley, Ag freshman: A good book and a good bed with a plate of apples on one side and a plate of food on the other.

Pfc. Sam Lucia, Ft. Phoenix: Under a tree with a bottle of beer and a babe in my arms.

Pvt. Edwin Lillalea, ASTP: Civilian life and freedom.

Pvt. Berkholder, ASTP: A bed with clean sheets about 6 by 6; that's paradise.

Don Lawrence, ASTP: Go back to Southern California.

Pvt. Coe Conway, ASTP: South America. That's where I'm going on my honeymoon.

Arthur H. Tandy, H. M. Consul, Cincinnati, will speak on "Britain Today," at the first convocation of the second half of the summer term at 10 a.m., Thursday, August 5, in Memorial Hall.

All third hour classes which run under the Summer quarter from 9:40 to 11:05 and classes running under the regular quarter from 10 to 10:50 will be dismissed.

Tandy, who is the British Consul at Cincinnati, has served in the British Consular Service since 1927. Since that time, he has served as Vice Consul at Bangkok, Barcelona, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, and Valparaiso. In 1939 Tandy was appointed Consul at New York.

Born in London in 1905, Tandy attended Christ's Hospital, Exhibitioner, Goldsmith's Exhibitioner, and was a Demy Scholar of Magdalen College, Oxford. In 1926, he received a B. A. from Oxon.

The invocation and benediction will be given by Reverend John Mulder of the Good Shepherd Episcopal church. Anita Roos, a student at the University, will present several vocal selections accompanied by Joan Akers.

UK Trainees Begin Furloughs July 31

ASTP trainees stationed at the University will leave July 31 on furlough and will return August 7, Major D. C. Carpenter has announced.

Of the 576 men stationed here, more than 90 per cent will receive a furlough and will return to the campus. Those not receiving furloughs will be transferred to other units, Major Carpenter said.

Houses On Euclid Put Up For Auction

The property on Euclid avenue, recently acquired by the University as a site for the proposed field house, was cleared yesterday when 24 houses were put up for auction. This sale included all lumber, brick, and plumbing fixtures.

Frank D. Peterson, comptroller of the University, stated that forty houses were left standing and that these would be torn down as soon as they are vacated.

Social Activities Are Cancelled

Union social activities will go on a decline for the next week when ASTP trainees leave for their furlough.

The regular Monday night movie has been cancelled for August 2, according to Miss Dorothy Collins, social director.

Other activities which will not be held are the Howard Hall dancing class scheduled for Wednesday nights and the Union dance which is held on Saturday nights.

Sports Should Go On Is Campus Opinion

By Doris Singleton

That sports should definitely continue for the duration of the war was the opinion expressed by the majority of University students interviewed in a survey taken this week by The Kernel.

"We must have some pleasure at home to keep up our spirit," was the opinion expressed by one coed. "And the boys overseas enjoy reading of the athletic activities in the States," she continued.

Many expressed the opinion that the Army men stationed on the various campuses should organize teams and play inter-collegiate games. It was desired by many that

The Kernel Travels To North Africa

"Just saw a Kernel and felt good for a change," was the message received from Lt. C. L. Combs, somewhere in North Africa, by the Kernel this week.

The lieutenant is better known on the campus as "Hoot" Combs, ex-football player, ex-basketball star, and University graduate. "Give my love to the coeds," was Hoot's final word.

32 Radio Centers Placed In Leslie

A system of thirty-two radio listening centers, designed to place every remote portion of Leslie county within three miles of a center, has been completed for that county by the University, according to Elmer G. Sulzer, director of the radio studios.

Although University listening centers have been in operation since 1933, and Leslie county has had some centers since that date, this is the first time a systematic location of centers has been completed for an entire county. Plans have been made to complete similar installations of centers in Letcher and Harlan counties, Sulzer said.

People living adjacent to the centers are encouraged to come to the centers to listen to news, agricultural broadcasts, and other programs of interest.

Picnic Scheduled Wednesday Night

A picnic for summer school students at Castletown Park Wednesday evening, August 4, is being sponsored by the YM-YWCA and the Student Union, Bart Peak, secretary of the Y, announced today.

Anyone wishing to attend must sign at the Information desk in the Union building by Monday noon. A fee of 30 cents is being charged for food expenses.

There will be swimming in Castletown pool, and other activities for those who do not swim. A group will leave the Union building at 5:30 p.m. and go to the park by bus.

Tea is being served every Wednesday afternoon in the Jewell hall lounge from 4 to 6 p.m. for all women students of the University. Miss Lester is in charge of the affairs and all women students are invited.

the Army teams should play as college teams, and not as service units.

"As long as there are Americans to take part in sports, sports should continue," another student said. He added that sports are health-building, and without them the health of the nation would suffer.

Most of the coeds said that they would not attempt to take the men's places in athletics. They all agreed, however, that various teams organized within the University would be not only beneficial, but entertaining for many. They said that feminine athletics should be carried out on a lesser scale, and

400 ASTRP Men Arrive Here To Start Training On Campus

Cutler Will Speak In Reading Series

John L. Cutler, instructor of English at the University, will speak on "Song of the Folk," in the library's Browsing room in the sixth of the "Invitation to Reading" series at 3 p.m., Wednesday, August 4.

Speaking on ballads and folk songs, Cutler will play recent recordings and comment on them. The records will be ballads and folk songs representing the entire country, and not only those of Kentucky, he said.

On Tuesday, August 9, Mrs. Frank L. McVey, wife of president emeritus Dr. Frank L. McVey, will speak, Dr. Frank L. McVey, will speak

Wac Lieutenant Speaks To Women

Lt. V. L. Haspel, new recruiting officer in Lexington for the Women's Army Corps, spoke to University women Thursday, July 29, in the Music room of the Union building.

Lt. Haspel spoke of the needs for women volunteers for the organization, who was needed, and why. "I am taking you through basic training so to speak," she said, as she told of the various duties and trainings of a Wac.

After her speech, Lt. Haspel held personal interviews with women interested in becoming a member of the Wacs.

Women's Drill Team Is Organized Here

A volunteer women's drill team has been organized on the campus by Lt. V. L. Haspel, Women's Army Corps, with the purpose of giving future enlistees preliminary training in marching tactics, Mrs. Sarah B. Holmes, dean of women, has announced.

"This is a voluntary women's drill team with no strings attached," Lt. Haspel said. "I am doing this entirely on my own hook. This is not a recruiting device," she emphasized.

The voluntary group will meet each Wednesday from 7 to 8 p.m. on the drill field back of the Union building.

Approximately 400 men 17 years of age arrived on the campus this week to begin training under the Army Specialized Training Reserve Program, it was announced today by Dr. Leo Chamberlain, dean and registrar.

The men, who are the first to be given military scholarships in the Fifth Service Command, will be housed in Boyd hall, which was formerly a woman's dormitory. Dr. Chamberlain stated that classes would be similar to those of the basic ASTP courses on the campus.

While receiving basic military instruction at the University, the trainees will be provided with tuition, text books, housing, subsistence, and medical care. The reserves will not wear the Army uniform, Dean Chamberlain said.

At the end of the term during which the trainee reaches his 18th birthday he will be sent to Army camps to receive basic military training. On completion of this training, the soldier, if still qualified, will return to college to continue his studies.

In addition to the 17-year-olds, 200 to 300 more enlisted men from the regular Army will arrive on the campus before August 9. At the end of August, the total number of Army specialized trainees at the University will be between 1,100 and 1,200, according to Dean Chamberlain.

Social Calendar...

YM-YWCA—6:15 p.m., Tuesday, Y lounge.

Community Sing—6:30-7:00 p.m., Thursday, Amphitheater, Memorial hall.

Tea Dance—6 p.m., Friday, Card room of the Union.

Invitation to Reading Series—3 p.m., Wednesday, Library Browsing room.

US's UKs

Seaman Second Class C. Roy Steinfert, former University student and director of athletic publicity for Wildcat teams, visited in Lexington at the conclusion of his boot training at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. His wife, the former Willie Silvers, a University student, completed her college work and joined him at his assigned station at the end of his furlough.

Capt. Coleman E. Alford, 316 Clifton avenue, is among the officers graduating from the Chemical Warfare Unit Gas Officers Course at Edgewood Arsenal, Md. Prior to entering the service, he was an instructor in the Lexington city schools. Captain Alford attended the University.

Sgt. Charles E. Morrow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Morrow, 152 Sherman avenue, recently graduated from the factory training school at the Army Air Forces Training Command, Lynbrook, Long Island, N. Y. A graduate of Bryan Station school, Morrow also attended the University. He was a former service station operator prior to his induction into the Army last year.

By Fleishman and Tevis
Twas brillig and the slithy toves
Did gyre and gimble in the wabe
Allmimsy were the borogroves
And the mome raths outgrabe.

Somehow the above stanza from Lewis Carroll, of Alice in Wonderland fame, fascinates us. The words and sounds in it are harmonious to our aesthetic ear. We can sit by the hour in class and dream of gimbaling in the wabe. And we can outgrabe with the best mome raths, too.

What about the Date Bureau? We haven't heard a word about it in weeks. Could be that it's served its initial purpose—that of introducing G. I. to Coed. The boys, according to numerous authoritative sources, have been very able to "take it from there."

But one poor character in Co. A is still waking up screaming in horror. Somehow, he doesn't know why, he happened to snag a girl with athletic ambitions. She wanted to run over the Stoll Field obstacle course at 10 p.m. Batman would have loved her. She's not typical of Kentucky coeds. We're not all muscle-bound women out of Flash Comics.

Last week in philosophy class we found out a startling fact: Plato is not Mickey Mouse's pet dog.

Funniest sight of the week: Expression on the faces of Jewell hall girls when they found that 400 of the new ASTP boys are only 17 years old!

It takes no Sherlock Holmes to deduce whether the soldier or civilian side of the cafeteria has the better food — just watch on which side the officers choose to purchase their food.

Now that Mr. Hall has taught the soldiers the Kentucky style of jitterbugging in his dancing class, we feel sure that the boys will pass it on to their friends when they are home on their furloughs. Thus, it shouldn't be long before the whole nation is hep to Kentucky jive.

To the boys of Companies A, B and C of the 1548th Service Unit of the Army Specialized Training Program, we wish a happy, happy furlough. We know they'll have just a dandy time seeing their parents, reading newspapers and going to picture shows. After all, when a boy has been away from home for months, studying like mad, he likes nothing better than going home. Because there he can sit before the fire every evening poring over a copy of "The New Republic" whilst sipping reflectively a glass of Pepsi Cola or even lemonade.

Business Is Plenty Rushing, But Morris Has Troubles

By Betty Tevis

The title of today's little drama might well be "Blitzkrieg in the Bookstore" or "Melee in McVey."

The other day we waded through the sea of green fatigues and pounced upon Jimmy Morris in our best journalistic manner. We wanted to know how the war has affected the bookstore and the soft drink situation. With a grin, Morris, the friendly proprietor, coled us to his bulging stockroom. We gazed in awe at pillars of cokes and other bottled beverages towering into the air. Here were 47 cases of one soft drink—a small portion of the well-over-1,000 bottles of drinks sold every day.

Explaining that with tremendous increase in business also comes headache, our genial tour leader pointed out a mournful stack of empty cartons. "In 4 or 5 days we have lost 29 cases of empty bot-ties." As we walked out around the front of the building, Morris pointed out 14 huge ash cans, eagerly waiting for empty ice cream cartons to be thrown in them. But even with such provisions, the bookstore hourly floor sweeping yields a haul of hundreds of pieces of cartons.

Grinning and handing us a cold coke, Morris told us that he would appreciate the cooperation of the civilian population in keeping the bookstore clean. The military is under orders. And we answered that he would certainly get that cooperation because we civilians or yardbirds don't want the picturesque bookstore closed for lack of neatness. Inspired with true crusading spirit we turned toward the Kernel office ready to write. And just as he disappeared from view, Morris was taking a handful of empty bottles off a windowsill.

G. I. Sweepings . . .

By BABY

McLean, the Connecticut Yankee, will tell you that two Singapore Slings do not mix well with a G. I. supper. He ought to know.

The boys in Bradley hall want to know what Charlie Weaver has that they are lacking. (Ask Frankie.)

Simmons must be a good man. In eight weeks he has become engaged to three girls, and he hasn't broken any engagements yet, either. What do you use for rings, private?

An illustration of false economy—A certain soldier named Hancock cannot afford to buy his own smokes but manages to travel to Cincinnati each week-end for feminine companionship.

Sound advice to Dick Fecchia — Just stay away from Prestonsburg, Ky., for a while and watch your demerits vanish into nothing.

Haggerty, Inc., with Devlin and Ehlers as general managers, is doing a thriving business in view of the coming furlough expenses. Address is Room 9, Bradley hall.

The boys have suggested that we form an alumni of CCNY at UK. It would be swell to get together and plan a few outings, etc. What do you say, fellows? We can account for about twenty-five men who attended CCNY. No doubt there are many more. Don't be ashamed to admit it! Bill Hollingsworth, the 'Frisco Kid,' is tinkering with Tinker. Why and wherefore??

No doubt you all are familiar with Baird, the older one of the two who always drives (or better flies) us to the Castlewood pool. Well, he is a proud papa now. Remember to call him Daddy so that he will get used to it.

That handsome stout fellow from the personnel office,

Bain, came back from furlough and is resting at the infirmary with pneumonia. Speedy recovery to you. Trust your illness won't hold up our furloughs.

A Bradley hall brat was caught wearing his fatigues in town. About to be punished, his superior inquired whether the lad had heard that fatigues were not to be worn off the campus. Replied the wit, "I thought the state is UK's campus."

Don Pearson, the only Democrat in the state of Maine, has finally lowered his standard of morals. The other night he held a girl's hand.

This is for the benefit of the new girls on the campus. If we stare at you, stare right back. We're not rude, gals, just curious and human.

Remember Splash Chanin? It seems he has something which attracts the company commander as well as all the women — so he says! His CC insists that Splash honor him with his presence at every GI meal. Hm, hm, hm.

For the sake of all future Officers of the Day. The instructors don't cherish the idea of playing with a gun during instruction hours. Ask Sol about that???

Now that Boyd hall has been emptied, the men in the other half of Patt hall will undoubtedly make an effort to catch up on their studies.

To all you fellows who are planning on marriage during the coming furlough! As soon as your honey has put her ring through your nose—that is the time to exert your authority and make sure that the rope isn't any too short.

We'll sign off now and hope to take a week of vacation in no other place than good ole New York. Pleasant furloughs to you all.

Isn't It A Lovely Day . . .

The Battle Of Bradley Hall, Or What A Plumber I'd Make

By Pvt. Saul Halpert

The hallowed fox-hole, glorified in the rolling rhetoric of newspaper correspondents and radio newscasters, has been highly overrated as the setting for acts of heroism and valor by the individual soldier in this war. Candidates for the Congressional Medal or the Purple Heart are just as apt to perform their brave deeds on such prosaic battlegrounds as an ordinary Army barracks—or even a basement room in Bradley hall.

Several members of Company B, 1548th Service Unit (a crack fighting outfit that won glory at El Guettar, Bizerte, and, more recently, Pence and McVey halls) were fortunate Tuesday night in witnessing such an act of heroism by one of their own comrades-in-arms. Night was deepening, and heavy formations of enemy four-engined bombers had launched a concentrated attack of rainfall precipitation bombs on their objective, Bradley hall. Raging floodwaters, pouring in through an open basement window, threatened the battalion command post and a closet full of clean G. I. clothes.

With complete disregard for his own safety, Private Lester J. Gillis, buck private in the rear rank of Company B, flung himself with reckless abandon at the open window, and at great peril and risk to his own life he succeeded in breaching the gap and saving the endangered command post.

For his unselfish valor beyond the line of duty, Private Gillis has been recommended by his commanding officer for the Purple Heart. Private Gillis, known affectionately to his close friends as "Little Beaver," acquired his nickname as a result of his affinity for a particular brand of beer of that trade name. His friends are expecting him to sponsor an appropriate celebration in the Blue Grass Room in honor of his pending decoration.

Problem Of Campus Etiquette Poses Momentous Questions

This military atmosphere in which our once-proud campus is drenched brings along with its many pleasures some tricky problems. S'different now, to be specific. We're not trying to alarm the U. S. Army or the F.B.I. or even our Commander-in-Chief when we say that with the khaki came calamity.

With the advent of 600 soldiers on the campus, came also an even 600,000 problems. But space and the reader's patience prohibits our listing more than a paltry four or five. There are questions which sure enuf have been bothering us for months. We're in a mild state of tantrums whenever these little situations come up. Maybe that astute "Baby," G. I. wizard, can give us some advice. Who knows, even General George Catlett Marshall may take pity on a bewildered coed.

Situation No. 1: You are blithely tripping across the campus when you hear the hup, toop, treep, top of marching men behind you. What should you do? Run like mad and beat them to the Union? Or nonchalantly step off the walk and let them march by?

Situation No. 2: The same as in

No. 1, only in reverse. The boys in fatigues are marching your way. Should you coyly lower your eyes? Or should you speak quietly to those you know?

Situation No. 3: You are lounging in the Bookstore panting with exhaustion, your last nickel clutched in your hand. You need a coke, desperately. Should you stand until you drop to the floor in a limp heap? Or should you stand in line with about 50 privates while about 200 others look on with amused grins?

Situation No. 4: You are walking by a group of soldiers who are standing in something they call chow lines. You speak in your best Kentucky hospitality manner to little Joe Gooch, the Pfc. you met at an open house two months ago. At that, Joe's buddies, all 599 of them, join in a rousing chorus of hellos. Should you call back "hello" in an obliging fashion? Or just lower your head and sneak off as quickly as you can?

These, we repeat, are only a few of our problems. If some gentle soul will answer them, we will be able to act with certainty and poise. Until then, we'll just blunder. But then, Rebels always have blundered well!!!

Brooklyn college has disclosed plans for a four-week summer session in which city-bred students will harvest crops by day and attend classes at night.

Guignol Loses A Mainstay As Geiger Leaves Campus

By Scotty McCulloch

When Clarence Geiger left Guignol last week, to enter private business, the little theater not only lost one of its staunchest supporters and most faithful workers behind the scenes, but it also lost one of the finest actors ever to appear in Guignol productions.

A reviewer once said of Geiger that "his performance as David, in Rose Franken's 'Claudia,' was one of the best seen in Guignol in many years. The ease with which he took the role, after having stepped in as an understudy only two days before, goes to prove that the man is a fine actor and one that Guignol may look to with great pride." This play is remembered by the ever-goers as one that gave Geiger every opportunity to show his ability as an actor. He took the chance and gave one of his best performances.

Work as an actor was only a small part of Geiger's contribution to Guignol, however. Besides taking part in plays, he designed and built the sets for the majority of the productions in the past three or four years. He assisted Frank Fowler as a director in many of the plays and was technical director for Guignol for many years. He was one of the instructors in the dramatics department and taught classes in speech improvement, theater technique and stage production.

Fowler, head director of the little theater, told reporters that he was losing not only the finest actor in his theater, but one of the hardest workers and his best friend. "He is virtually one of the pillars of our organization," Fowler said, "and his loss, while not killing the theater's progress, will hinder it."

Clarence Geiger . . .

. . . has left the Guignol theater to enter private business.

To You, Dear Coed

My dear, it is with a sigh
I break our week-end date.
The Captain, standing guard last night
Found me a minute late.

From Jewell Hall at full tilt
I galloped on the run.
The long arm of the law reached out:
" 'Tis seven-thirty-one."

This morning I was filled with awe
As I marched on the carpet.
"This practice must be stopped, my son,
Before it's even started."

It didn't take the Skipper long
To mutter, "You're convicted.
Last night you had your fun, my boy,
This week-end you're restricted."

And so remember this, my dear
While you are having fun
A week-end when I may be free
I think shall never come.

Betty Jane Pugh . . .

. . . has traveled from a journalism undergraduate to a position as police reporter on The Lexington Herald in less than two months.

Betty Jane Pugh Advances On Herald

Miss Betty Jane Pugh, former news editor of The Kernel, will begin work today as the only woman police reporter ever employed by the Lexington Herald.

Miss Pugh, who received her A.B. in journalism last month, has been working on the Herald since July 5 as a reporter, feature writer, and substitute state editor. At the University she was a member of Mortar Board, president of Alpha Xi Delta social sorority, and was listed in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.
