Dear Victor:

61

The novice whom I deputed to take down the Crucifix and make the measurements has done so. I do not know if they are what you want, but he assures me that they are quite exact and indeed that the paper was just as wide as the Crucifix itself. I hope this is all right. If you want us to do some more, just let us know. I have a feeling that the side view is not complete. Yet the measurement is accurate I am sure.

I do not know if I am going to be able to get over to Shakertown soon, but I wrote to Carolyn about that the other day.

Will you please ask Carolyn if they have in the library this book:
McDonnell, E.W. The Beguines and Beghards in Medieval Culture,
New Brunswick, 1954.

The weather continues beautiful. I have been writing a few poems. I will at this rate soon get to rewriting the letter about Sophia. The Neumann book does not really offer much inspiration, though. It is a cold compilation.

With all best wishes and blessings, as ever

/m Louis
