APPROVED SECONDARY SCHOOLS

Veterans may want to return to high school to prepare for college entrance, or to increase their civic and vocational efficiency. Interested veterans should get in touch with the principal of the school they plan to attend. The principal should then assist the veteran in planning his educational program.

The need for giving high school credit for educational experiences while in the Armed Forces has been recognized by the State Board of Education in the regulations passed on September 15, 1944. A summary of these regulations follows:

A Summary of Regulations Regarding High School Credit for Educational Experience in Military Service

1. Credit toward high school graduation may be allowed for educational experience in military service on the basis of recommendations made by the United States Armed Forces Institute, Madison 3, Wisconsin.
2. The pupil desiring such credit should request the Armed Forces Institute to send a complete record of his educational training and experience to the high school which he designates.
3. The local school should give special attention to the following items in evaluating the Institute's reports regarding Specialized Training Courses:
  - (a) the name of each course successfully completed.
  - (b) the grade made in each course successfully completed.
  - (c) the number of clock hours spent in each course successfully completed.
  - (d) in such courses 180 clock hours is the minimum time allotment for one unit of credit; 90 clock hours is the minimum time allotment for one half unit of credit.
4. Off-duty educational courses such as correspondence courses should be evaluated by the local school on the basis of information furnished by the Institute.
5. Before a pupil may receive a diploma from an accredited high school under these regulations, the following conditions must be met:

- (a) At least twelve (12) units of high school work in regular attendance during the regular term must be completed. Variations from this standard must be approved by the State Director of Supervision.
  - (b) The regular subject requirements of the school granting the diploma must be met.
  - (c) The educational experience and achievement reported by the Armed Forces Institute should be evaluated in terms of units and must bring the total amount of credit up to sixteen units in order to qualify the pupil for graduation.
  - (d) Not more than two units of credit may be given for the completion of the various Basic or Recruit Training Programs.
6. Veterans who wish high school credit for educational or training experiences while in the Armed Forces should use the application blank, "Application For Educational Achievement During Military Service", USAFI Form 47, Revised Sept. 1944. Complete page one and mail to the Armed Forces Institute, Madison 3, Wisconsin. The Institute will complete and return to the principal of the high school designated by the veteran.
7. To assist him in the evaluation of the military training of the application as certified by the Institute, the principal should:
- (a) read very carefully the instructions accompanying the completed Form 47.
  - (b) consult the handbook, "A Guide to the Evaluation of Educational Experience In the Armed Forces", published by the American Council on Education, 1201 Sixteenth Street, Washington, D. C
  - (c) consult the pamphlet, "Earning Secondary School Credit In the Armed Forces," published by the National Association of Secondary School Principals, 363 Administration Building, Urbana, Ill.

Approved Training Facilities Available in Kentucky's Vocational Schools

Kentucky has twelve vocational schools for white persons. Each school serves several districts. For the most part these schools are operated by the local boards of education in cooperation with the State Division of Vocational Education. Four similar schools are operated for the benefit of Negroes. Facilities are available in each of these vocational school centers for training in practically every trade or industrial pursuit, and in some of the schools in the commercial field. Other schools throughout the state offer one or two vocational courses in trades and industries. Training in the retail occupations is available in or under the direction of each of the twelve vocational schools for white persons. The objectives of each course in all of these schools are to make persons employable in a specific occupation.

The schools have already done an outstanding job in carrying out a vocational training program during the period of the war effort, and there is little doubt that this same effectiveness can be realized in training many of our returned service men and women for employment now and in the postwar period.

The vocational schools are so located throughout the state that those discharged veterans whose interests, needs, and aptitudes indicate the desirability of vocational training will find it convenient to enroll.

The facilities available for vocational training in trades and industries, office practice, and retail occupations are described below. For the convenience of school personnel, the name and address of the superintendent of schools or other persons in charge of the local school unit is given, as well as that of the coordinator in charge of the various vocational schools. Contact with any particular school should be made through the superintendent, coordinator, or principal.

Discharged members of the Armed Forces who desire refresher training in an occupation, or, who wish to prepare themselves for a specific occupation, either for immediate use in the war effort, or for increased proficiency in the postwar period, should get in touch with the school nearest to them which offers the desired training.

The Apprentice, the Cooperative, and the On-the-Job Training Programs

There are three distinct types of trade and industrial training programs which returning veterans may want to enter besides full-time in-school training.

Apprentice Training

This training program is carried on through the cooperation of industry, labor, the vocational schools, and the apprentice in recognized trades or occupations requiring 4,000 hours or more of on-the-job experience plus a minimum of 144 hours a year of related technical instruction in a school.

Eligible establishments have either submitted a written program of apprenticeship or they are participants in such a program.

The apprenticeship agreement specifies the schedule of processes, the approximate amount of time to be spent in each process, and the wage scale throughout the program of indenture. The wage scale must average at least 50 per cent of the journeyman's wage during the period of indenture.

Detailed information in respect to specific trades in which apprenticeship training is available may be secured from the State Director of Vocational Education, Mr. Watson Armstrong, Frankfort, Kentucky, or from Mr. Harold G. Wilson, State Supervisor of Trade and Industrial Education, Division of Vocational Education, Frankfort, Kentucky. The Superintendents of schools having charge of the Area Vocational Schools or the Coordinator of these schools can also give the interested veteran the desired information.

Cooperative Occupational Training

The Cooperative Occupational Training Program is operated through the cooperation of industry or business and the school. The training is under the direction of the school and the industrial or business establishment in which the veteran secures his work experience is considered a definite part of the total training facilities made available by the school.

The local school assumes the responsibility for seeing that a satisfactory instructional pattern is carried out on-the-job and in the school.

Detailed information on this type of training may be secured from Mr. Watson Armstrong, Director of Vocational Education, Frankfort, Kentucky, or from Mr. Harold G. Wilson, State Supervisor of Trade and Industrial Education, Division of Vocational Education, Frankfort, Kentucky. The Superintendents of schools in the centers where the Area Vocational Schools are located or the Coordinators of these schools can also supply this information.

On-the-Job Training

Where the schools find it impossible to provide either apprentice or cooperative occupational training for a veteran, business or industrial establishments may be approved to provide on-the-job training for him. Several establishments have been approved for this type of training.

Establishments are approved for this type of training on the basis of a written program of on-the-job training. The written program is specific in regard to such factors as: the quality of the instruction and supervision provided by the establishment; the provision of adequate facilities for training; a well organized sequence of job-experiences with provision made for the proper time allotment for each experience; keeping adequate progress records, and the payment of a wage scale, which, over the term of training will average at least 50 per cent of the average trained worker rate in the occupation the establishment represents.

A list of the firms already approved for this type of training and other detailed information may be secured from Mr. Watson Armstrong, Director of the Division of Vocational Education, Frankfort, Kentucky, or from Mr. Harold G. Wilson, State Supervisor of Trade and Industrial Education, Frankfort, Kentucky.

Approved Facilities For Providing Vocational Training In Agriculture And General Shop Work

If instruction in agriculture is to be effective it must be specifically in terms of the individual and his farming opportunities. One of the big jobs to be dealt with in providing satisfactory agricultural training to returning service-men is the matter of getting them started in farming and providing the necessary instruction simultaneously with their effort to become established in farming. It will be possible for returning veterans to be, in a sense, apprenticed to teachers of agriculture who have charge of local programs of vocational agriculture. The teacher can hold classes for veterans when there is a sufficient number to justify it. In addition to this, he can work with them individually at school and on the farm. His work will include the making of detailed farm plans and farm budgets, determining the approved practices to follow in the respective enterprises in order that efficient production may be possible, and in addition to instruction in production and marketing practices, there are opportunities in each of the centers for the servicemen to learn to do the repair and construction work needed on farms. Each of the vocational agriculture shops is equipped to provide general pre-employment training in woodworking, metal work, electricity, and auto mechanics. General pre-employment courses can be arranged in each of these centers for servicemen in order to provide needed initial training before the men enroll in a specific vocational course in a regular trade school.

Specific instruction can be given in the various farm enterprises such as: corn, tobacco, small grains, dairying, sheep, swine, and poultry, as well as in soils, farm management, and other subjects. Persons desiring such instruction should get in touch with the local teacher of vocational agriculture.

Returning veterans who wish to resume farming operations, or who wish to begin farming operations as a new farmer, and feel the need of any of the above listed type of instruction, should get in touch with the teacher of vocational agriculture in their home community.

A list of the schools equipped to offer vocational agriculture and general shop training appears on the following pages.
